AGGREGATE LIMITS AND ALLOCATION PROVISIONS

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

A. The limits of insurance specified in the declarations dictate the maximum financial responsibility assumed under this commercial general liability contract.

These scheduled amounts apply regardless of the number of insured persons, claims made, or individuals seeking financial recovery.

The General Aggregate limit represents the absolute ceiling for all damages payable during a single annual term, excluding specific designated hazards.

Payments made to resolve claims or satisfy judgments steadily erode the General Aggregate balance available for subsequent incidents.

Once the General Aggregate limit is completely exhausted by the payment of damages, all associated protection ceases immediately.

B. The Products-Completed Operations Aggregate limit operates independently from the General Aggregate and applies strictly to the corresponding hazard.

Damages arising from goods manufactured, sold, or distributed, as well as work that has been finished, erode this separate aggregate.

The classification of a claim into either the general operations category or the completed operations category determines which aggregate is depleted.

The Each Occurrence limit establishes the maximum payable amount for any single event or series of continuous and repeated exposures.

This occurrence cap applies independently to every distinct incident, provided the relevant aggregate limit has not yet been exhausted.

C. If a single occurrence triggers damages that exceed this per-event cap, the remainder of the financial burden falls outside the contract scope.

The Personal and Advertising Injury limit restricts the payable damages for offenses such as libel, slander, or copyright infringement.

This specific limit applies per person or organization offended, rather than per occurrence, subject always to the overarching General Aggregate.

Medical payments limits, if scheduled, are typically sub-limits that are included within, and not in addition to, the Each Occurrence maximum.

Damage to premises rented to the named insured is governed by a separate sub-limit applicable only to specific fire or water events.

D. The depletion of any limit is driven solely by the payment of damages and does not typically include the costs associated with legal defense.

Legal defense expenses are generally handled outside the limits of insurance unless a specific endorsement alters this standard arrangement.

In situations where defense costs are brought within the limits, every dollar spent on legal fees directly reduces the available aggregate.

The limits of insurance apply separately to each consecutive annual period and to any remaining period of less than twelve months.

If the term is extended by an endorsement for a fraction of a year, the limits do not automatically reinstate or increase.

E. The allocation of damages across multiple annual periods may be necessary when continuous injury spans several consecutive terms.

Under no circumstances will the limits of multiple consecutive contracts be stacked to artificially inflate the available financial protection.

When an injury is determined to have occurred over multiple terms, the maximum recovery is restricted to the highest single applicable limit.

The scheduling of limits relies on the accurate disclosure of all material operational risks at the inception of the contract.

Requests to increase the limits of insurance mid-term are subject to comprehensive underwriting review and require written approval.

F. Any approved increase in limits will only apply to occurrences that take place after the effective date of the modifying endorsement.

Deductibles or self-insured retentions, if applicable, must be satisfied by the named insured before any limit of insurance is accessed.

The application of a deductible does not increase the total limit of insurance available for the remainder of the claim.

We maintain the authority to settle any claim within the applicable limits without requiring the explicit consent of the named insured.

The exhaustion of the applicable aggregate limit immediately terminates our obligation to investigate, defend, or resolve any pending or future claims.

SEPARATION OF INSUREDS AND ADDITIONAL INSURED OPERATION

---

---

The commercial general liability contract clearly distinguishes between the primary named insured and other parties who may receive incidental protection.

The named insured is the entity explicitly listed on the declarations page and bears the primary administrative responsibilities for the contract.

These administrative duties include the payment of all premiums, the reporting of operational changes, and the maintenance of accurate exposure records.

Additional insureds are external individuals or organizations granted specific, limited protection through the attachment of a designated endorsement.

The protection afforded to an additional insured is strictly confined to the parameters outlined in the specific modifying form.

Commonly, additional insured status is granted to project owners, lessees, or general contractors who require protection arising from the named insured operations.

The scope of this external protection is generally limited to vicarious liability stemming directly from the acts or omissions of the named insured.

Independent acts of negligence committed solely by the additional insured are routinely excluded from the scope of the provided protection.

The separation of insureds provision ensures that the contract applies separately to each individual or entity claiming protection.

This severability principle means that a breach of a condition by one insured does not automatically void the protection for another innocent insured.

Furthermore, the separation of insureds allows one protected party to bring a valid claim against another protected party under the same contract.

Despite this cross-liability application, the separation provision does not multiply or increase the maximum limits of insurance available.

The Each Occurrence and applicable Aggregate limits remain fixed, regardless of how many insured entities are implicated in a single event.

Additional insured endorsements often distinguish between ongoing operations and the products-completed operations hazard.

To secure protection for liabilities arising after project completion, a specific completed operations additional insured endorsement must be attached.

Primary and non-contributory conditions are frequently requested by external parties seeking additional insured status on the contract.

When this condition is properly endorsed, the protection provided by this contract will respond before any other insurance available to the additional insured.

We will not seek contribution from the additional insured own liability policies if the primary and non-contributory requirement is met.

The granting of primary status is contingent upon the existence of a written contract requiring such an arrangement prior to the loss.

Every insured, whether named or additional, has independent duties in the event of an incident, claim, or legal proceeding.

Immediate written notice of any event that may result in a claim must be provided to the administrative processing center.

The failure of the named insured to provide notice does not excuse an additional insured from fulfilling their own reporting obligations.

All protected parties must cooperate fully in the investigation, settlement, or defense of the claim as requested by the claim administrators.

No insured may voluntarily make any payment, assume any obligation, or incur any expense without our prior written authorization.

Any unauthorized financial commitments made by an insured will be their sole responsibility and will not be reimbursed.

We are not obligated to provide separate notices of cancellation to additional insureds unless explicitly mandated by a specific endorsement.

The rights and duties of the named insured cannot be transferred to another party without our explicit written consent.

In the event of the named insured death or bankruptcy, temporary administrative rights may transfer to a legal representative.

EXCLUSIONS AND ENDORSEMENT PRECEDENCE

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

1. The commercial general liability contract is constructed through a combination of base coverage forms, schedules, and modifying endorsements.

Endorsements are specialized forms that alter, restrict, or expand the provisions found within the standard base coverage documents.

When a conflict arises between the language in a base form and the language in an attached endorsement, the endorsement takes precedence.

Exclusionary endorsements are specifically designed to remove protection for certain hazards, activities, or exposures that fall outside the underwriting appetite.

2. The attachment of a specific exclusion supersedes any broad grant of protection that might otherwise appear to apply to the situation.

Exclusions are applied to eliminate overlapping protection that should be properly addressed by a different type of insurance contract.

For example, liabilities arising from the use of automobiles are excluded here because they belong on a commercial auto policy.

Similarly, obligations to injured employees are excluded from general liability because they are the domain of workers compensation frameworks.

3. Certain environmental hazards, such as the gradual release of pollutants or toxic chemicals, are subject to absolute exclusionary language.

Occupational disease exposures involving specific harmful substances like silica, asbestos, or heavy metals are routinely removed from the scope of protection.

Liabilities stemming from the unauthorized access to, or disclosure of, confidential personal information are excluded to avoid overlapping with cyber liability products.

Employment-related practices, including wrongful termination, discrimination, and workplace harassment, are explicitly excluded from the general liability framework.

4. The application of an exclusion is evaluated based on the proximate cause of the injury or damage, regardless of how the legal complaint is drafted.

If an excluded hazard is determined to be the primary driver of the loss, the entire claim may fall outside the scope of the contract.

Some exclusions contain specific exceptions that restore a limited degree of protection under very narrow, strictly defined circumstances.

The burden of proving that a claim falls within the broad grant of protection rests entirely upon the party seeking the financial benefit.

5. Conversely, the burden of proving that a specific exclusion applies to remove that protection rests with the administrative claim examiners.

Materiality plays a significant role in the evaluation of exclusions and the overall scope of the liability contract.

A material change in the risk profile, such as the introduction of a new excluded hazard, can severely impact the availability of protection.

Endorsements must be properly scheduled on the declarations or a supplementary forms list to be considered a valid part of the contract.

6. The edition date of each form and endorsement is critical for determining the exact contractual language in effect at the time of the loss.

Insurance forms are periodically updated by regulatory and advisory organizations to address emerging legal precedents and shifting risk landscapes.

The specific edition date listed in the schedule controls the interpretation of the provision, even if a newer version exists in the marketplace.

Upon renewal of the annual term, outdated forms may be replaced with newer editions, potentially altering the scope of the exclusions.

7. The named insured is responsible for reviewing the schedule of forms and endorsements at each renewal to understand any reduction in protection.

Notices of material reduction are provided during the renewal process to highlight significant changes to the exclusionary language.

Severability clauses within certain exclusions may preserve protection for one insured party even if the exclusion applies strictly to another.

However, absolute exclusions generally apply to all insured parties uniformly, regardless of their individual involvement in the excluded activity.

8. Any modification to an exclusionary endorsement requires mutual agreement and the issuance of a revised schedule by the underwriting department.

Verbal agreements or representations made by brokers cannot override the written exclusionary language contained within the scheduled endorsements.

GENERAL LIABILITY CLAIM REPORTING AND INITIAL DUTIES

---

---

A. The provisions contained within this section establish the mandatory administrative procedures following any incident that may invoke coverage under this contract.

Strict adherence to these reporting protocols serves as a fundamental condition precedent to the availability of any liability protection provided herein.

You must implement internal organizational procedures to ensure that your management personnel are promptly made aware of any potential liability events.

Upon becoming aware of an event that could reasonably result in a liability demand, written notification must be transmitted to our claims department.

This initial notification must be dispatched as soon as practicable, regardless of whether a formal demand for compensation has been received.

B. The written incident report must include specific details regarding the time, date, and physical location where the unexpected event occurred.

You must also provide a comprehensive description of the circumstances surrounding the event, including the nature of the activities being performed.

The names, addresses, and contact information of any injured parties must be documented and submitted alongside the initial incident report.

If any witnesses were present during the event, their identifying information and contact details must also be secured and forwarded to us.

In the event that a formal legal demand or lawsuit is initiated against your organization, immediate notification is strictly required.

C. You must immediately record the date and time of receipt for any legal summons, complaint, or formal demand letter delivered to you.

All corresponding legal documents, correspondence, and related materials must be forwarded to our designated claims administration office without any delay.

Under no circumstances should you or any of your representatives voluntarily make any financial payments or assume any legal obligations.

Any voluntary assumption of liability or independent settlement offers made without our prior written consent will not be reimbursed under this contract.

You are strictly prohibited from incurring any independent expenses related to the incident, other than for immediate first aid at the scene.

D. The preservation of physical evidence related to the incident is a critical responsibility that falls entirely upon your organization.

You must take all reasonable steps to secure the incident scene and prevent any spoliation or alteration of relevant physical materials.

Photographic or video documentation of the incident location should be captured immediately, provided it is safe and legally permissible to do so.

Any equipment, machinery, or products involved in the event must be segregated and maintained in their immediate post-incident condition.

Failure to preserve critical evidence may severely prejudice the investigation and could result in the forfeiture of available liability protection.

E. If the incident involves potential criminal activity, such as theft or vandalism, you must promptly notify the appropriate local law enforcement authorities.

A copy of the official police report must be obtained and submitted to our claims department as part of your reporting obligations.

You must establish a centralized point of contact within your organization to facilitate all communications with our assigned claims professionals.

This designated representative must possess the authority to access necessary records and coordinate internal responses to our investigative inquiries.

All subsequent developments related to the reported incident must be communicated to our office in a timely and transparent manner.

F. You must not engage in any independent discussions regarding liability or settlement with the claimant or their legal representatives.

Any inquiries received from third-party investigators, media personnel, or opposing counsel must be immediately directed to our claims administration team.

Compliance with these reporting duties does not automatically guarantee that the reported event falls within the scope of available liability protection.

We reserve the authority to evaluate all submitted information to determine the applicability of specific coverage parts, exclusions, and limitations.

Your failure to fulfill these initial reporting obligations may result in a formal declination of coverage for the specific incident in question.

INVESTIGATION ASSISTANCE AND INSURED COOPERATION CONDITIONS

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

1. Your active and transparent participation in the fact-finding process is a mandatory requirement for the continuation of any liability protection.

The administrative framework of this contract relies upon your full cooperation to accurately assess the circumstances surrounding any reported incident.

When requested by our claims personnel, you must promptly provide access to all relevant organizational records, documents, and electronic data.

This includes, but is not limited to, employee training logs, maintenance schedules, operational manuals, and internal incident investigation reports.

2. You must facilitate interviews between our investigators and any of your employees, contractors, or agents who may possess relevant knowledge.

These interviews may be conducted in person, via telephone, or through virtual platforms, depending on the logistical requirements of the investigation.

If we deem it necessary, you and your employees must submit to formal examinations under oath regarding the details of the incident.

These examinations under oath will be recorded, and you may be required to sign a transcript verifying the accuracy of your statements.

3. You must assist our representatives in securing physical evidence and identifying third-party witnesses who can corroborate your version of events.

When requested, you must grant our investigators and retained experts unrestricted access to the physical premises where the incident occurred.

This access is necessary to conduct site inspections, take precise measurements, and perform forensic evaluations of the incident location.

During the course of any formal legal proceedings, your ongoing cooperation remains a critical condition of the provided defense services.

4. You must attend all required legal hearings, depositions, mediation sessions, and trial proceedings as directed by the appointed defense counsel.

Your organization must ensure that key personnel are available to testify truthfully and accurately regarding the facts of the case.

We will reimburse your organization for reasonable travel expenses and lost earnings incurred directly as a result of attending these required proceedings.

The maximum daily reimbursement rate for lost earnings is strictly capped at the amount specified in the administrative schedules.

5. You are expressly prohibited from taking any actions that might prejudice our ability to defend the claim or negotiate a favorable settlement.

Any intentional misrepresentation of facts, concealment of evidence, or collusion with the claimant will result in the immediate forfeiture of protection.

You must not enter into any agreements with third parties that attempt to assign liability or alter the legal dynamics of the claim.

If you possess any contractual rights to seek indemnification or financial recovery from another entity, you must preserve those rights entirely.

6. You are required to assist us in enforcing any such recovery rights against third parties who may be responsible for the incident.

This includes providing necessary documentation and testimony to support subrogation actions initiated by our legal recovery department.

Any financial recovery obtained from third parties will be distributed according to the specific recovery provisions outlined elsewhere in this contract.

Your failure to maintain comprehensive operational records may hinder the defense process and complicate the resolution of the liability demand.

7. We expect your organization to maintain standard commercial documentation practices consistent with your specific industry classification and operational scope.

If your lack of cooperation materially prejudices our ability to investigate or defend the action, we may formally deny the claim.

A determination of material prejudice is based on whether your actions or inactions significantly impaired the legal defense or increased the financial exposure.

We will issue formal written warnings if we determine that your level of cooperation is insufficient or detrimental to the ongoing investigation.

8. Continued non-compliance after the issuance of a formal warning will trigger a comprehensive review of your eligibility for ongoing liability protection.

DEFENSE EXPENSE ALLOCATION AND CLAIM ADMINISTRATION

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

A. This section details the financial frameworks concerning the administration of legal expenses and the allocation of associated administrative costs.

These allocated expenses typically include attorney fees, court filing costs, expert witness retainers, and specialized forensic investigation charges.

Unless explicitly modified by a separate schedule, the payment of these allocated loss adjustment expenses does not reduce the available liability limit.

We will fund the necessary premiums for appeal bonds or bonds required to release property attachments associated with the defended litigation.

B. However, our obligation to fund these bond premiums is strictly limited to the portion of the bond that corresponds to the available limit.

We are under no obligation to furnish the actual bond or provide collateral to secure the issuance of any required financial guarantees.

If a judicial verdict is rendered against your enterprise, we will manage the calculation and payment of applicable post-judgment interest.

Our responsibility for post-judgment interest applies only to the portion of the judgment that falls within the available scheduled limit.

C. This interest obligation ceases immediately once we have paid, offered to pay, or deposited our respective portion of the judgment with the court.

In scenarios involving multiple protected entities, the allocation of defense expenses requires careful administrative coordination and oversight.

If both your organization and an additional scheduled entity are named in the same lawsuit, we will typically appoint a single defense firm.

The appointment of unified counsel is designed to streamline the defense strategy and minimize redundant legal expenditures during the proceedings.

If a legally recognized conflict of interest prevents unified representation, we will allocate separate counsel for each protected entity.

D. The costs associated with separate legal representation will be managed in accordance with the standard expense protocols established by our organization.

When a liability demand triggers protection under multiple distinct insurance contracts, a formal coordination of benefits process must be initiated.

You are required to promptly disclose the existence of any other active insurance policies that may apply to the reported incident.

We will analyze the respective provisions of all applicable contracts to determine the appropriate priority of financial responsibility.

If this contract is determined to provide primary protection, we will administer the defense and fund the associated expenses accordingly.

E. If this contract is determined to provide excess protection, our financial obligations will not commence until the primary limits are fully exhausted.

During the period of excess application, we retain the right to monitor the primary litigation but will not fund the active defense expenses.

We may voluntarily contribute to the defense costs in an excess capacity if we determine that such participation protects our financial interests.

Any voluntary contribution to defense expenses does not alter the fundamental priority of coverage or create an ongoing obligation to fund the litigation.

In situations where multiple primary policies exist, we will seek to allocate the defense expenses proportionally among the participating carriers.

F. This proportional allocation is typically based on the ratio of each carrier's available limit to the total available limits of all primary policies.

We reserve the right to initiate arbitration or legal proceedings against other carriers to enforce appropriate expense allocation and recovery.

Your organization must fully cooperate with our efforts to coordinate benefits and recover allocated expenses from other responsible insurance entities.

The administrative procedures outlined herein ensure the equitable distribution of legal costs while maintaining the integrity of the provided liability protection.

All expense payments and administrative allocations are subject to continuous internal audit to verify compliance with our litigation management standards.

PREMIUM COMPUTATION AND EXPOSURE VERIFICATION CONDITIONS

---

---

The premium amounts displayed on the initial declarations pages represent a provisional estimate derived from the anticipated operational metrics supplied at inception.

The first named insured assumes full responsibility for the prompt payment of all deposit premiums required to initiate this insurance contract.

Upon the expiration or cancellation of this agreement, the carrier retains the right to compute the final earned premium based on verified exposures.

If the final computed premium exceeds the initial deposit, the first named insured will receive a billing statement for the outstanding balance.

Should the verified final premium fall below the initial deposit, the carrier will issue a refund for the unearned portion of the payment.

The commercial enterprise must preserve all financial ledgers, tax filings, payroll registers, and sales receipts relevant to the calculation of operational exposure.

Records must be retained in their original format for a minimum period of three years following the termination date of this contract.

The carrier reserves the administrative authority to examine and audit the financial documentation of the business entity during regular operational hours.

This examination authority extends up to three years after the final expiration date or the effective date of any prior cancellation.

When remuneration serves as the primary exposure basis, the audit will capture all wages, bonuses, commissions, and substitute compensation provided to workers.

Overtime compensation may be subject to specific deductions only if the enterprise maintains separate and distinct accounting registers for those premium wages.

When gross sales serve as the rating foundation, the audit will evaluate all revenue generated from goods distributed and services rendered.

Returns, allowances, and applicable sales taxes collected for governmental entities may be excluded from the gross revenue calculation if documented properly.

For operations rated on the cost of subcontracted work, the enterprise must provide comprehensive ledgers detailing all disbursements to independent contractors.

The enterprise must secure and retain valid certificates of insurance from all independent contractors engaged during the active policy period.

Failure to furnish adequate certificates of insurance will result in the independent contractors being classified as direct employees for premium computation purposes.

The carrier may utilize industry standard estimation methodologies to determine final premium if the enterprise fails to provide adequate financial documentation.

Estimated audits carry a mandatory administrative penalty surcharge that will be appended to the final billing statement issued to the enterprise.

The first named insured possesses a limited window of thirty days to formally dispute the findings of any completed premium audit.

Formal disputes must be submitted in writing and must include alternative financial documentation supporting the revised exposure calculations proposed by the enterprise.

The carrier will review all timely audit disputes and issue a final determination regarding the appropriate exposure valuation within sixty days.

Undisputed audit balances must be remitted to the carrier within twenty days of the invoice date to avoid collection proceedings.

Delinquent audit balances may result in the immediate cancellation of any subsequent renewal policies currently in force with the carrier.

The acceptance of any premium payment by the carrier does not constitute a waiver of the right to demand full compliance with these conditions.

| Scheduled premiumSee declarations and premium schedules | Audit basisRecords described in the audit conditions |

1. This endorsement outlines the administrative framework governing installment payment schedules and the severe consequences of failing to remit timely premium payments.

The first named insured may elect to distribute the annual policy premium across multiple scheduled installments as explicitly specified at policy inception.

An administrative billing fee will be assessed on each installment invoice to cover the operational costs of processing multiple financial transactions.

This recurring billing fee is fully earned upon the generation of the invoice and is not subject to pro-rata refund upon policy cancellation.

2. Installment invoices will be generated and dispatched to the primary mailing address on file exactly twenty days prior to the scheduled due date.

Payment must be received and posted by our financial institution no later than the close of business on the specified installment due date.

Postal postmarks are not considered valid proof of timely payment; funds must be entirely cleared and available in our designated premium account.

If a scheduled installment is not received by the due date, a statutory notice of cancellation for non-payment will be issued immediately.

3. The formal cancellation notice will specify a future effective date, providing a brief statutory cure period as mandated by the applicable state jurisdiction.

Remitting the past due balance along with any applicable late fees prior to the cancellation effective date will maintain continuous liability coverage.

Should the cancellation effective date pass without full receipt of the required funds, the insurance contract will terminate automatically without further notice.

We are not obligated to accept partial premium payments, and any partial funds received may be returned without preventing the scheduled cancellation.

4. In the event a payment is returned for insufficient funds, the installment will be considered unpaid and immediate cancellation procedures will commence.

A standard returned check fee will be added to the outstanding balance and must be cleared before any reinstatement request is formally considered.

Reinstatement of a cancelled policy is strictly at our sole discretion and requires the submission of a signed statement of no known losses.

If policy reinstatement is granted, the first named insured may be required to pay the entire remaining annual premium balance in one lump sum.

5. Future installment billing privileges may be permanently revoked for accounts demonstrating a documented history of late payments or returned banking checks.

The minimum earned premium outlined in the declarations becomes immediately due and payable upon any mid-term cancellation initiated by the insured.

Any unearned premium resulting from a non-payment cancellation will be calculated on a pro-rata basis and applied directly to outstanding account balances.

If the unearned premium exceeds the outstanding balance, the difference will be refunded to the first named insured or the designated premium finance company.

6. Premium finance agreements executed by the insured do not alter our fundamental right to cancel the policy for non-payment of the financed installments.

We will fully recognize the legal power of attorney granted to a premium finance company to request policy cancellation on your behalf.

Notices dispatched to the designated premium finance company will be treated with the exact same administrative weight as notices sent directly to you.

All premium payments must be made in the lawful currency of the United States through approved and verifiable commercial banking channels.

7. Physical cash payments are strictly prohibited and will not be accepted at any corporate office or by any authorized field representative.

Endorsement premiums generated mid-term will be distributed evenly across the remaining scheduled installments for the current active policy period.

If the policy is fully paid at the time a mid-term endorsement generates additional premium, a separate and distinct invoice will be issued.

Failure to pay mid-term endorsement invoices carries the exact same cancellation consequences as failing to pay the initial deposit installments.

8. You are solely responsible for ensuring that your primary contact information remains current to avoid missed invoices and subsequent cancellation notices.

These specific billing conditions apply universally to all coverage parts and endorsements attached to this commercial general liability contract.

ADMINISTRATIVE CONDITIONS AND CONTRACTUAL OBLIGATIONS

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

A. This document constitutes the entire agreement between the commercial enterprise and the carrier regarding the provision of commercial liability insurance.

No modifications, amendments, or waivers of any policy provision will be considered valid unless formally issued by the carrier as a written endorsement.

The first named insured designated on the declarations page acts as the sole authorized representative for all entities protected under this agreement.

The carrier will direct all administrative correspondence, billing statements, and formal notices exclusively to the mailing address of the first named insured.

By accepting this policy, the first named insured affirms that all statements and representations made during the application process are entirely accurate.

B. The carrier has issued this policy in direct reliance upon the factual accuracy of the representations provided by the commercial enterprise.

Intentional misrepresentation or the concealment of material facts concerning the business operations may result in the immediate voiding of this insurance contract.

The first named insured may cancel this policy at any time by returning the original documents or providing advanced written notice of termination.

The carrier may cancel this policy by mailing a formal notice of termination to the first named insured at the last known address.

Cancellation for the non-payment of premium requires a minimum notice period of ten days prior to the effective date of the termination.

C. Cancellation for any reason other than non-payment requires a minimum notice period of thirty days prior to the effective date of termination.

If the policy is cancelled by the enterprise, the carrier will calculate the return premium utilizing the standard short-rate penalty computation method.

If the policy is cancelled by the carrier, the return premium will be calculated on a strictly proportional pro-rata basis without penalty.

These inspections are conducted solely for the purpose of determining insurability, evaluating operational hazards, and calculating appropriate premium charges.

D. The carrier does not warrant that the premises are safe, healthful, or in compliance with any local, state, or federal safety regulations.

The enterprise must promptly notify the carrier of any fundamental changes in ownership, management structure, or primary business operations.

The rights and duties established under this policy cannot be transferred to another entity without the express written consent of the carrier.

In the event of the death of the first named insured, the rights and duties will automatically transfer to the appointed legal representative.

The legal representative will possess the authority to act on behalf of the enterprise only while performing duties strictly related to the estate.

E. Until a legal representative is formally appointed, temporary authority will be granted to any individual maintaining temporary custody of the commercial property.

The enterprise must take all reasonable precautions to prevent further incidents or subsequent damages following any initial event that may trigger this policy.

The carrier will not be responsible for any subsequent damages resulting from the failure of the enterprise to implement reasonable preventative measures.

Any legal action initiated against the carrier must be commenced within two years following the date the disputed incident or damage occurred.

The enterprise must fully comply with all terms, conditions, and administrative requirements of this policy before initiating any legal action against the carrier.

F. In the event of multiple entities being designated as named insureds, the financial obligations regarding premium payment remain joint and several.

The carrier may elect not to renew this agreement by mailing a formal notice of non-renewal to the first named insured.

Notices of non-renewal will be dispatched at least thirty days prior to the scheduled expiration date of the current policy term.

Proof of mailing the cancellation or non-renewal notice to the designated address will serve as sufficient proof of notification under this contract.

Any specific state statutes that conflict with these administrative conditions will automatically supersede the printed text to ensure strict regulatory compliance.

APPLICATION OF SCHEDULED LIMITS AND AGGREGATE DEPLETION

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

The numerical values displayed on the limits schedule represent the absolute maximum financial responsibility assumed by the carrier under this specific contract.

These scheduled maximums apply regardless of the number of protected entities, the number of individuals injured, or the number of claims filed.

The general aggregate limit establishes the maximum amount the carrier will disburse for all combined incidents occurring during the active policy period.

This general aggregate maximum encompasses all financial responsibilities except those specifically allocated to the products and completed operations hazard category.

As disbursements are made to resolve qualifying incidents, the remaining available balance of the general aggregate limit is correspondingly depleted.

The products and completed operations aggregate limit functions independently and establishes a separate maximum for incidents arising from distributed goods or finished work.

Disbursements allocated to the products and completed operations category do not reduce the available balance of the general aggregate limit.

The each occurrence limit defines the maximum financial responsibility for all damages arising out of a single, continuous, or repeated exposure event.

The each occurrence limit remains subject to the available remaining balance of the applicable aggregate limit at the time the incident is resolved.

If multiple scheduled locations are designated on the declarations, the general aggregate limit may be modified to apply separately to each distinct premises.

The separate application of the aggregate limit per location must be explicitly authorized by a designated endorsement attached to the policy documents.

The personal and advertising injury limit establishes the maximum disbursement available for all offenses committed against any single person or organization.

This specific limit is also subordinate to the general aggregate limit and will be restricted by any prior depletion of that overall maximum.

This leased premises sub-limit applies strictly to the specific location where the enterprise maintains a formal lease agreement and conducts daily operations.

Incidents occurring outside the designated territory will not be evaluated against the scheduled limits unless a specific international endorsement is attached.

The concept of severability of interests ensures that the scheduled limits apply separately to each protected entity facing a formal claim.

However, the application of severability does not increase the absolute maximum limits of insurance available for any single occurrence or aggregate period.

If a single incident triggers multiple sub-limits, the carrier will not disburse an amount exceeding the highest applicable single limit of insurance.

The enterprise cannot combine or stack the limits of multiple consecutive policy periods to resolve a single, continuous exposure event.

Continuous exposure events spanning multiple policy periods will be assigned exclusively to the single policy period where the damage first became evident.

The carrier will provide written notification to the first named insured when any aggregate limit has been depleted by more than fifty percent.

A final written notification will be issued immediately upon the complete exhaustion of any aggregate limit scheduled on the declarations page.

The limits of insurance will automatically reset to their full scheduled value at the inception of each new annual renewal period.

Modifications to the scheduled limits requested mid-term will apply only to incidents occurring after the effective date of the approved change endorsement.

GENERAL CONDITIONS - CANCELLATION AND NONRENEWAL

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

1. The designated first named insured possesses the exclusive authority to initiate the cancellation of this commercial general liability contract.

Such termination requests must be submitted in writing to our primary administrative offices prior to the desired effective date.

We require advance written documentation indicating the precise future date when the termination of the insurance relationship should commence.

Telephone requests or verbal instructions conveyed through a retail broker do not satisfy the formal written notice requirement for cancellation.

2. If the first named insured terminates the contract, the final premium computation will typically follow short rate calculation methodologies.

We retain the right to cancel this policy if the required premium payments are not remitted by their designated due dates.

In the event of nonpayment, we will mail a written notice of cancellation to the first named insured at the address on file.

This nonpayment cancellation notice will be dispatched no fewer than ten days before the effective date of the policy termination.

3. Should we decide to cancel the policy for reasons other than nonpayment, we will provide a minimum of thirty days advance notice.

Acceptable reasons for carrier-initiated cancellation include material misrepresentation, substantial changes in the risk profile, or failure to comply with audit requirements.

The written notice of cancellation will clearly state the effective date of termination, at which point the policy period will officially end.

We will mail or deliver the cancellation notice to the primary mailing address shown in the commercial general liability declarations.

4. Proof of mailing obtained from the postal service will serve as sufficient evidence that the required notification was properly issued.

If the policy is canceled by us, the return premium will be calculated on a strict pro rata basis without penalty.

The cancellation will remain effective even if we have not yet tendered the return premium to the first named insured.

Return premium amounts will be sent directly to the first named insured or credited to their active billing account balance.

5. We also reserve the right to nonrenew this policy upon its expiration date by issuing a formal nonrenewal notification.

Notice of our intent not to renew will be mailed to the first named insured at least thirty days prior to expiration.

The nonrenewal notice will contain the specific reasons for our decision if mandated by the jurisdiction governing the policy issuance.

If state-specific amendatory endorsements prescribe longer notice periods for cancellation or nonrenewal, those extended timeframes will automatically supersede these standard provisions.

6. Any statutory requirements regarding the method of delivery, including certified mail mandates, will be strictly followed by our administrative departments.

Additional insureds or certificate holders will not receive direct cancellation notices from us unless explicitly required by a scheduled endorsement.

Reinstatement of a canceled policy is entirely at our discretion and requires the resolution of all outstanding premium balances.

7. A reinstated policy will maintain its original effective dates, provided the lapse in coverage is formally waived in writing by our underwriters.

If a cancellation notice is issued due to an audit dispute, the insured must resolve the discrepancy before the termination date.

Failure to provide requested payroll or sales records constitutes a material breach, justifying immediate initiation of the cancellation process.

We maintain the right to inspect the insured premises to verify that operations align with the classifications shown in the declarations.

8. Discovery of unclassified hazardous operations during an inspection may trigger an immediate mid-term cancellation notice subject to state regulatory guidelines.

The effective date of cancellation marks the absolute end of the policy period for all coverage parts and scheduled locations.

Subsequent claims arising from incidents occurring after the exact minute of cancellation will be unequivocally denied by our claims department.

AMENDATORY PROVISION - PREMIUM AUDIT AND EXPOSURE ACCOUNTING

THIS ENDORSEMENT CHANGES THE POLICY. PLEASE READ IT CAREFULLY.

A. This amendatory endorsement replaces the standard premium audit conditions applicable to the commercial general liability coverage part of this policy.

The premium amounts shown in the declarations and schedules are provisional estimates based on the exposure information you provided during application.

We will compute the final earned premium at the conclusion of each audit period using the actual exposure bases recorded during the term.

Exposure bases may include gross sales, payroll, cost of work, area, or other metrics specifically designated in the classification schedule.

You must maintain accurate and comprehensive records of all operations, transactions, and payrolls necessary for the precise calculation of final premium.

B. These accounting records must be preserved for a minimum of three years following the expiration or cancellation of the policy period.

We reserve the right to examine and audit your financial books and operational records as they relate to this commercial insurance contract.

Our right to conduct an audit extends throughout the active policy period and for up to three years after the policy ends.

The audit may be conducted at your primary business premises, through remote electronic submission, or by utilizing third-party accounting professionals.

You agree to cooperate fully with our auditors and provide requested documentation in a timely manner to facilitate the premium calculation.

C. If you fail to provide the necessary records, we may calculate the final premium based on a reasonable estimate of your exposures.

Estimated audits may utilize historical data, industry averages, or a mandatory percentage increase applied to the initial estimated exposure figures.

Once the audit is complete, we will issue a final premium adjustment statement detailing the actual exposures and the resulting premium calculation.

If the final earned premium exceeds the estimated premium previously billed, we will issue an invoice for the additional amount owed.

The first named entity is strictly responsible for the prompt payment of any additional premium generated by the final audit process.

D. Payment for audit balances is due within thirty days of the invoice date unless alternative payment arrangements have been explicitly approved.

If the final earned premium is less than the estimated premium already paid, we will promptly refund the excess amount to you.

Any return premium generated by an audit will first be applied to outstanding balances on this policy or other policies you hold.

We may conduct interim audits during the policy period if we determine that your business operations have expanded significantly since inception.

Interim audits allow us to adjust the estimated premium mid-term to prevent a substantial unexpected balance at the final annual audit.

E. The rates applied during the audit process will be those in effect at the inception of the policy period or the relevant endorsement date.

Classification codes assigned to your operations may be corrected during the audit if the actual business activities differ from the original application.

Reclassification may result in a different rate being applied to the exposure base, which will directly impact the final premium calculation.

If subcontractors are utilized in your operations, you must obtain and retain certificates of insurance demonstrating their independent liability coverage.

Failure to secure adequate proof of coverage from subcontractors may result in their payroll or cost being included in your premium calculation.

F. The inclusion of uninsured subcontractor costs in your audit will be treated as if they were direct employees for premium assessment purposes.

You must notify us within thirty days of any material change in your business operations that could alter the assigned classification codes.

Disputes regarding the final audit calculation must be submitted in writing within sixty days of receiving the premium adjustment statement.

Your written dispute must include specific documentation supporting your disagreement with the audited exposures or the applied classification codes.

While a dispute is pending, you remain obligated to pay the undisputed portion of the audit invoice by the original due date.

G. This amendatory condition supersedes any prior agreements regarding premium calculation and establishes the definitive procedure for determining final policy costs.

TERRITORIAL APPLICATION AND STATE PROVISIONS

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

The provisions of this policy apply exclusively to incidents, operations, or offenses that take place within the authorized geographic boundaries.

These boundaries generally encompass the United States of America, its incorporated territories and possessions, Puerto Rico, and the nation of Canada.

Operations conducted outside of these primary geographic areas are strictly excluded unless specifically addressed by a separate international endorsement.

International airspace and international waters are included only if the injury or damage occurs during direct travel between authorized jurisdictions.

Products manufactured or sold within the primary geographic boundaries may retain coverage if they are subsequently transported to foreign locations.

However, this product-related extension applies only if the original manufacturing or initial sale occurred within the authorized domestic territories.

Short-term international business travel by the named insured or their employees is accommodated under specific, limited circumstances outlined herein.

The activities of employees traveling abroad must be strictly limited to administrative, clerical, or executive duties on behalf of the insured.

Manual labor, construction activities, or physical service operations performed outside the authorized geographic boundaries will not receive liability protection.

Digital operations and internet activities present unique geographic challenges that require specific jurisdictional parameters for liability protection to apply.

Offenses related to electronic publications or digital advertising are considered to occur globally, provided the insured's business is based domestically.

Despite any global digital exposure, we require that any resulting litigation be formally filed and pursued within the authorized primary territories.

We will not participate in, fund, or recognize lawsuits brought in foreign courts or under the jurisdiction of foreign legal systems.

Any judgments, settlements, or legal costs awarded by tribunals outside the United States, its territories, Puerto Rico, or Canada are excluded.

If a lawsuit is filed domestically but involves international elements, we will evaluate the claim based strictly on domestic legal standards.

State-specific amendatory provisions may alter the application of these territorial rules depending on the primary mailing address of the named insured.

When state laws mandate broader geographic recognition for certain classes of business, those statutory requirements will supersede our standard limitations.

Currency fluctuations and international exchange rates will not alter the maximum financial limits scheduled in the commercial general liability declarations.

All premium calculations, audit adjustments, and claim settlements will be processed exclusively in the official currency of the United States.

If a domestic judgment involves foreign currency calculations, the exchange rate published on the date of the final judgment will apply.

Coverage is categorically suspended in any region, country, or territory subject to comprehensive trade sanctions or embargoes by the federal government.

We will not process payments or provide legal resources if doing so would violate established economic sanctions or international trade restrictions.

The insured must ensure that their export activities comply with all federal regulations regarding restricted nations and prohibited foreign entities.

Any liability arising from deliberate violations of international trade laws or customs regulations falls entirely outside the scope of this policy.

Vendors or distributors operating exclusively in foreign markets cannot be added as additional insureds under this domestic liability framework.

Cross-border transportation of hazardous materials requires specialized documentation and may be subject to strict territorial exclusions at the border crossing.

Incidents occurring at border checkpoints or customs facilities will be evaluated based on the exact physical location of the occurrence.

The burden of proof rests on the insured to demonstrate that an incident occurred within the authorized geographic boundaries.

Location schedules attached to the declarations dictate the primary premises, but the territorial rules govern off-site operations and mobile equipment.

Ambiguities regarding the exact location of an incident will be resolved by referencing official geographic coordinates and established international borders.

Maintaining accurate records of international shipments and employee travel is essential for determining the applicability of these territorial provisions.

INTERPRETATION OF POLICY PROVISIONS AND CONFLICTING FORMS

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

1. This commercial general liability contract is a composite document consisting of declarations, schedules, broad coverage parts, conditions, and specialized endorsements.

When evaluating the scope of protection, the policy must be read as a complete, integrated instrument rather than isolated independent clauses.

The declarations pages serve as the primary index, identifying the specific forms, limits, and classifications that apply to the scheduled operations.

2. Classification and territory entries are used primarily for rating purposes and do not independently determine or expand the scope of coverage.

The applicable coverage part, scheduled limit, specific exclusion, and attached endorsement must always be read in conjunction with the declarations.

In the event of a direct contradiction between the main coverage form and an attached endorsement, the endorsement will generally control.

Endorsements are designed to tailor the generic policy language to the specific risk profile and operational needs of the named insured.

3. A form listed for an exposure item may apply exclusively to the scheduled operation, specific location, or completed-operations hazard shown.

Broad exclusionary endorsements take precedence over any implied protections found within the standard definitions or insuring agreements of the base forms.

If multiple exclusionary endorsements apply to a single incident, the most restrictive language will dictate the final determination of the claim.

Schedule entries containing specific location addresses limit the application of certain forms to operations conducted strictly at those designated premises.

4. When a specific provision conflicts with a general provision within the same document, the specific provision will be given interpretive priority.

State amendatory endorsements are attached to ensure the policy complies with the unique statutory and regulatory requirements of the governing jurisdiction.

If any standard policy language conflicts with a mandatory state amendatory endorsement, the state-specific provisions will automatically override the standard text.

We continuously monitor legislative changes, but if a policy clause violates current law, it will be enforced as if appropriately amended.

5. The severability of interests clause ensures that the policy applies separately to each insured against whom a formal claim is brought.

However, this severability principle does not increase the maximum aggregate limits or per-occurrence limits scheduled in the commercial liability declarations.

SECTION HEADINGS, TITLES, AND FORMATTING CHOICES ARE PROVIDED SOLELY FOR NAVIGATIONAL CONVENIENCE AND DO NOT ALTER THE ACTUAL CONTRACTUAL OBLIGATIONS.

The use of bold text or quotation marks indicates that a word or phrase is specifically defined within the policy definitions section.

Undefined terms will be interpreted according to their standard, everyday dictionary meanings within the context of commercial insurance industry practices.

6. Any typographical errors or formatting inconsistencies discovered in the policy documents will not invalidate the clear intent of the underwriting agreement.

The named insured is responsible for reviewing all schedules, forms, and endorsements immediately upon receipt to ensure accuracy and completeness.

Discrepancies between the requested coverage and the issued policy documents must be reported to our administrative offices within thirty days.

We rely entirely on the accuracy of the information provided during the application process when assembling these specific policy forms.

7. Material misrepresentations regarding the nature of the business may render certain coverage forms inapplicable or void the policy in its entirety.

When an endorsement removes a specific exclusion, it does not automatically grant coverage if another unamended exclusion applies to the situation.

The reinstatement of a previously excluded peril requires explicit affirmative language within the endorsement, not merely the deletion of negative text.

Our claims department relies on the exact edition dates of the forms attached to the policy when evaluating incident reports.

8. Prior editions or outdated industry standard forms hold no interpretive weight if they differ from the specific versions scheduled herein.

Final authority regarding the interpretation of conflicting forms rests with the established legal precedents of the jurisdiction governing this insurance contract.

GENERAL LIABILITY RATING AND EXPOSURE CONDITIONS

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

A. The commercial general liability coverage provided by this contract relies upon the rating information scheduled in the declarations.

Classification codes group similar business operations to ensure that the rates applied reflect the anticipated hazards of the enterprise.

The assignment of a classification code does not independently grant or restrict the scope of liability protection afforded by this contract.

Coverage applicability must always be determined by reading the designated coverage part alongside the relevant endorsements and exclusions.

B. Territories are geographic designations that influence the base rates utilized during the premium computation process.

Operations conducted outside the designated territory parameters may be subject to different rating factors or may fall outside the scope of protection.

Exposure bases represent the quantitative metric against which the assigned rate is multiplied to yield the premium charge.

Common exposure bases include gross sales, payroll, cost of work, area, and unit counts, as designated in the rating schedule.

When gross sales serve as the exposure basis, the calculation includes the entire amount charged for goods and services provided.

C. Certain deductions from gross sales, such as returns and allowances, may be permitted if documented in the financial records.

Payroll exposure bases require the inclusion of all remuneration paid to employees, including bonuses, commissions, and substitute compensation.

Cost of work exposure bases generally apply to contracting operations and encompass the total cost of all labor, materials, and equipment.

The cost of subcontracted work must be included in the exposure calculation unless a specific exception is noted in the schedule.

The initial premium shown on the declarations is an estimate based on the anticipated exposures for the upcoming annual period.

D. At the conclusion of the term, a final premium computation will be performed based on the actual exposures realized during the year.

The named insured assumes a strict obligation to maintain accurate and detailed records of all information necessary for this final computation.

These records must segregate exposures by classification code, location number, and territory to facilitate accurate rate application.

We reserve the right to examine and audit the financial books and operational records of the enterprise at any time during the term.

This audit privilege extends for a period of up to three years following the final termination or expiration of the contract.

E. If the final audited premium exceeds the estimated deposit premium, the named insured will be billed for the remaining balance.

Should the audited premium fall below the estimated deposit amount, a refund of the unearned portion will be issued promptly.

Failure to cooperate with the audit process or failure to provide adequate records may result in the application of a maximum estimated premium.

Material changes in the nature of the business operations must be reported immediately to ensure correct classification and rating.

The introduction of new product lines, services, or operational locations constitutes a material change requiring notification.

F. We retain the authority to reclassify operations and adjust rates retroactively if the original scheduling was based on inaccurate representations.

The rates applied for products-completed operations hazards are distinct from the premises and ongoing operations rates.

This separation ensures that the distinct long-tail liabilities associated with completed work are adequately measured and funded.

Any dispute regarding the final premium calculation must be submitted in writing within thirty days of the final billing statement.

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

The limits of insurance specified in the declarations dictate the maximum financial responsibility assumed under this commercial general liability contract.

The General Aggregate limit represents the absolute ceiling for all damages payable during a single annual term, excluding specific designated hazards.

Payments made to resolve claims or satisfy judgments steadily erode the General Aggregate balance available for subsequent incidents.

Once the General Aggregate limit is completely exhausted by the payment of damages, all associated protection ceases immediately.

The Products-Completed Operations Aggregate limit operates independently from the General Aggregate and applies strictly to the corresponding hazard.

Damages arising from goods manufactured, sold, or distributed, as well as work that has been finished, erode this separate aggregate.

The classification of a claim into either the general operations category or the completed operations category determines which aggregate is depleted.

The Each Occurrence limit establishes the maximum payable amount for any single event or series of continuous and repeated exposures.

This occurrence cap applies independently to every distinct incident, provided the relevant aggregate limit has not yet been exhausted.

If a single occurrence triggers damages that exceed this per-event cap, the remainder of the financial burden falls outside the contract scope.

The Personal and Advertising Injury limit restricts the payable damages for offenses such as libel, slander, or copyright infringement.

This specific limit applies per person or organization offended, rather than per occurrence, subject always to the overarching General Aggregate.

Medical payments limits, if scheduled, are typically sub-limits that are included within, and not in addition to, the Each Occurrence maximum.

Damage to premises rented to the named insured is governed by a separate sub-limit applicable only to specific fire or water events.

The depletion of any limit is driven solely by the payment of damages and does not typically include the costs associated with legal defense.

Legal defense expenses are generally handled outside the limits of insurance unless a specific endorsement alters this standard arrangement.

In situations where defense costs are brought within the limits, every dollar spent on legal fees directly reduces the available aggregate.

The limits of insurance apply separately to each consecutive annual period and to any remaining period of less than twelve months.

If the term is extended by an endorsement for a fraction of a year, the limits do not automatically reinstate or increase.

The allocation of damages across multiple annual periods may be necessary when continuous injury spans several consecutive terms.

Under no circumstances will the limits of multiple consecutive contracts be stacked to artificially inflate the available financial protection.

When an injury is determined to have occurred over multiple terms, the maximum recovery is restricted to the highest single applicable limit.

The scheduling of limits relies on the accurate disclosure of all material operational risks at the inception of the contract.

Requests to increase the limits of insurance mid-term are subject to comprehensive underwriting review and require written approval.

Any approved increase in limits will only apply to occurrences that take place after the effective date of the modifying endorsement.

Deductibles or self-insured retentions, if applicable, must be satisfied by the named insured before any limit of insurance is accessed.

The application of a deductible does not increase the total limit of insurance available for the remainder of the claim.

We maintain the authority to settle any claim within the applicable limits without requiring the explicit consent of the named insured.

The exhaustion of the applicable aggregate limit immediately terminates our obligation to investigate, defend, or resolve any pending or future claims.

SEPARATION OF INSUREDS AND ADDITIONAL INSURED OPERATION

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

1. The commercial general liability contract clearly distinguishes between the primary named insured and other parties who may receive incidental protection.

The named insured is the entity explicitly listed on the declarations page and bears the primary administrative responsibilities for the contract.

These administrative duties include the payment of all premiums, the reporting of operational changes, and the maintenance of accurate exposure records.

Additional insureds are external individuals or organizations granted specific, limited protection through the attachment of a designated endorsement.

2. The protection afforded to an additional insured is strictly confined to the parameters outlined in the specific modifying form.

Commonly, additional insured status is granted to project owners, lessees, or general contractors who require protection arising from the named insured operations.

The scope of this external protection is generally limited to vicarious liability stemming directly from the acts or omissions of the named insured.

Independent acts of negligence committed solely by the additional insured are routinely excluded from the scope of the provided protection.

3. The separation of insureds provision ensures that the contract applies separately to each individual or entity claiming protection.

This severability principle means that a breach of a condition by one insured does not automatically void the protection for another innocent insured.

Furthermore, the separation of insureds allows one protected party to bring a valid claim against another protected party under the same contract.

Despite this cross-liability application, the separation provision does not multiply or increase the maximum limits of insurance available.

4. The Each Occurrence and applicable Aggregate limits remain fixed, regardless of how many insured entities are implicated in a single event.

Additional insured endorsements often distinguish between ongoing operations and the products-completed operations hazard.

To secure protection for liabilities arising after project completion, a specific completed operations additional insured endorsement must be attached.

5. Primary and non-contributory conditions are frequently requested by external parties seeking additional insured status on the contract.

When this condition is properly endorsed, the protection provided by this contract will respond before any other insurance available to the additional insured.

We will not seek contribution from the additional insured own liability policies if the primary and non-contributory requirement is met.

The granting of primary status is contingent upon the existence of a written contract requiring such an arrangement prior to the loss.

6. Every insured, whether named or additional, has independent duties in the event of an incident, claim, or legal proceeding.

Immediate written notice of any event that may result in a claim must be provided to the administrative processing center.

The failure of the named insured to provide notice does not excuse an additional insured from fulfilling their own reporting obligations.

All protected parties must cooperate fully in the investigation, settlement, or defense of the claim as requested by the claim administrators.

7. No insured may voluntarily make any payment, assume any obligation, or incur any expense without our prior written authorization.

Any unauthorized financial commitments made by an insured will be their sole responsibility and will not be reimbursed.

We are not obligated to provide separate notices of cancellation to additional insureds unless explicitly mandated by a specific endorsement.

8. The rights and duties of the named insured cannot be transferred to another party without our explicit written consent.

In the event of the named insured death or bankruptcy, temporary administrative rights may transfer to a legal representative.

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

A. The commercial general liability contract is constructed through a combination of base coverage forms, schedules, and modifying endorsements.

Endorsements are specialized forms that alter, restrict, or expand the provisions found within the standard base coverage documents.

When a conflict arises between the language in a base form and the language in an attached endorsement, the endorsement takes precedence.

Exclusionary endorsements are specifically designed to remove protection for certain hazards, activities, or exposures that fall outside the underwriting appetite.

The attachment of a specific exclusion supersedes any broad grant of protection that might otherwise appear to apply to the situation.

B. Exclusions are applied to eliminate overlapping protection that should be properly addressed by a different type of insurance contract.

For example, liabilities arising from the use of automobiles are excluded here because they belong on a commercial auto policy.

Similarly, obligations to injured employees are excluded from general liability because they are the domain of workers compensation frameworks.

Certain environmental hazards, such as the gradual release of pollutants or toxic chemicals, are subject to absolute exclusionary language.

Occupational disease exposures involving specific harmful substances like silica, asbestos, or heavy metals are routinely removed from the scope of protection.

C. Liabilities stemming from the unauthorized access to, or disclosure of, confidential personal information are excluded to avoid overlapping with cyber liability products.

Employment-related practices, including wrongful termination, discrimination, and workplace harassment, are explicitly excluded from the general liability framework.

The application of an exclusion is evaluated based on the proximate cause of the injury or damage, regardless of how the legal complaint is drafted.

If an excluded hazard is determined to be the primary driver of the loss, the entire claim may fall outside the scope of the contract.

Some exclusions contain specific exceptions that restore a limited degree of protection under very narrow, strictly defined circumstances.

D. The burden of proving that a claim falls within the broad grant of protection rests entirely upon the party seeking the financial benefit.

Conversely, the burden of proving that a specific exclusion applies to remove that protection rests with the administrative claim examiners.

Materiality plays a significant role in the evaluation of exclusions and the overall scope of the liability contract.

A material change in the risk profile, such as the introduction of a new excluded hazard, can severely impact the availability of protection.

Endorsements must be properly scheduled on the declarations or a supplementary forms list to be considered a valid part of the contract.

E. The edition date of each form and endorsement is critical for determining the exact contractual language in effect at the time of the loss.

Insurance forms are periodically updated by regulatory and advisory organizations to address emerging legal precedents and shifting risk landscapes.

The specific edition date listed in the schedule controls the interpretation of the provision, even if a newer version exists in the marketplace.

Upon renewal of the annual term, outdated forms may be replaced with newer editions, potentially altering the scope of the exclusions.

The named insured is responsible for reviewing the schedule of forms and endorsements at each renewal to understand any reduction in protection.

F. Notices of material reduction are provided during the renewal process to highlight significant changes to the exclusionary language.

Severability clauses within certain exclusions may preserve protection for one insured party even if the exclusion applies strictly to another.

However, absolute exclusions generally apply to all insured parties uniformly, regardless of their individual involvement in the excluded activity.

Any modification to an exclusionary endorsement requires mutual agreement and the issuance of a revised schedule by the underwriting department.

Verbal agreements or representations made by brokers cannot override the written exclusionary language contained within the scheduled endorsements.

---

---

The provisions contained within this section establish the mandatory administrative procedures following any incident that may invoke coverage under this contract.

Strict adherence to these reporting protocols serves as a fundamental condition precedent to the availability of any liability protection provided herein.

You must implement internal organizational procedures to ensure that your management personnel are promptly made aware of any potential liability events.

Upon becoming aware of an event that could reasonably result in a liability demand, written notification must be transmitted to our claims department.

This initial notification must be dispatched as soon as practicable, regardless of whether a formal demand for compensation has been received.

The written incident report must include specific details regarding the time, date, and physical location where the unexpected event occurred.

You must also provide a comprehensive description of the circumstances surrounding the event, including the nature of the activities being performed.

The names, addresses, and contact information of any injured parties must be documented and submitted alongside the initial incident report.

If any witnesses were present during the event, their identifying information and contact details must also be secured and forwarded to us.

In the event that a formal legal demand or lawsuit is initiated against your organization, immediate notification is strictly required.

You must immediately record the date and time of receipt for any legal summons, complaint, or formal demand letter delivered to you.

All corresponding legal documents, correspondence, and related materials must be forwarded to our designated claims administration office without any delay.

Under no circumstances should you or any of your representatives voluntarily make any financial payments or assume any legal obligations.

Any voluntary assumption of liability or independent settlement offers made without our prior written consent will not be reimbursed under this contract.

You are strictly prohibited from incurring any independent expenses related to the incident, other than for immediate first aid at the scene.

The preservation of physical evidence related to the incident is a critical responsibility that falls entirely upon your organization.

You must take all reasonable steps to secure the incident scene and prevent any spoliation or alteration of relevant physical materials.

Photographic or video documentation of the incident location should be captured immediately, provided it is safe and legally permissible to do so.

Any equipment, machinery, or products involved in the event must be segregated and maintained in their immediate post-incident condition.

Failure to preserve critical evidence may severely prejudice the investigation and could result in the forfeiture of available liability protection.

If the incident involves potential criminal activity, such as theft or vandalism, you must promptly notify the appropriate local law enforcement authorities.

A copy of the official police report must be obtained and submitted to our claims department as part of your reporting obligations.

You must establish a centralized point of contact within your organization to facilitate all communications with our assigned claims professionals.

This designated representative must possess the authority to access necessary records and coordinate internal responses to our investigative inquiries.

All subsequent developments related to the reported incident must be communicated to our office in a timely and transparent manner.

You must not engage in any independent discussions regarding liability or settlement with the claimant or their legal representatives.

Any inquiries received from third-party investigators, media personnel, or opposing counsel must be immediately directed to our claims administration team.

Compliance with these reporting duties does not automatically guarantee that the reported event falls within the scope of available liability protection.

We reserve the authority to evaluate all submitted information to determine the applicability of specific coverage parts, exclusions, and limitations.

Your failure to fulfill these initial reporting obligations may result in a formal declination of coverage for the specific incident in question.

LITIGATION MANAGEMENT AND DEFENSE ADMINISTRATION

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

1. Our organization assumes the exclusive authority to manage the legal response to any qualified liability demand presented against your enterprise.

This authority encompasses the complete direction of all litigation strategies, settlement negotiations, and the selection of appropriate legal representation.

When a qualified legal action is initiated, we will appoint legal counsel to represent your interests in the pending judicial proceedings.

The selection of the defense attorney remains entirely within our discretion, utilizing our network of approved legal professionals and specialized firms.

2. You may request the appointment of specific counsel; however, we are under no obligation to honor such requests unless mandated by jurisdiction.

The appointed legal counsel will focus solely on defending the allegations that fall within the scope of this commercial liability contract.

We maintain the authority to investigate any claim or suit at our discretion, utilizing internal personnel or independent investigative resources.

During the course of the litigation, we will determine the most appropriate legal strategy to mitigate potential financial exposures.

3. We possess the unilateral authority to negotiate and finalize the settlement of any claim or suit without requiring your explicit consent.

Our settlement decisions are based on a comprehensive evaluation of liability exposure, anticipated litigation costs, and jurisdictional venue factors.

If we determine that a negotiated resolution is the most prudent course of action, we will execute the settlement on your behalf.

Our obligation to provide legal representation ceases immediately upon the exhaustion of the applicable limit scheduled in the policy declarations.

4. Once the relevant limit has been entirely depleted through the payment of judgments or settlements, we will withdraw from the defense.

You will be formally notified in writing when the applicable limit is approaching exhaustion and when it has been fully depleted.

Following the depletion of the limit, the responsibility for funding any ongoing legal representation transfers entirely to your organization.

In situations where a lawsuit contains both covered allegations and allegations excluded by this contract, we will provide a defense for the entire action.

5. However, we reserve the right to issue a formal reservation of rights regarding the specific allegations that fall outside the coverage scope.

This reservation of rights ensures that our provision of a defense does not constitute a waiver of our right to deny financial responsibility.

We will not provide financial reimbursement for any judgments or settlements associated with the uncovered portions of the legal action.

You retain the option to hire independent legal counsel, at your own expense, to monitor the litigation and advise you on uncovered exposures.

6. Any independent counsel retained by your organization must fully cooperate with the primary defense attorney appointed by our claims department.

The primary defense attorney retains ultimate control over the direction of the litigation and the presentation of the defense in court.

We will not reimburse any legal fees, consultation costs, or administrative expenses incurred by your independently retained legal counsel.

If a conflict of interest arises that legally requires the appointment of independent defense counsel, we will fund such representation at prevailing rates.

7. The prevailing rates for independent counsel will be determined based on standard legal fees for similar litigation within the specific geographic venue.

We require the independent counsel to adhere to our standard litigation management guidelines and billing protocols throughout the duration of the case.

Any failure by the independent counsel to comply with these administrative guidelines may result in the reduction or denial of fee reimbursements.

The administration of the defense process is designed to protect both your organizational assets and our financial interests under this contract.

8. We will keep your designated organizational representative reasonably informed regarding significant developments and major strategic decisions during the litigation process.

Ultimately, the final determination regarding trial progression versus settlement resolution rests exclusively with our claims administration personnel.

POLICYHOLDER NOTICE REGARDING CLAIM REPORTING AND LATE NOTICE

POLICYHOLDER NOTICE - INFORMATION ABOUT YOUR POLICY

A. This important policyholder notice outlines your strict obligations regarding the prompt reporting of occurrences, offenses, claims, and suits under this policy.

Timely notification is a fundamental condition precedent to coverage and is critical to our ability to investigate and defend liability claims effectively.

You must notify us as soon as practicable of any occurrence or offense which may reasonably be expected to result in a liability claim.

An occurrence includes any accident, continuous exposure to harmful conditions, or unexpected event that causes bodily injury or property damage.

Your initial notice to us should include the precise time, exact location, and detailed circumstances surrounding the incident or alleged offense.

B. You must also provide the names, contact information, and addresses of any injured persons and all available witnesses to the event.

Notice of an occurrence or offense does not constitute a formal claim, but it preserves your rights under the policy while we monitor the situation.

If a formal claim is made or a legal suit is brought against any insured, you must record the specifics of the demand and the date received.

You must immediately forward to us copies of any legal demands, summonses, notices, or other judicial process received in connection with the claim.

Delaying the transmission of legal documents can result in default judgments, severely prejudicing our ability to defend your organization in court.

C. You are required to authorize us to obtain essential records, medical reports, and other critical information necessary to evaluate the liability exposure.

Every insured must cooperate fully with us in the investigation, settlement, or defense of any claim or suit brought under this coverage part.

Cooperation includes attending hearings, participating in depositions, assisting in securing evidence, and facilitating the attendance of crucial witnesses.

No insured may voluntarily make any payment, assume any financial obligation, or incur any expense without our prior explicit written consent.

Any voluntary payments or settlements made by an insured without our authorization will be entirely at the insured's own personal or corporate expense.

D. The only exception to the prohibition on voluntary payments is for first aid administered to others at the immediate time of an accident.

Failure to report an occurrence, claim, or suit promptly may result in a complete denial of coverage for the delayed matter.

We evaluate late notice situations based on whether the delay materially prejudiced our ability to investigate the facts or mount a proper defense.

Material prejudice occurs when critical evidence is lost, witnesses become unavailable, or the physical scene of the incident is substantially altered.

We strongly recommend establishing internal corporate protocols to ensure that all frontline employees report incidents immediately to your designated risk manager.

E. Your risk manager or designated representative should be explicitly tasked with forwarding all incident reports directly to our claims department without delay.

Claims may be reported to us via our dedicated toll-free telephone hotline, through our secure online portal, or via certified mail.

When reporting a claim, please have your complete policy number, effective dates, and a summary of the incident readily available for the intake representative.

Upon receipt of your notice, we will assign a dedicated claims professional who will contact you to initiate the formal investigation process.

The assigned claims professional will serve as your primary point of contact and will guide you through the subsequent phases of the litigation or settlement.

F. We reserve the exclusive right to investigate any reported occurrence and to settle any resulting claim or suit at our sole discretion.

Our decision to investigate an incident or provide a preliminary defense does not waive our right to deny coverage later if exclusions apply.

If we determine that a reported claim falls outside the scope of your coverage, we will issue a formal written declination outlining our reasoning.

In situations where coverage is questionable, we may agree to defend the suit under a strict reservation of rights pending further factual discovery.

A reservation of rights letter will specify the exact policy provisions, exclusions, or conditions that may ultimately preclude indemnification for the loss.

G. Please review this notice carefully with your management team to ensure complete understanding of your reporting responsibilities under this commercial insurance contract.

Direct any questions regarding these reporting procedures to your authorized broker or our customer service department prior to the occurrence of a loss.

DEFENSE EXPENSE ALLOCATION AND CLAIM ADMINISTRATION

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

This section details the financial frameworks concerning the administration of legal expenses and the allocation of associated administrative costs.

These allocated expenses typically include attorney fees, court filing costs, expert witness retainers, and specialized forensic investigation charges.

Unless explicitly modified by a separate schedule, the payment of these allocated loss adjustment expenses does not reduce the available liability limit.

We will fund the necessary premiums for appeal bonds or bonds required to release property attachments associated with the defended litigation.

However, our obligation to fund these bond premiums is strictly limited to the portion of the bond that corresponds to the available limit.

We are under no obligation to furnish the actual bond or provide collateral to secure the issuance of any required financial guarantees.

Any administrative expenses incurred by our internal claims personnel during the routine handling of the file are not charged to your organization.

If a judicial verdict is rendered against your enterprise, we will manage the calculation and payment of applicable post-judgment interest.

Our responsibility for post-judgment interest applies only to the portion of the judgment that falls within the available scheduled limit.

This interest obligation ceases immediately once we have paid, offered to pay, or deposited our respective portion of the judgment with the court.

In scenarios involving multiple protected entities, the allocation of defense expenses requires careful administrative coordination and oversight.

If both your organization and an additional scheduled entity are named in the same lawsuit, we will typically appoint a single defense firm.

The appointment of unified counsel is designed to streamline the defense strategy and minimize redundant legal expenditures during the proceedings.

If a legally recognized conflict of interest prevents unified representation, we will allocate separate counsel for each protected entity.

The costs associated with separate legal representation will be managed in accordance with the standard expense protocols established by our organization.

When a liability demand triggers protection under multiple distinct insurance contracts, a formal coordination of benefits process must be initiated.

You are required to promptly disclose the existence of any other active insurance policies that may apply to the reported incident.

We will analyze the respective provisions of all applicable contracts to determine the appropriate priority of financial responsibility.

If this contract is determined to provide primary protection, we will administer the defense and fund the associated expenses accordingly.

If this contract is determined to provide excess protection, our financial obligations will not commence until the primary limits are fully exhausted.

During the period of excess application, we retain the right to monitor the primary litigation but will not fund the active defense expenses.

We may voluntarily contribute to the defense costs in an excess capacity if we determine that such participation protects our financial interests.

Any voluntary contribution to defense expenses does not alter the fundamental priority of coverage or create an ongoing obligation to fund the litigation.

In situations where multiple primary policies exist, we will seek to allocate the defense expenses proportionally among the participating carriers.

This proportional allocation is typically based on the ratio of each carrier's available limit to the total available limits of all primary policies.

We reserve the right to initiate arbitration or legal proceedings against other carriers to enforce appropriate expense allocation and recovery.

Your organization must fully cooperate with our efforts to coordinate benefits and recover allocated expenses from other responsible insurance entities.

The administrative procedures outlined herein ensure the equitable distribution of legal costs while maintaining the integrity of the provided liability protection.

All expense payments and administrative allocations are subject to continuous internal audit to verify compliance with our litigation management standards.

PREMIUM COMPUTATION AND EXPOSURE VERIFICATION CONDITIONS

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

1. The premium amounts displayed on the initial declarations pages represent a provisional estimate derived from the anticipated operational metrics supplied at inception.

The first named insured assumes full responsibility for the prompt payment of all deposit premiums required to initiate this insurance contract.

Upon the expiration or cancellation of this agreement, the carrier retains the right to compute the final earned premium based on verified exposures.

2. If the final computed premium exceeds the initial deposit, the first named insured will receive a billing statement for the outstanding balance.

Should the verified final premium fall below the initial deposit, the carrier will issue a refund for the unearned portion of the payment.

Accurate record keeping is a fundamental condition of this insurance agreement and must be maintained diligently by the commercial enterprise.

The commercial enterprise must preserve all financial ledgers, tax filings, payroll registers, and sales receipts relevant to the calculation of operational exposure.

3. Records must be retained in their original format for a minimum period of three years following the termination date of this contract.

The carrier reserves the administrative authority to examine and audit the financial documentation of the business entity during regular operational hours.

This examination authority extends up to three years after the final expiration date or the effective date of any prior cancellation.

When remuneration serves as the primary exposure basis, the audit will capture all wages, bonuses, commissions, and substitute compensation provided to workers.

4. Overtime compensation may be subject to specific deductions only if the enterprise maintains separate and distinct accounting registers for those premium wages.

When gross sales serve as the rating foundation, the audit will evaluate all revenue generated from goods distributed and services rendered.

Returns, allowances, and applicable sales taxes collected for governmental entities may be excluded from the gross revenue calculation if documented properly.

For operations rated on the cost of subcontracted work, the enterprise must provide comprehensive ledgers detailing all disbursements to independent contractors.

5. The enterprise must secure and retain valid certificates of insurance from all independent contractors engaged during the active policy period.

Failure to furnish adequate certificates of insurance will result in the independent contractors being classified as direct employees for premium computation purposes.

The carrier may utilize industry standard estimation methodologies to determine final premium if the enterprise fails to provide adequate financial documentation.

Estimated audits carry a mandatory administrative penalty surcharge that will be appended to the final billing statement issued to the enterprise.

6. The first named insured possesses a limited window of thirty days to formally dispute the findings of any completed premium audit.

Formal disputes must be submitted in writing and must include alternative financial documentation supporting the revised exposure calculations proposed by the enterprise.

The carrier will review all timely audit disputes and issue a final determination regarding the appropriate exposure valuation within sixty days.

Undisputed audit balances must be remitted to the carrier within twenty days of the invoice date to avoid collection proceedings.

7. Delinquent audit balances may result in the immediate cancellation of any subsequent renewal policies currently in force with the carrier.

All premium computations are executed using the specific rates, territorial multipliers, and classification factors in effect at the inception of the term.

8. Mid-term endorsements modifying the scope of operations will result in pro-rata premium adjustments utilizing the rates applicable on the endorsement effective date.

The acceptance of any premium payment by the carrier does not constitute a waiver of the right to demand full compliance with these conditions.

CLASSIFICATION ASSIGNMENT AND EXPOSURE VALUATION RULES

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

A. Classification codes are assigned to the commercial enterprise based on the primary nature of the business operations conducted at the scheduled premises.

The classification schedule serves as the foundation for determining the appropriate rating factors and exposure bases utilized in the premium calculation process.

A single commercial location may be subject to multiple classification codes if the enterprise conducts distinctly separate and independent business operations.

The assignment of multiple classifications requires the enterprise to maintain strictly segregated payroll and revenue records for each distinct operational category.

If the enterprise fails to maintain segregated records, the carrier will assign the highest rated classification code to the entirety of the exposure.

B. Standard exception classifications, such as clerical office employees and outside sales personnel, may be assigned separately if their duties are strictly limited.

The carrier retains the exclusive authority to determine the final classification codes applicable to the commercial enterprise based on factual operational data.

If an inspection reveals a material deviation from the anticipated operations, the carrier will issue a retroactive endorsement correcting the classification schedule.

Material changes in business operations must be reported to the carrier immediately to ensure the proper classification codes are applied to the risk.

C. Territory assignments are determined by the physical address of the scheduled premises or the geographic region where the principal operations are executed.

Operations conducted outside the designated territory shown in the schedules may be subject to different rating multipliers or specific coverage restrictions.

When the exposure basis is designated as gross sales, the valuation includes all amounts charged for merchandise sold and services performed.

Inter-departmental transfers and internal accounting transactions do not constitute gross sales and are excluded from the final exposure valuation.

When the exposure basis is designated as payroll, the valuation encompasses the total remuneration distributed to all active employees and corporate officers.

D. Executive officer remuneration is subject to specific minimum and maximum valuation caps as determined by the prevailing state rating bureau guidelines.

When the exposure basis is designated as area, the valuation is calculated using the total square footage of the buildings occupied by the enterprise.

The area calculation includes all basements, storage facilities, and outbuildings utilized in connection with the primary commercial operations of the business.

When the exposure basis is designated as the cost of work, the valuation includes the total cost of all labor, materials, and equipment.

The cost of work valuation specifically encompasses all payments made to subcontractors, regardless of whether they provide their own materials or equipment.

E. The enterprise may not deduct the cost of materials supplied directly to subcontractors from the final cost of work exposure valuation.

Certain specialized classifications may utilize alternative exposure bases such as the number of admissions, total units produced, or specific event duration.

The precise definition of any alternative exposure basis will be detailed in a separate amendatory endorsement attached to the primary policy documents.

Classification descriptions are generalized summaries of typical business operations and do not explicitly define the parameters of the provided insurance protection.

The presence of a specific classification code on the schedule does not override any explicit exclusion or limitation contained within the policy text.

F. The carrier may reclassify the enterprise mid-term if a newly enacted regulatory statute alters the standard classification system utilized by the industry.

Any mid-term reclassification mandated by regulatory changes will be applied on a pro-rata basis from the effective date of the new statute.

The enterprise may request a formal review of their assigned classifications by submitting a detailed narrative description of their daily business activities.

The carrier will evaluate all classification review requests and issue a written determination affirming or modifying the current schedule within thirty days.

PERIODIC EXPOSURE REPORTING AND PREMIUM ADJUSTMENT

PREMIUM, AUDIT, AND ACCOUNTING CONDITIONS

| Scheduled premiumSee declarations and premium schedules | Audit basisRecords described in the audit conditions |

When the declarations indicate that premium is subject to periodic reporting, you must submit accurate exposure data at the specified contractual intervals.

Reporting intervals may be designated as monthly, quarterly, or semi-annually, depending entirely on the operational scale and classification volatility of your business.

Each exposure report must detail the gross sales, payroll, or other designated rating basis generated during the immediately preceding reporting period.

Reports must be submitted to our accounting department no later than the fifteenth calendar day of the month following the close of the period.

The submitted exposure figures will be multiplied by the rates shown in the rating schedule to calculate the earned premium for that specific period.

If the calculated earned premium exceeds the allocated portion of the advance deposit, a supplementary invoice will be generated and dispatched.

Supplementary invoices derived from periodic reports are due upon receipt and remain fully subject to standard non-payment cancellation procedures.

Accurate and timely reporting is a fundamental condition of this insurance contract and directly impacts the validity of the liability coverage provided.

Failure to submit a required exposure report by the deadline will result in an automatic administrative estimation of the period's earned premium.

Estimated premiums will be calculated at one hundred and fifty percent of the highest previously reported period or the initial policy estimate.

We reserve the absolute right to adjust the estimated premium once the actual delayed report is finally received and verified by our staff.

Chronic failure to submit timely exposure reports may result in the conversion of the policy to a fixed premium basis at our sole discretion.

If the policy is converted to a fixed basis, the annual premium will be recalculated using the maximum projected exposures without refund potential.

All submitted reports must be signed by an authorized financial officer certifying the absolute accuracy and completeness of the provided operational data.

Intentional underreporting of exposures constitutes material misrepresentation and may entirely void the coverage for claims arising during the affected reporting period.

In the event of a covered loss, if the most recent required report was not submitted, the maximum financial recovery may be strictly limited.

The recovery limitation will be proportional to the ratio of the last reported exposure against the actual exposure that should have been reported.

You must maintain underlying documentation supporting each submitted report for a minimum of three full years following the ultimate policy expiration.

We retain the right to conduct physical or virtual audits to verify the accuracy of any periodic report submitted during the active term.

Discrepancies discovered during a periodic audit will result in a retroactive premium adjustment spanning the entire affected policy period without exception.

If an audit reveals an underreporting variance exceeding ten percent, you will be entirely responsible for covering the administrative costs of the audit.

Overreporting discovered during an audit will result in a financial credit applied to future installments or a refund if the policy has expired.

The final premium for the policy period will be the sum of all adjusted periodic premiums, subject always to the stated minimum retained premium.

If the policy is cancelled mid-term, the final report must encompass all operational exposures generated up to the effective date of cancellation.

The final cancellation report must be submitted within thirty days of the termination date to facilitate the final accounting reconciliation process.

No unearned premium will be refunded until the final cancellation report has been received, processed, and verified by our accounting team.

Subsidiaries and newly acquired entities must be incorporated into the reporting cycle immediately upon acquisition or formal corporate formation.

Separate reports may be required for distinct locations or classifications if mandated by the specific rating schedule attached to the policy.

Electronic submission of reports through our designated secure portal is the preferred and primary method of compliance with this reporting condition.

Paper reports will only be accepted if prior written authorization has been explicitly granted by our billing administration department.

These reporting conditions modify the standard premium audit provisions and take absolute precedence in the event of any conflicting policy language.

APPLICATION OF SCHEDULED LIMITS AND AGGREGATE DEPLETION

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

1. The numerical values displayed on the limits schedule represent the absolute maximum financial responsibility assumed by the carrier under this specific contract.

These scheduled maximums apply regardless of the number of protected entities, the number of individuals injured, or the number of claims filed.

The general aggregate limit establishes the maximum amount the carrier will disburse for all combined incidents occurring during the active policy period.

This general aggregate maximum encompasses all financial responsibilities except those specifically allocated to the products and completed operations hazard category.

2. As disbursements are made to resolve qualifying incidents, the remaining available balance of the general aggregate limit is correspondingly depleted.

The products and completed operations aggregate limit functions independently and establishes a separate maximum for incidents arising from distributed goods or finished work.

Disbursements allocated to the products and completed operations category do not reduce the available balance of the general aggregate limit.

3. The each occurrence limit defines the maximum financial responsibility for all damages arising out of a single, continuous, or repeated exposure event.

The each occurrence limit remains subject to the available remaining balance of the applicable aggregate limit at the time the incident is resolved.

If multiple scheduled locations are designated on the declarations, the general aggregate limit may be modified to apply separately to each distinct premises.

The separate application of the aggregate limit per location must be explicitly authorized by a designated endorsement attached to the policy documents.

4. The personal and advertising injury limit establishes the maximum disbursement available for all offenses committed against any single person or organization.

This specific limit is also subordinate to the general aggregate limit and will be restricted by any prior depletion of that overall maximum.

Disbursements made under the medical expense sub-limit are automatically deducted from the available balance of the each occurrence limit.

5. The damage to premises rented to you limit establishes a specific maximum for fire-related incidents occurring at leased commercial facilities.

Incidents occurring outside the designated territory will not be evaluated against the scheduled limits unless a specific international endorsement is attached.

6. The concept of severability of interests ensures that the scheduled limits apply separately to each protected entity facing a formal claim.

However, the application of severability does not increase the absolute maximum limits of insurance available for any single occurrence or aggregate period.

If a single incident triggers multiple sub-limits, the carrier will not disburse an amount exceeding the highest applicable single limit of insurance.

The enterprise cannot combine or stack the limits of multiple consecutive policy periods to resolve a single, continuous exposure event.

7. Continuous exposure events spanning multiple policy periods will be assigned exclusively to the single policy period where the damage first became evident.

The carrier will provide written notification to the first named insured when any aggregate limit has been depleted by more than fifty percent.

A final written notification will be issued immediately upon the complete exhaustion of any aggregate limit scheduled on the declarations page.

Any supplementary payments or administrative expenses incurred by the carrier during the resolution process do not reduce the scheduled limits of insurance.

8. The limits of insurance will automatically reset to their full scheduled value at the inception of each new annual renewal period.

Modifications to the scheduled limits requested mid-term will apply only to incidents occurring after the effective date of the approved change endorsement.

GENERAL CONDITIONS - CANCELLATION AND NONRENEWAL

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

A. The designated first named insured possesses the exclusive authority to initiate the cancellation of this commercial general liability contract.

Such termination requests must be submitted in writing to our primary administrative offices prior to the desired effective date.

We require advance written documentation indicating the precise future date when the termination of the insurance relationship should commence.

Telephone requests or verbal instructions conveyed through a retail broker do not satisfy the formal written notice requirement for cancellation.

If the first named insured terminates the contract, the final premium computation will typically follow short rate calculation methodologies.

B. We retain the right to cancel this policy if the required premium payments are not remitted by their designated due dates.

In the event of nonpayment, we will mail a written notice of cancellation to the first named insured at the address on file.

This nonpayment cancellation notice will be dispatched no fewer than ten days before the effective date of the policy termination.

Should we decide to cancel the policy for reasons other than nonpayment, we will provide a minimum of thirty days advance notice.

Acceptable reasons for carrier-initiated cancellation include material misrepresentation, substantial changes in the risk profile, or failure to comply with audit requirements.

C. The written notice of cancellation will clearly state the effective date of termination, at which point the policy period will officially end.

We will mail or deliver the cancellation notice to the primary mailing address shown in the commercial general liability declarations.

Proof of mailing obtained from the postal service will serve as sufficient evidence that the required notification was properly issued.

If the policy is canceled by us, the return premium will be calculated on a strict pro rata basis without penalty.

The cancellation will remain effective even if we have not yet tendered the return premium to the first named insured.

D. Return premium amounts will be sent directly to the first named insured or credited to their active billing account balance.

We also reserve the right to nonrenew this policy upon its expiration date by issuing a formal nonrenewal notification.

Notice of our intent not to renew will be mailed to the first named insured at least thirty days prior to expiration.

The nonrenewal notice will contain the specific reasons for our decision if mandated by the jurisdiction governing the policy issuance.

If state-specific amendatory endorsements prescribe longer notice periods for cancellation or nonrenewal, those extended timeframes will automatically supersede these standard provisions.

E. Any statutory requirements regarding the method of delivery, including certified mail mandates, will be strictly followed by our administrative departments.

Additional insureds or certificate holders will not receive direct cancellation notices from us unless explicitly required by a scheduled endorsement.

F. If a cancellation notice is issued due to an audit dispute, the insured must resolve the discrepancy before the termination date.

We maintain the right to inspect the insured premises to verify that operations align with the classifications shown in the declarations.

Discovery of unclassified hazardous operations during an inspection may trigger an immediate mid-term cancellation notice subject to state regulatory guidelines.

The effective date of cancellation marks the absolute end of the policy period for all coverage parts and scheduled locations.

G. Subsequent claims arising from incidents occurring after the exact minute of cancellation will be unequivocally denied by our claims department.

ASSIGNMENT AND TRANSFER OF POLICY ADMINISTRATION

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

Rights and duties established under this commercial general liability contract cannot be transferred to another party without our written consent.

Any attempted assignment or transfer of policy benefits lacking our express written authorization shall be considered void and legally unenforceable.

The named insured cannot sell, assign, or otherwise transfer their interest in this insurance policy as part of a corporate transaction.

In the event of a merger or acquisition, the surviving entity does not automatically inherit the protections of this specific policy.

A formal request for transfer must be submitted to our underwriting department along with complete details of the proposed ownership change.

We reserve the absolute right to approve or deny any transfer request based on our evaluation of the new risk profile.

An exception to this strict prohibition exists in the event of the death of an individual designated as the first named insured.

If an individual named insured dies, their rights and duties are temporarily transferred to their legal representative or estate executor.

This temporary transfer of rights applies only while the legal representative is acting within the scope of their official duties.

Until a legal representative is formally appointed, anyone having proper temporary custody of the deceased insured's property assumes the policy duties.

The temporary custodian is bound by all policy conditions, including the obligation to report incidents and cooperate with our investigations.

Coverage for the legal representative or temporary custodian extends only to operations previously conducted by the deceased individual named insured.

No new business ventures or expanded operations initiated by the estate will be protected under the existing commercial liability framework.

Bankruptcy or insolvency of the insured does not relieve us of our obligations under this commercial general liability contract.

However, a bankruptcy trustee does not gain the authority to expand the scope of operations beyond those scheduled in the declarations.

The appointment of a receiver or liquidator requires immediate notification to our administrative offices to ensure proper policy documentation.

Premium payment obligations remain fully enforceable against the estate, the bankruptcy trustee, or the legal representative managing the insured entity.

Any pending premium audits will be directed to the legal representative, who must provide access to all necessary financial records.

The transfer of policy administration duties does not alter the applicable limits, exclusion parameters, or classification codes established at inception.

If a corporate named insured undergoes a name change without a change in ownership structure, an amendatory endorsement is required.

Name changes must be reported within thirty days to ensure continuous alignment between the policy documents and the legal entity.

The addition of new subsidiaries or newly formed organizations is governed by separate provisions and does not constitute a transfer.

We will not recognize any third-party claims of policy ownership based on private contractual agreements between the insured and outside entities.

Additional insured status must be achieved through specific endorsement scheduling rather than an attempted blanket assignment of the primary policy.

Any approved transfer of rights will be memorialized through a formal endorsement issued by our home office and attached to the policy.

The effective date of an approved transfer will be explicitly stated on the issued endorsement, superseding any prior private arrangements.

Following a transfer, the new first named insured assumes full responsibility for all past and future premium obligations and audit adjustments.

The new entity also inherits the responsibility to distribute cancellation notices or policy changes to any other scheduled insured parties.

AMENDATORY ENDORSEMENT - OCCURRENCE AND CONTINUOUS EXPOSURE CLARIFICATION

THIS ENDORSEMENT CHANGES THE POLICY. PLEASE READ IT CAREFULLY.

1. This amendatory document modifies the definitions and conditions related to occurrences and continuous exposures within the commercial general liability coverage part.

The purpose of this amendment is to clarify how multiple related incidents or ongoing conditions are evaluated for the application of limits.

An occurrence is defined as an accident, including continuous or repeated exposure to substantially the same general harmful conditions over time.

All bodily harm or property damage arising from continuous or repeated exposure to the same conditions will be deemed a single occurrence.

2. The date of the occurrence will be established as the date when the bodily harm or property damage first begins to manifest.

If the exposure spans multiple policy periods, only the policy in effect when the harm first manifested will respond to the claim.

This single-manifestation approach prevents the stacking of limits across multiple consecutive policy terms issued by our organization or our affiliated companies.

Once the applicable limit for the single occurrence is exhausted, our obligations regarding that specific continuous exposure are completely fulfilled.

3. We will not apportion liability across multiple policy years even if the harmful conditions persisted uninterrupted for an extended duration.

In the context of products-completed operations, all damages arising from the same defect in a product line constitute one single occurrence.

If multiple units of a defective product cause harm to different parties, all resulting claims will be grouped into a single occurrence.

The applicable limit for this grouped occurrence will be the limit in effect when the first instance of harm became evident.

4. This batch clause applies regardless of the number of claimants, the number of products sold, or the geographic distribution of the incidents.

You must notify us immediately if you become aware of a systemic defect that has the potential to generate multiple related claims.

Prompt notification allows us to establish the appropriate date of manifestation and assign the claims to the correct policy period.

If the harmful conditions result from a specific operational practice, all damages stemming from that practice are treated as one occurrence.

5. The determination of whether multiple incidents share substantially the same general harmful conditions will be based on factual investigation and engineering analysis.

We reserve the right to consolidate claims into a single occurrence if the underlying cause is identical across all reported incidents.

This consolidation impacts the application of the each occurrence limit shown in the limits schedule of the commercial general liability declarations.

Consolidating claims ensures that the maximum financial exposure for a single systemic issue is capped at the scheduled occurrence limit.

6. If a deductible applies to the coverage part, only one deductible amount will be subtracted from the total damages of the consolidated occurrence.

The application of a single deductible benefits the insured by limiting out-of-pocket expenses for a series of closely related liability claims.

This amendatory provision does not expand the scope of covered activities or override any specific exclusions scheduled on the policy.

Exclusions related to pollution, hazardous materials, or specific excluded operations remain fully effective regardless of the occurrence definition.

7. If a continuous exposure involves both covered and excluded causes, we will only address the portion of damages directly attributable to covered causes.

The burden of proving that damages resulted from a covered occurrence rather than an excluded condition rests entirely with the named entity.

We will not participate in the defense of claims where the continuous exposure is definitively linked to a scheduled exclusionary endorsement.

Any disputes regarding the consolidation of claims or the date of manifestation will be subject to the standard dispute resolution conditions.

8. This endorsement supersedes any previous definitions of occurrence found in the primary coverage forms or earlier amendatory documents.

Please consult the declarations and the limits schedule to verify the maximum financial parameters applicable to a single defined occurrence.

INTERPRETATION OF POLICY PROVISIONS AND CONFLICTING FORMS

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

A. This commercial general liability contract is a composite document consisting of declarations, schedules, broad coverage parts, conditions, and specialized endorsements.

When evaluating the scope of protection, the policy must be read as a complete, integrated instrument rather than isolated independent clauses.

The declarations pages serve as the primary index, identifying the specific forms, limits, and classifications that apply to the scheduled operations.

Classification and territory entries are used primarily for rating purposes and do not independently determine or expand the scope of coverage.

B. The applicable coverage part, scheduled limit, specific exclusion, and attached endorsement must always be read in conjunction with the declarations.

In the event of a direct contradiction between the main coverage form and an attached endorsement, the endorsement will generally control.

Endorsements are designed to tailor the generic policy language to the specific risk profile and operational needs of the named insured.

A form listed for an exposure item may apply exclusively to the scheduled operation, specific location, or completed-operations hazard shown.

Broad exclusionary endorsements take precedence over any implied protections found within the standard definitions or insuring agreements of the base forms.

C. If multiple exclusionary endorsements apply to a single incident, the most restrictive language will dictate the final determination of the claim.

Schedule entries containing specific location addresses limit the application of certain forms to operations conducted strictly at those designated premises.

When a specific provision conflicts with a general provision within the same document, the specific provision will be given interpretive priority.

State amendatory endorsements are attached to ensure the policy complies with the unique statutory and regulatory requirements of the governing jurisdiction.

If any standard policy language conflicts with a mandatory state amendatory endorsement, the state-specific provisions will automatically override the standard text.

D. We continuously monitor legislative changes, but if a policy clause violates current law, it will be enforced as if appropriately amended.

The severability of interests clause ensures that the policy applies separately to each insured against whom a formal claim is brought.

However, this severability principle does not increase the maximum aggregate limits or per-occurrence limits scheduled in the commercial liability declarations.

SECTION HEADINGS, TITLES, AND FORMATTING CHOICES ARE PROVIDED SOLELY FOR NAVIGATIONAL CONVENIENCE AND DO NOT ALTER THE ACTUAL CONTRACTUAL OBLIGATIONS.

The use of bold text or quotation marks indicates that a word or phrase is specifically defined within the policy definitions section.

Undefined terms will be interpreted according to their standard, everyday dictionary meanings within the context of commercial insurance industry practices.

E. Any typographical errors or formatting inconsistencies discovered in the policy documents will not invalidate the clear intent of the underwriting agreement.

The named insured is responsible for reviewing all schedules, forms, and endorsements immediately upon receipt to ensure accuracy and completeness.

Discrepancies between the requested coverage and the issued policy documents must be reported to our administrative offices within thirty days.

Material misrepresentations regarding the nature of the business may render certain coverage forms inapplicable or void the policy in its entirety.

F. When an endorsement removes a specific exclusion, it does not automatically grant coverage if another unamended exclusion applies to the situation.

GENERAL LIABILITY RATING AND EXPOSURE CONDITIONS

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

The commercial general liability coverage provided by this contract relies upon the rating information scheduled in the declarations.

The assignment of a classification code does not independently grant or restrict the scope of liability protection afforded by this contract.

Territories are geographic designations that influence the base rates utilized during the premium computation process.

Operations conducted outside the designated territory parameters may be subject to different rating factors or may fall outside the scope of protection.

Exposure bases represent the quantitative metric against which the assigned rate is multiplied to yield the premium charge.

Common exposure bases include gross sales, payroll, cost of work, area, and unit counts, as designated in the rating schedule.

When gross sales serve as the exposure basis, the calculation includes the entire amount charged for goods and services provided.

Certain deductions from gross sales, such as returns and allowances, may be permitted if documented in the financial records.

Payroll exposure bases require the inclusion of all remuneration paid to employees, including bonuses, commissions, and substitute compensation.

Cost of work exposure bases generally apply to contracting operations and encompass the total cost of all labor, materials, and equipment.

The cost of subcontracted work must be included in the exposure calculation unless a specific exception is noted in the schedule.

The initial premium shown on the declarations is an estimate based on the anticipated exposures for the upcoming annual period.

At the conclusion of the term, a final premium computation will be performed based on the actual exposures realized during the year.

The named insured assumes a strict obligation to maintain accurate and detailed records of all information necessary for this final computation.

These records must segregate exposures by classification code, location number, and territory to facilitate accurate rate application.

We reserve the right to examine and audit the financial books and operational records of the enterprise at any time during the term.

This audit privilege extends for a period of up to three years following the final termination or expiration of the contract.

If the final audited premium exceeds the estimated deposit premium, the named insured will be billed for the remaining balance.

Should the audited premium fall below the estimated deposit amount, a refund of the unearned portion will be issued promptly.

Failure to cooperate with the audit process or failure to provide adequate records may result in the application of a maximum estimated premium.

Material changes in the nature of the business operations must be reported immediately to ensure correct classification and rating.

The introduction of new product lines, services, or operational locations constitutes a material change requiring notification.

We retain the authority to reclassify operations and adjust rates retroactively if the original scheduling was based on inaccurate representations.

The rates applied for products-completed operations hazards are distinct from the premises and ongoing operations rates.

Any dispute regarding the final premium calculation must be submitted in writing within thirty days of the final billing statement.

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

1. The limits of insurance specified in the declarations dictate the maximum financial responsibility assumed under this commercial general liability contract.

The General Aggregate limit represents the absolute ceiling for all damages payable during a single annual term, excluding specific designated hazards.

Payments made to resolve claims or satisfy judgments steadily erode the General Aggregate balance available for subsequent incidents.

2. Once the General Aggregate limit is completely exhausted by the payment of damages, all associated protection ceases immediately.

The Products-Completed Operations Aggregate limit operates independently from the General Aggregate and applies strictly to the corresponding hazard.

Damages arising from goods manufactured, sold, or distributed, as well as work that has been finished, erode this separate aggregate.

The classification of a claim into either the general operations category or the completed operations category determines which aggregate is depleted.

3. The Each Occurrence limit establishes the maximum payable amount for any single event or series of continuous and repeated exposures.

This occurrence cap applies independently to every distinct incident, provided the relevant aggregate limit has not yet been exhausted.

If a single occurrence triggers damages that exceed this per-event cap, the remainder of the financial burden falls outside the contract scope.

The Personal and Advertising Injury limit restricts the payable damages for offenses such as libel, slander, or copyright infringement.

4. This specific limit applies per person or organization offended, rather than per occurrence, subject always to the overarching General Aggregate.

Medical payments limits, if scheduled, are typically sub-limits that are included within, and not in addition to, the Each Occurrence maximum.

Damage to premises rented to the named insured is governed by a separate sub-limit applicable only to specific fire or water events.

The depletion of any limit is driven solely by the payment of damages and does not typically include the costs associated with legal defense.

5. Legal defense expenses are generally handled outside the limits of insurance unless a specific endorsement alters this standard arrangement.

In situations where defense costs are brought within the limits, every dollar spent on legal fees directly reduces the available aggregate.

The limits of insurance apply separately to each consecutive annual period and to any remaining period of less than twelve months.

If the term is extended by an endorsement for a fraction of a year, the limits do not automatically reinstate or increase.

6. The allocation of damages across multiple annual periods may be necessary when continuous injury spans several consecutive terms.

Under no circumstances will the limits of multiple consecutive contracts be stacked to artificially inflate the available financial protection.

When an injury is determined to have occurred over multiple terms, the maximum recovery is restricted to the highest single applicable limit.

The scheduling of limits relies on the accurate disclosure of all material operational risks at the inception of the contract.

7. Requests to increase the limits of insurance mid-term are subject to comprehensive underwriting review and require written approval.

Any approved increase in limits will only apply to occurrences that take place after the effective date of the modifying endorsement.

Deductibles or self-insured retentions, if applicable, must be satisfied by the named insured before any limit of insurance is accessed.

The application of a deductible does not increase the total limit of insurance available for the remainder of the claim.

8. We maintain the authority to settle any claim within the applicable limits without requiring the explicit consent of the named insured.

The exhaustion of the applicable aggregate limit immediately terminates our obligation to investigate, defend, or resolve any pending or future claims.

SEPARATION OF INSUREDS AND ADDITIONAL INSURED OPERATION

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

A. The commercial general liability contract clearly distinguishes between the primary named insured and other parties who may receive incidental protection.

The named insured is the entity explicitly listed on the declarations page and bears the primary administrative responsibilities for the contract.

These administrative duties include the payment of all premiums, the reporting of operational changes, and the maintenance of accurate exposure records.

Additional insureds are external individuals or organizations granted specific, limited protection through the attachment of a designated endorsement.

The protection afforded to an additional insured is strictly confined to the parameters outlined in the specific modifying form.

B. Commonly, additional insured status is granted to project owners, lessees, or general contractors who require protection arising from the named insured operations.

The scope of this external protection is generally limited to vicarious liability stemming directly from the acts or omissions of the named insured.

Independent acts of negligence committed solely by the additional insured are routinely excluded from the scope of the provided protection.

The separation of insureds provision ensures that the contract applies separately to each individual or entity claiming protection.

This severability principle means that a breach of a condition by one insured does not automatically void the protection for another innocent insured.

C. Furthermore, the separation of insureds allows one protected party to bring a valid claim against another protected party under the same contract.

Despite this cross-liability application, the separation provision does not multiply or increase the maximum limits of insurance available.

The Each Occurrence and applicable Aggregate limits remain fixed, regardless of how many insured entities are implicated in a single event.

Additional insured endorsements often distinguish between ongoing operations and the products-completed operations hazard.

Protection for ongoing operations ceases the moment the specific project is finished or the named insured departs the job site.

D. To secure protection for liabilities arising after project completion, a specific completed operations additional insured endorsement must be attached.

Primary and non-contributory conditions are frequently requested by external parties seeking additional insured status on the contract.

When this condition is properly endorsed, the protection provided by this contract will respond before any other insurance available to the additional insured.

We will not seek contribution from the additional insured own liability policies if the primary and non-contributory requirement is met.

The granting of primary status is contingent upon the existence of a written contract requiring such an arrangement prior to the loss.

E. Every insured, whether named or additional, has independent duties in the event of an incident, claim, or legal proceeding.

Immediate written notice of any event that may result in a claim must be provided to the administrative processing center.

The failure of the named insured to provide notice does not excuse an additional insured from fulfilling their own reporting obligations.

All protected parties must cooperate fully in the investigation, settlement, or defense of the claim as requested by the claim administrators.

No insured may voluntarily make any payment, assume any obligation, or incur any expense without our prior written authorization.

F. Any unauthorized financial commitments made by an insured will be their sole responsibility and will not be reimbursed.

The rights and duties of the named insured cannot be transferred to another party without our explicit written consent.

In the event of the named insured death or bankruptcy, temporary administrative rights may transfer to a legal representative.

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

The commercial general liability contract is constructed through a combination of base coverage forms, schedules, and modifying endorsements.

Endorsements are specialized forms that alter, restrict, or expand the provisions found within the standard base coverage documents.

When a conflict arises between the language in a base form and the language in an attached endorsement, the endorsement takes precedence.

Exclusionary endorsements are specifically designed to remove protection for certain hazards, activities, or exposures that fall outside the underwriting appetite.

The attachment of a specific exclusion supersedes any broad grant of protection that might otherwise appear to apply to the situation.

Exclusions are applied to eliminate overlapping protection that should be properly addressed by a different type of insurance contract.

For example, liabilities arising from the use of automobiles are excluded here because they belong on a commercial auto policy.

Similarly, obligations to injured employees are excluded from general liability because they are the domain of workers compensation frameworks.

Certain environmental hazards, such as the gradual release of pollutants or toxic chemicals, are subject to absolute exclusionary language.

Occupational disease exposures involving specific harmful substances like silica, asbestos, or heavy metals are routinely removed from the scope of protection.

Liabilities stemming from the unauthorized access to, or disclosure of, confidential personal information are excluded to avoid overlapping with cyber liability products.

Employment-related practices, including wrongful termination, discrimination, and workplace harassment, are explicitly excluded from the general liability framework.

The application of an exclusion is evaluated based on the proximate cause of the injury or damage, regardless of how the legal complaint is drafted.

If an excluded hazard is determined to be the primary driver of the loss, the entire claim may fall outside the scope of the contract.

Some exclusions contain specific exceptions that restore a limited degree of protection under very narrow, strictly defined circumstances.

The burden of proving that a claim falls within the broad grant of protection rests entirely upon the party seeking the financial benefit.

Conversely, the burden of proving that a specific exclusion applies to remove that protection rests with the administrative claim examiners.

Materiality plays a significant role in the evaluation of exclusions and the overall scope of the liability contract.

A material change in the risk profile, such as the introduction of a new excluded hazard, can severely impact the availability of protection.

Endorsements must be properly scheduled on the declarations or a supplementary forms list to be considered a valid part of the contract.

The edition date of each form and endorsement is critical for determining the exact contractual language in effect at the time of the loss.

Insurance forms are periodically updated by regulatory and advisory organizations to address emerging legal precedents and shifting risk landscapes.

The specific edition date listed in the schedule controls the interpretation of the provision, even if a newer version exists in the marketplace.

Upon renewal of the annual term, outdated forms may be replaced with newer editions, potentially altering the scope of the exclusions.

The named insured is responsible for reviewing the schedule of forms and endorsements at each renewal to understand any reduction in protection.

Notices of material reduction are provided during the renewal process to highlight significant changes to the exclusionary language.

Severability clauses within certain exclusions may preserve protection for one insured party even if the exclusion applies strictly to another.

However, absolute exclusions generally apply to all insured parties uniformly, regardless of their individual involvement in the excluded activity.

Any modification to an exclusionary endorsement requires mutual agreement and the issuance of a revised schedule by the underwriting department.

Verbal agreements or representations made by brokers cannot override the written exclusionary language contained within the scheduled endorsements.

GENERAL LIABILITY CLAIM REPORTING AND INITIAL DUTIES

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

1. The provisions contained within this section establish the mandatory administrative procedures following any incident that may invoke coverage under this contract.

Strict adherence to these reporting protocols serves as a fundamental condition precedent to the availability of any liability protection provided herein.

You must implement internal organizational procedures to ensure that your management personnel are promptly made aware of any potential liability events.

Upon becoming aware of an event that could reasonably result in a liability demand, written notification must be transmitted to our claims department.

2. This initial notification must be dispatched as soon as practicable, regardless of whether a formal demand for compensation has been received.

The written incident report must include specific details regarding the time, date, and physical location where the unexpected event occurred.

You must also provide a comprehensive description of the circumstances surrounding the event, including the nature of the activities being performed.

The names, addresses, and contact information of any injured parties must be documented and submitted alongside the initial incident report.

3. If any witnesses were present during the event, their identifying information and contact details must also be secured and forwarded to us.

In the event that a formal legal demand or lawsuit is initiated against your organization, immediate notification is strictly required.

You must immediately record the date and time of receipt for any legal summons, complaint, or formal demand letter delivered to you.

All corresponding legal documents, correspondence, and related materials must be forwarded to our designated claims administration office without any delay.

4. Under no circumstances should you or any of your representatives voluntarily make any financial payments or assume any legal obligations.

Any voluntary assumption of liability or independent settlement offers made without our prior written consent will not be reimbursed under this contract.

You are strictly prohibited from incurring any independent expenses related to the incident, other than for immediate first aid at the scene.

The preservation of physical evidence related to the incident is a critical responsibility that falls entirely upon your organization.

5. You must take all reasonable steps to secure the incident scene and prevent any spoliation or alteration of relevant physical materials.

Photographic or video documentation of the incident location should be captured immediately, provided it is safe and legally permissible to do so.

Any equipment, machinery, or products involved in the event must be segregated and maintained in their immediate post-incident condition.

Failure to preserve critical evidence may severely prejudice the investigation and could result in the forfeiture of available liability protection.

6. If the incident involves potential criminal activity, such as theft or vandalism, you must promptly notify the appropriate local law enforcement authorities.

A copy of the official police report must be obtained and submitted to our claims department as part of your reporting obligations.

You must establish a centralized point of contact within your organization to facilitate all communications with our assigned claims professionals.

This designated representative must possess the authority to access necessary records and coordinate internal responses to our investigative inquiries.

7. All subsequent developments related to the reported incident must be communicated to our office in a timely and transparent manner.

You must not engage in any independent discussions regarding liability or settlement with the claimant or their legal representatives.

Any inquiries received from third-party investigators, media personnel, or opposing counsel must be immediately directed to our claims administration team.

Compliance with these reporting duties does not automatically guarantee that the reported event falls within the scope of available liability protection.

8. We reserve the authority to evaluate all submitted information to determine the applicability of specific coverage parts, exclusions, and limitations.

Your failure to fulfill these initial reporting obligations may result in a formal declination of coverage for the specific incident in question.

LITIGATION MANAGEMENT AND DEFENSE ADMINISTRATION

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

A. Our organization assumes the exclusive authority to manage the legal response to any qualified liability demand presented against your enterprise.

This authority encompasses the complete direction of all litigation strategies, settlement negotiations, and the selection of appropriate legal representation.

When a qualified legal action is initiated, we will appoint legal counsel to represent your interests in the pending judicial proceedings.

The selection of the defense attorney remains entirely within our discretion, utilizing our network of approved legal professionals and specialized firms.

You may request the appointment of specific counsel; however, we are under no obligation to honor such requests unless mandated by jurisdiction.

B. The appointed legal counsel will focus solely on defending the allegations that fall within the scope of this commercial liability contract.

We maintain the authority to investigate any claim or suit at our discretion, utilizing internal personnel or independent investigative resources.

During the course of the litigation, we will determine the most appropriate legal strategy to mitigate potential financial exposures.

We possess the unilateral authority to negotiate and finalize the settlement of any claim or suit without requiring your explicit consent.

Our settlement decisions are based on a comprehensive evaluation of liability exposure, anticipated litigation costs, and jurisdictional venue factors.

C. If we determine that a negotiated resolution is the most prudent course of action, we will execute the settlement on your behalf.

Our obligation to provide legal representation ceases immediately upon the exhaustion of the applicable limit scheduled in the policy declarations.

Once the relevant limit has been entirely depleted through the payment of judgments or settlements, we will withdraw from the defense.

You will be formally notified in writing when the applicable limit is approaching exhaustion and when it has been fully depleted.

Following the depletion of the limit, the responsibility for funding any ongoing legal representation transfers entirely to your organization.

D. In situations where a lawsuit contains both covered allegations and allegations excluded by this contract, we will provide a defense for the entire action.

However, we reserve the right to issue a formal reservation of rights regarding the specific allegations that fall outside the coverage scope.

This reservation of rights ensures that our provision of a defense does not constitute a waiver of our right to deny financial responsibility.

We will not provide financial reimbursement for any judgments or settlements associated with the uncovered portions of the legal action.

You retain the option to hire independent legal counsel, at your own expense, to monitor the litigation and advise you on uncovered exposures.

E. Any independent counsel retained by your organization must fully cooperate with the primary defense attorney appointed by our claims department.

The primary defense attorney retains ultimate control over the direction of the litigation and the presentation of the defense in court.

We will not reimburse any legal fees, consultation costs, or administrative expenses incurred by your independently retained legal counsel.

If a conflict of interest arises that legally requires the appointment of independent defense counsel, we will fund such representation at prevailing rates.

The prevailing rates for independent counsel will be determined based on standard legal fees for similar litigation within the specific geographic venue.

F. We require the independent counsel to adhere to our standard litigation management guidelines and billing protocols throughout the duration of the case.

Any failure by the independent counsel to comply with these administrative guidelines may result in the reduction or denial of fee reimbursements.

The administration of the defense process is designed to protect both your organizational assets and our financial interests under this contract.

We will keep your designated organizational representative reasonably informed regarding significant developments and major strategic decisions during the litigation process.

Ultimately, the final determination regarding trial progression versus settlement resolution rests exclusively with our claims administration personnel.

INVESTIGATION ASSISTANCE AND INSURED COOPERATION CONDITIONS

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

Your active and transparent participation in the fact-finding process is a mandatory requirement for the continuation of any liability protection.

The administrative framework of this contract relies upon your full cooperation to accurately assess the circumstances surrounding any reported incident.

When requested by our claims personnel, you must promptly provide access to all relevant organizational records, documents, and electronic data.

This includes, but is not limited to, employee training logs, maintenance schedules, operational manuals, and internal incident investigation reports.

You must facilitate interviews between our investigators and any of your employees, contractors, or agents who may possess relevant knowledge.

These interviews may be conducted in person, via telephone, or through virtual platforms, depending on the logistical requirements of the investigation.

If we deem it necessary, you and your employees must submit to formal examinations under oath regarding the details of the incident.

These examinations under oath will be recorded, and you may be required to sign a transcript verifying the accuracy of your statements.

You must assist our representatives in securing physical evidence and identifying third-party witnesses who can corroborate your version of events.

When requested, you must grant our investigators and retained experts unrestricted access to the physical premises where the incident occurred.

This access is necessary to conduct site inspections, take precise measurements, and perform forensic evaluations of the incident location.

During the course of any formal legal proceedings, your ongoing cooperation remains a critical condition of the provided defense services.

You must attend all required legal hearings, depositions, mediation sessions, and trial proceedings as directed by the appointed defense counsel.

Your organization must ensure that key personnel are available to testify truthfully and accurately regarding the facts of the case.

We will reimburse your organization for reasonable travel expenses and lost earnings incurred directly as a result of attending these required proceedings.

The maximum daily reimbursement rate for lost earnings is strictly capped at the amount specified in the administrative schedules.

You are expressly prohibited from taking any actions that might prejudice our ability to defend the claim or negotiate a favorable settlement.

Any intentional misrepresentation of facts, concealment of evidence, or collusion with the claimant will result in the immediate forfeiture of protection.

You must not enter into any agreements with third parties that attempt to assign liability or alter the legal dynamics of the claim.

If you possess any contractual rights to seek indemnification or financial recovery from another entity, you must preserve those rights entirely.

You are required to assist us in enforcing any such recovery rights against third parties who may be responsible for the incident.

This includes providing necessary documentation and testimony to support subrogation actions initiated by our legal recovery department.

Any financial recovery obtained from third parties will be distributed according to the specific recovery provisions outlined elsewhere in this contract.

Your failure to maintain comprehensive operational records may hinder the defense process and complicate the resolution of the liability demand.

We expect your organization to maintain standard commercial documentation practices consistent with your specific industry classification and operational scope.

If your lack of cooperation materially prejudices our ability to investigate or defend the action, we may formally deny the claim.

A determination of material prejudice is based on whether your actions or inactions significantly impaired the legal defense or increased the financial exposure.

We will issue formal written warnings if we determine that your level of cooperation is insufficient or detrimental to the ongoing investigation.

Continued non-compliance after the issuance of a formal warning will trigger a comprehensive review of your eligibility for ongoing liability protection.

IMPORTANT NOTICE REGARDING EXCLUSIONARY ENDORSEMENTS AND COVERAGE AMENDMENTS

POLICYHOLDER NOTICE - INFORMATION ABOUT YOUR POLICY

1. This important disclosure notice alerts you that your commercial general liability policy contains specific endorsements that significantly modify, restrict, or exclude coverage.

The inclusion of these amendatory endorsements means that the scope of protection provided may be narrower than that found in standard unendorsed policy forms.

You are strongly advised to review the entire policy packet, including the declarations, schedules, and all attached forms, to understand your actual coverage.

Exclusions are provisions within the insurance contract that completely remove coverage for specific types of risks, operations, or categories of damage.

2. Your policy may contain broad exclusions relating to environmental hazards, long-term occupational exposures, or specific emerging liabilities not contemplated by the base rates.

For example, coverage for certain types of pollution, hazardous materials, or digital data breaches may be entirely excluded from this liability contract.

Endorsements may also impose strict limitations on where coverage applies, restricting protection to only those specific premises or territories scheduled on the declarations.

Operations or business activities that are not explicitly classified and rated in the exposure schedules may not be afforded any defense or indemnity protection.

3. Your policy may include endorsements that cap the financial recovery available for certain types of losses through the application of sub-limits.

Sub-limits restrict the maximum payout for a specific exposure to an amount significantly lower than the general aggregate or each occurrence limit.

Furthermore, your coverage part may be subject to endorsements that alter the fundamental definition of an insured or restrict who qualifies for protection.

Additional insured endorsements, if attached, provide coverage to third parties only for liability arising out of your specific ongoing or completed operations.

4. The protection granted to an additional insured is strictly limited by the exact wording of the endorsement and the underlying contractual requirements.

Some endorsements may introduce specific conditions precedent to coverage, requiring you to maintain certain safety protocols or obtain specific documentation from subcontractors.

Failure to strictly comply with these endorsed conditions may result in the complete forfeiture of coverage for a subsequent claim or lawsuit.

Your policy may also feature endorsements that modify the standard cancellation or nonrenewal provisions to comply with specific state regulatory mandates.

5. These state-specific amendatory endorsements supersede the general cancellation conditions found in the primary coverage form or the common policy conditions.

We may have attached endorsements that exclude coverage for liability arising out of specific prior acts or incidents that occurred before the retroactive date.

If your policy includes a products-completed operations hazard exclusion, you will have no coverage for injuries occurring after your work is finished.

You must carefully verify that the exclusions attached to this policy do not conflict with the mandatory insurance requirements of your business contracts.

6. If a client or municipality requires you to carry coverage that is excluded by this policy, you will be personally responsible for that uninsured liability.

The titles and headings of the attached endorsements are provided for general reference only and do not define the exact scope of the restriction.

You must read the actual text of each exclusionary paragraph to fully comprehend how the endorsement alters the operation of your liability protection.

In the event of a direct conflict between the text of the main coverage form and an attached endorsement, the endorsement's language will always control.

7. If multiple endorsements apply to the same loss, the endorsement containing the most restrictive language or the broadest exclusion will govern the claim resolution.

We base our decision to attach these restrictive endorsements on the specific underwriting information you provided regarding your business operations and historical loss experience.

Changes in your operations during the policy term may require the addition of new exclusions or the removal of existing restrictions upon review.

You must notify us immediately if you begin manufacturing new products, offering new services, or expanding into previously unrated business classifications.

8. Unreported changes in your operational profile do not automatically void the attached exclusions or expand the coverage granted by the existing endorsements.

We encourage you to discuss the specific impact of each attached exclusion and amendatory endorsement with your qualified legal counsel or insurance broker.

Your broker can assist you in identifying potential coverage gaps created by these endorsements and may recommend purchasing separate specialized policies to address them.

Acceptance of this policy constitutes your acknowledgment that you have received, reviewed, and accepted all the restrictive endorsements listed on the forms schedule.

PREMIUM COMPUTATION AND EXPOSURE VERIFICATION CONDITIONS

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

A. The premium amounts displayed on the initial declarations pages represent a provisional estimate derived from the anticipated operational metrics supplied at inception.

The first named insured assumes full responsibility for the prompt payment of all deposit premiums required to initiate this insurance contract.

Upon the expiration or cancellation of this agreement, the carrier retains the right to compute the final earned premium based on verified exposures.

If the final computed premium exceeds the initial deposit, the first named insured will receive a billing statement for the outstanding balance.

B. Should the verified final premium fall below the initial deposit, the carrier will issue a refund for the unearned portion of the payment.

The commercial enterprise must preserve all financial ledgers, tax filings, payroll registers, and sales receipts relevant to the calculation of operational exposure.

The carrier reserves the administrative authority to examine and audit the financial documentation of the business entity during regular operational hours.

C. This examination authority extends up to three years after the final expiration date or the effective date of any prior cancellation.

When remuneration serves as the primary exposure basis, the audit will capture all wages, bonuses, commissions, and substitute compensation provided to workers.

Overtime compensation may be subject to specific deductions only if the enterprise maintains separate and distinct accounting registers for those premium wages.

When gross sales serve as the rating foundation, the audit will evaluate all revenue generated from goods distributed and services rendered.

Returns, allowances, and applicable sales taxes collected for governmental entities may be excluded from the gross revenue calculation if documented properly.

D. For operations rated on the cost of subcontracted work, the enterprise must provide comprehensive ledgers detailing all disbursements to independent contractors.

The enterprise must secure and retain valid certificates of insurance from all independent contractors engaged during the active policy period.

Failure to furnish adequate certificates of insurance will result in the independent contractors being classified as direct employees for premium computation purposes.

The carrier may utilize industry standard estimation methodologies to determine final premium if the enterprise fails to provide adequate financial documentation.

Estimated audits carry a mandatory administrative penalty surcharge that will be appended to the final billing statement issued to the enterprise.

E. The first named insured possesses a limited window of thirty days to formally dispute the findings of any completed premium audit.

Formal disputes must be submitted in writing and must include alternative financial documentation supporting the revised exposure calculations proposed by the enterprise.

The carrier will review all timely audit disputes and issue a final determination regarding the appropriate exposure valuation within sixty days.

Undisputed audit balances must be remitted to the carrier within twenty days of the invoice date to avoid collection proceedings.

Delinquent audit balances may result in the immediate cancellation of any subsequent renewal policies currently in force with the carrier.

F. The carrier assumes no obligation to conduct a physical audit and may elect to process a final premium adjustment based on voluntary reports.

The acceptance of any premium payment by the carrier does not constitute a waiver of the right to demand full compliance with these conditions.

CLASSIFICATION ASSIGNMENT AND EXPOSURE VALUATION RULES

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

Classification codes are assigned to the commercial enterprise based on the primary nature of the business operations conducted at the scheduled premises.

The classification schedule serves as the foundation for determining the appropriate rating factors and exposure bases utilized in the premium calculation process.

A single commercial location may be subject to multiple classification codes if the enterprise conducts distinctly separate and independent business operations.

The assignment of multiple classifications requires the enterprise to maintain strictly segregated payroll and revenue records for each distinct operational category.

If the enterprise fails to maintain segregated records, the carrier will assign the highest rated classification code to the entirety of the exposure.

Standard exception classifications, such as clerical office employees and outside sales personnel, may be assigned separately if their duties are strictly limited.

The carrier retains the exclusive authority to determine the final classification codes applicable to the commercial enterprise based on factual operational data.

If an inspection reveals a material deviation from the anticipated operations, the carrier will issue a retroactive endorsement correcting the classification schedule.

Material changes in business operations must be reported to the carrier immediately to ensure the proper classification codes are applied to the risk.

Operations conducted outside the designated territory shown in the schedules may be subject to different rating multipliers or specific coverage restrictions.

Inter-departmental transfers and internal accounting transactions do not constitute gross sales and are excluded from the final exposure valuation.

When the exposure basis is designated as payroll, the valuation encompasses the total remuneration distributed to all active employees and corporate officers.

Executive officer remuneration is subject to specific minimum and maximum valuation caps as determined by the prevailing state rating bureau guidelines.

The area calculation includes all basements, storage facilities, and outbuildings utilized in connection with the primary commercial operations of the business.

When the exposure basis is designated as the cost of work, the valuation includes the total cost of all labor, materials, and equipment.

The cost of work valuation specifically encompasses all payments made to subcontractors, regardless of whether they provide their own materials or equipment.

The enterprise may not deduct the cost of materials supplied directly to subcontractors from the final cost of work exposure valuation.

Certain specialized classifications may utilize alternative exposure bases such as the number of admissions, total units produced, or specific event duration.

The precise definition of any alternative exposure basis will be detailed in a separate amendatory endorsement attached to the primary policy documents.

Classification descriptions are generalized summaries of typical business operations and do not explicitly define the parameters of the provided insurance protection.

The presence of a specific classification code on the schedule does not override any explicit exclusion or limitation contained within the policy text.

The carrier may reclassify the enterprise mid-term if a newly enacted regulatory statute alters the standard classification system utilized by the industry.

The enterprise may request a formal review of their assigned classifications by submitting a detailed narrative description of their daily business activities.

The carrier will evaluate all classification review requests and issue a written determination affirming or modifying the current schedule within thirty days.

ADMINISTRATIVE CONDITIONS AND CONTRACTUAL OBLIGATIONS

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

1. This document constitutes the entire agreement between the commercial enterprise and the carrier regarding the provision of commercial liability insurance.

No modifications, amendments, or waivers of any policy provision will be considered valid unless formally issued by the carrier as a written endorsement.

The first named insured designated on the declarations page acts as the sole authorized representative for all entities protected under this agreement.

The carrier will direct all administrative correspondence, billing statements, and formal notices exclusively to the mailing address of the first named insured.

2. By accepting this policy, the first named insured affirms that all statements and representations made during the application process are entirely accurate.

The carrier has issued this policy in direct reliance upon the factual accuracy of the representations provided by the commercial enterprise.

Intentional misrepresentation or the concealment of material facts concerning the business operations may result in the immediate voiding of this insurance contract.

The first named insured may cancel this policy at any time by returning the original documents or providing advanced written notice of termination.

3. The carrier may cancel this policy by mailing a formal notice of termination to the first named insured at the last known address.

Cancellation for the non-payment of premium requires a minimum notice period of ten days prior to the effective date of the termination.

Cancellation for any reason other than non-payment requires a minimum notice period of thirty days prior to the effective date of termination.

If the policy is cancelled by the enterprise, the carrier will calculate the return premium utilizing the standard short-rate penalty computation method.

4. If the policy is cancelled by the carrier, the return premium will be calculated on a strictly proportional pro-rata basis without penalty.

These inspections are conducted solely for the purpose of determining insurability, evaluating operational hazards, and calculating appropriate premium charges.

The carrier does not warrant that the premises are safe, healthful, or in compliance with any local, state, or federal safety regulations.

5. The enterprise must promptly notify the carrier of any fundamental changes in ownership, management structure, or primary business operations.

The rights and duties established under this policy cannot be transferred to another entity without the express written consent of the carrier.

In the event of the death of the first named insured, the rights and duties will automatically transfer to the appointed legal representative.

The legal representative will possess the authority to act on behalf of the enterprise only while performing duties strictly related to the estate.

6. Until a legal representative is formally appointed, temporary authority will be granted to any individual maintaining temporary custody of the commercial property.

The enterprise must take all reasonable precautions to prevent further incidents or subsequent damages following any initial event that may trigger this policy.

The carrier will not be responsible for any subsequent damages resulting from the failure of the enterprise to implement reasonable preventative measures.

Any legal action initiated against the carrier must be commenced within two years following the date the disputed incident or damage occurred.

7. The enterprise must fully comply with all terms, conditions, and administrative requirements of this policy before initiating any legal action against the carrier.

In the event of multiple entities being designated as named insureds, the financial obligations regarding premium payment remain joint and several.

The carrier may elect not to renew this agreement by mailing a formal notice of non-renewal to the first named insured.

Notices of non-renewal will be dispatched at least thirty days prior to the scheduled expiration date of the current policy term.

8. Proof of mailing the cancellation or non-renewal notice to the designated address will serve as sufficient proof of notification under this contract.

Any specific state statutes that conflict with these administrative conditions will automatically supersede the printed text to ensure strict regulatory compliance.

A. This form establishes the mandatory electronic funds transfer protocols for all premium transactions associated with this commercial general liability contract.

By accepting this policy, the first named insured agrees to enroll in our automated clearing house withdrawal program for all scheduled payments.

You must provide valid routing and account numbers for a commercial banking account drawn on a recognized financial institution within the United States.

The designated account must maintain sufficient available funds to cover all scheduled premium drafts on their respective processing dates without fail.

We will initiate the electronic draft exactly on the due date specified in the initial billing schedule provided at policy inception.

B. If the scheduled draft date falls on a weekend or federal banking holiday, the transaction will be processed on the next available business day.

An electronic statement will be generated and delivered to the registered email address exactly ten days prior to any scheduled withdrawal.

This electronic statement serves as the official invoice and fulfills our statutory obligation to provide advance notice of impending premium charges.

You are strictly responsible for ensuring that the email address on file is accurate and capable of receiving automated messages from our domain.

Failure to receive the electronic statement due to spam filters or inactive inboxes does not invalidate the scheduled electronic withdrawal.

C. Any changes to your designated banking information must be submitted through our secure online portal at least five business days before a draft.

Submitting new banking details within the five-day window may result in the draft being routed to the previously authorized financial account.

If an electronic draft is rejected by your financial institution for any reason, a processing penalty will be applied to your account balance.

Following a rejected draft, we will attempt a secondary withdrawal three business days later, including the original amount and the processing penalty.

If the secondary withdrawal attempt is also rejected, the automated payment plan will be suspended immediately without any further advance notice.

D. Suspension of the automated payment plan triggers the immediate issuance of a formal notice of cancellation for non-payment of premium.

To prevent cancellation after a secondary rejection, the outstanding balance must be settled rapidly via certified funds or a direct wire transfer.

We reserve the right to permanently disqualify your account from the electronic funds transfer program following multiple rejected transactions.

Disqualified accounts will be converted to a manual billing cycle, which requires the payment of the remaining annual premium in a single lump sum.

Audit balances and supplementary premiums generated by mid-term endorsements will be automatically drafted from the designated commercial account.

E. A separate electronic notification will be dispatched prior to drafting any amount that deviates from the standard installment schedule.

You have the right to dispute any supplementary draft amount by contacting our billing department within three days of receiving the notification.

Initiating a chargeback through your financial institution without first attempting to resolve the dispute with us constitutes a material breach of contract.

Unauthorized chargebacks will result in immediate policy cancellation and the rapid referral of the account balance to a commercial collections agency.

Any premium refunds resulting from overpayment, favorable audits, or policy cancellation will be deposited directly into the designated account.

F. We are not liable for delays in refund processing caused by incorrect banking information provided by the first named insured or their representatives.

If the designated account is closed prior to the issuance of a refund, a physical corporate check will be mailed to the address on file.

The electronic funds transfer mandate applies to all renewals, extensions, and rewrites of this policy unless explicitly revoked in writing.

Revocation of the electronic transfer authorization must be accompanied by full payment of the remaining policy term balance via certified funds.

Our administrative staff cannot process banking changes over the telephone due to strict security protocols and financial privacy regulations.

G. Data transmitted during the setup and maintenance of the electronic payment profile is encrypted and handled in strict compliance with financial privacy laws.

These electronic administration rules supersede any legacy manual billing procedures referenced in the standard policy conditions or declarations.

GENERAL CONDITIONS - CANCELLATION AND NONRENEWAL

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

The designated first named insured possesses the exclusive authority to initiate the cancellation of this commercial general liability contract.

Such termination requests must be submitted in writing to our primary administrative offices prior to the desired effective date.

We require advance written documentation indicating the precise future date when the termination of the insurance relationship should commence.

Telephone requests or verbal instructions conveyed through a retail broker do not satisfy the formal written notice requirement for cancellation.

If the first named insured terminates the contract, the final premium computation will typically follow short rate calculation methodologies.

In the event of nonpayment, we will mail a written notice of cancellation to the first named insured at the address on file.

This nonpayment cancellation notice will be dispatched no fewer than ten days before the effective date of the policy termination.

Should we decide to cancel the policy for reasons other than nonpayment, we will provide a minimum of thirty days advance notice.

Acceptable reasons for carrier-initiated cancellation include material misrepresentation, substantial changes in the risk profile, or failure to comply with audit requirements.

The written notice of cancellation will clearly state the effective date of termination, at which point the policy period will officially end.

We will mail or deliver the cancellation notice to the primary mailing address shown in the commercial general liability declarations.

Proof of mailing obtained from the postal service will serve as sufficient evidence that the required notification was properly issued.

If the policy is canceled by us, the return premium will be calculated on a strict pro rata basis without penalty.

The cancellation will remain effective even if we have not yet tendered the return premium to the first named insured.

Return premium amounts will be sent directly to the first named insured or credited to their active billing account balance.

We also reserve the right to nonrenew this policy upon its expiration date by issuing a formal nonrenewal notification.

Notice of our intent not to renew will be mailed to the first named insured at least thirty days prior to expiration.

The nonrenewal notice will contain the specific reasons for our decision if mandated by the jurisdiction governing the policy issuance.

If state-specific amendatory endorsements prescribe longer notice periods for cancellation or nonrenewal, those extended timeframes will automatically supersede these standard provisions.

Any statutory requirements regarding the method of delivery, including certified mail mandates, will be strictly followed by our administrative departments.

Additional insureds or certificate holders will not receive direct cancellation notices from us unless explicitly required by a scheduled endorsement.

If a cancellation notice is issued due to an audit dispute, the insured must resolve the discrepancy before the termination date.

Failure to provide requested payroll or sales records constitutes a material breach, justifying immediate initiation of the cancellation process.

We maintain the right to inspect the insured premises to verify that operations align with the classifications shown in the declarations.

Discovery of unclassified hazardous operations during an inspection may trigger an immediate mid-term cancellation notice subject to state regulatory guidelines.

The effective date of cancellation marks the absolute end of the policy period for all coverage parts and scheduled locations.

Subsequent claims arising from incidents occurring after the exact minute of cancellation will be unequivocally denied by our claims department.

ASSIGNMENT AND TRANSFER OF POLICY ADMINISTRATION

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

1. Rights and duties established under this commercial general liability contract cannot be transferred to another party without our written consent.

Any attempted assignment or transfer of policy benefits lacking our express written authorization shall be considered void and legally unenforceable.

The named insured cannot sell, assign, or otherwise transfer their interest in this insurance policy as part of a corporate transaction.

In the event of a merger or acquisition, the surviving entity does not automatically inherit the protections of this specific policy.

2. A formal request for transfer must be submitted to our underwriting department along with complete details of the proposed ownership change.

We reserve the absolute right to approve or deny any transfer request based on our evaluation of the new risk profile.

An exception to this strict prohibition exists in the event of the death of an individual designated as the first named insured.

If an individual named insured dies, their rights and duties are temporarily transferred to their legal representative or estate executor.

3. This temporary transfer of rights applies only while the legal representative is acting within the scope of their official duties.

Until a legal representative is formally appointed, anyone having proper temporary custody of the deceased insured's property assumes the policy duties.

The temporary custodian is bound by all policy conditions, including the obligation to report incidents and cooperate with our investigations.

Coverage for the legal representative or temporary custodian extends only to operations previously conducted by the deceased individual named insured.

4. No new business ventures or expanded operations initiated by the estate will be protected under the existing commercial liability framework.

Bankruptcy or insolvency of the insured does not relieve us of our obligations under this commercial general liability contract.

However, a bankruptcy trustee does not gain the authority to expand the scope of operations beyond those scheduled in the declarations.

The appointment of a receiver or liquidator requires immediate notification to our administrative offices to ensure proper policy documentation.

5. Premium payment obligations remain fully enforceable against the estate, the bankruptcy trustee, or the legal representative managing the insured entity.

Any pending premium audits will be directed to the legal representative, who must provide access to all necessary financial records.

The transfer of policy administration duties does not alter the applicable limits, exclusion parameters, or classification codes established at inception.

If a corporate named insured undergoes a name change without a change in ownership structure, an amendatory endorsement is required.

6. Name changes must be reported within thirty days to ensure continuous alignment between the policy documents and the legal entity.

The addition of new subsidiaries or newly formed organizations is governed by separate provisions and does not constitute a transfer.

We will not recognize any third-party claims of policy ownership based on private contractual agreements between the insured and outside entities.

Indemnification agreements signed by the named insured do not transfer the actual policy rights to the indemnified third party.

7. Additional insured status must be achieved through specific endorsement scheduling rather than an attempted blanket assignment of the primary policy.

Any approved transfer of rights will be memorialized through a formal endorsement issued by our home office and attached to the policy.

The effective date of an approved transfer will be explicitly stated on the issued endorsement, superseding any prior private arrangements.

Following a transfer, the new first named insured assumes full responsibility for all past and future premium obligations and audit adjustments.

8. The new entity also inherits the responsibility to distribute cancellation notices or policy changes to any other scheduled insured parties.

TERRITORIAL APPLICATION AND STATE PROVISIONS

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

A. The provisions of this policy apply exclusively to incidents, operations, or offenses that take place within the authorized geographic boundaries.

These boundaries generally encompass the United States of America, its incorporated territories and possessions, Puerto Rico, and the nation of Canada.

Operations conducted outside of these primary geographic areas are strictly excluded unless specifically addressed by a separate international endorsement.

International airspace and international waters are included only if the injury or damage occurs during direct travel between authorized jurisdictions.

Products manufactured or sold within the primary geographic boundaries may retain coverage if they are subsequently transported to foreign locations.

B. However, this product-related extension applies only if the original manufacturing or initial sale occurred within the authorized domestic territories.

Short-term international business travel by the named insured or their employees is accommodated under specific, limited circumstances outlined herein.

The activities of employees traveling abroad must be strictly limited to administrative, clerical, or executive duties on behalf of the insured.

Manual labor, construction activities, or physical service operations performed outside the authorized geographic boundaries will not receive liability protection.

Digital operations and internet activities present unique geographic challenges that require specific jurisdictional parameters for liability protection to apply.

C. Offenses related to electronic publications or digital advertising are considered to occur globally, provided the insured's business is based domestically.

Despite any global digital exposure, we require that any resulting litigation be formally filed and pursued within the authorized primary territories.

We will not participate in, fund, or recognize lawsuits brought in foreign courts or under the jurisdiction of foreign legal systems.

Any judgments, settlements, or legal costs awarded by tribunals outside the United States, its territories, Puerto Rico, or Canada are excluded.

If a lawsuit is filed domestically but involves international elements, we will evaluate the claim based strictly on domestic legal standards.

D. State-specific amendatory provisions may alter the application of these territorial rules depending on the primary mailing address of the named insured.

When state laws mandate broader geographic recognition for certain classes of business, those statutory requirements will supersede our standard limitations.

Currency fluctuations and international exchange rates will not alter the maximum financial limits scheduled in the commercial general liability declarations.

All premium calculations, audit adjustments, and claim settlements will be processed exclusively in the official currency of the United States.

If a domestic judgment involves foreign currency calculations, the exchange rate published on the date of the final judgment will apply.

E. Coverage is categorically suspended in any region, country, or territory subject to comprehensive trade sanctions or embargoes by the federal government.

We will not process payments or provide legal resources if doing so would violate established economic sanctions or international trade restrictions.

The insured must ensure that their export activities comply with all federal regulations regarding restricted nations and prohibited foreign entities.

Any liability arising from deliberate violations of international trade laws or customs regulations falls entirely outside the scope of this policy.

Vendors or distributors operating exclusively in foreign markets cannot be added as additional insureds under this domestic liability framework.

F. Cross-border transportation of hazardous materials requires specialized documentation and may be subject to strict territorial exclusions at the border crossing.

The burden of proof rests on the insured to demonstrate that an incident occurred within the authorized geographic boundaries.

Location schedules attached to the declarations dictate the primary premises, but the territorial rules govern off-site operations and mobile equipment.

Ambiguities regarding the exact location of an incident will be resolved by referencing official geographic coordinates and established international borders.

G. Maintaining accurate records of international shipments and employee travel is essential for determining the applicability of these territorial provisions.

AMENDATORY PROVISION - TRANSFER OF RIGHTS OF RECOVERY AND SUBROGATION

THIS ENDORSEMENT CHANGES THE POLICY. PLEASE READ IT CAREFULLY.

This amendatory form modifies the conditions regarding the transfer of rights of recovery against others within the commercial general liability coverage part.

If we make a payment under this policy for damages or expenses, your rights to recover those amounts from others are transferred to us.

This transfer of rights is commonly referred to as subrogation and allows us to pursue responsible third parties to recoup our expenditures.

You must do everything necessary to secure our rights of recovery and must not take any action after an incident to impair them.

Impairing our rights includes signing release agreements or accepting partial settlements from responsible parties without our explicit prior written consent.

If you waive your rights to recover from a third party after an incident occurs, we may deny coverage for the related claim.

However, you may waive your rights against another party in writing prior to the occurrence of the incident that causes the damages.

Pre-incident waivers are typically executed in commercial contracts, lease agreements, or construction subcontracts as part of standard business operations.

If a valid pre-incident written waiver exists, we will honor that agreement and will not pursue subrogation against the specified party.

The existence of a pre-incident waiver does not relieve you of the obligation to report the incident and cooperate with our initial investigation.

We may require you to provide a copy of the contract containing the waiver clause before we finalize our subrogation determination.

If we decide to pursue recovery against a third party, you agree to cooperate fully in the preparation and execution of the subrogation action.

Your cooperation may include providing witness testimony, producing operational documents, and attending depositions or mediation sessions as requested by our legal counsel.

We will bear the expenses associated with the subrogation pursuit, including attorney fees, court costs, and expert witness retainers.

If the recovery action is successful, the recovered funds will be distributed according to a specific hierarchical accounting procedure.

First, any party that advanced funds to pursue the recovery will be reimbursed for their out-of-pocket legal and administrative expenses.

Second, you will be reimbursed for any deductible amounts you paid or any damages you sustained that exceeded the scheduled policy limits.

Third, we will retain the balance of the recovered funds up to the total amount we paid for the claim and defense costs.

Finally, if any surplus funds remain after all parties have been made whole, those excess amounts will be remitted directly to you.

If the recovered amount is insufficient to cover all expenses and damages, the distribution will be prorated based on the respective financial interests.

We reserve the exclusive right to determine whether to pursue a subrogation action or to abandon the recovery effort entirely.

Our decision not to pursue recovery does not prevent you from initiating your own action to recover your deductible or uninsured losses.

If you initiate an independent recovery action, you must notify us in writing and ensure that our financial interests are adequately protected.

You may not settle an independent recovery action in a manner that prejudices our ability to pursue our own subrogation claims later.

In jurisdictions where subrogation against certain entities is prohibited by statute, this amendatory provision will be modified to comply with local law.

For example, subrogation against your own employees is generally prohibited unless the employee intentionally caused the damages or engaged in criminal conduct.

This amendatory condition applies to all coverage parts scheduled in the declarations unless specifically overridden by a dedicated waiver of subrogation endorsement.

Dedicated waiver endorsements provide a more formalized mechanism for acknowledging pre-incident agreements and may require an additional premium charge.

Please review your commercial contracts carefully to ensure that any required waivers of recovery are properly documented before commencing business operations.

Maintaining clear records of these contractual agreements is essential for expediting the claims process and avoiding disputes over subrogation rights.

GENERAL LIABILITY RATING AND EXPOSURE CONDITIONS

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

1. The commercial general liability coverage provided by this contract relies upon the rating information scheduled in the declarations.

The assignment of a classification code does not independently grant or restrict the scope of liability protection afforded by this contract.

2. Coverage applicability must always be determined by reading the designated coverage part alongside the relevant endorsements and exclusions.

Territories are geographic designations that influence the base rates utilized during the premium computation process.

Operations conducted outside the designated territory parameters may be subject to different rating factors or may fall outside the scope of protection.

Exposure bases represent the quantitative metric against which the assigned rate is multiplied to yield the premium charge.

3. Common exposure bases include gross sales, payroll, cost of work, area, and unit counts, as designated in the rating schedule.

When gross sales serve as the exposure basis, the calculation includes the entire amount charged for goods and services provided.

Certain deductions from gross sales, such as returns and allowances, may be permitted if documented in the financial records.

Payroll exposure bases require the inclusion of all remuneration paid to employees, including bonuses, commissions, and substitute compensation.

4. Cost of work exposure bases generally apply to contracting operations and encompass the total cost of all labor, materials, and equipment.

The cost of subcontracted work must be included in the exposure calculation unless a specific exception is noted in the schedule.

The initial premium shown on the declarations is an estimate based on the anticipated exposures for the upcoming annual period.

At the conclusion of the term, a final premium computation will be performed based on the actual exposures realized during the year.

5. The named insured assumes a strict obligation to maintain accurate and detailed records of all information necessary for this final computation.

These records must segregate exposures by classification code, location number, and territory to facilitate accurate rate application.

We reserve the right to examine and audit the financial books and operational records of the enterprise at any time during the term.

This audit privilege extends for a period of up to three years following the final termination or expiration of the contract.

6. If the final audited premium exceeds the estimated deposit premium, the named insured will be billed for the remaining balance.

Should the audited premium fall below the estimated deposit amount, a refund of the unearned portion will be issued promptly.

Failure to cooperate with the audit process or failure to provide adequate records may result in the application of a maximum estimated premium.

Material changes in the nature of the business operations must be reported immediately to ensure correct classification and rating.

7. The introduction of new product lines, services, or operational locations constitutes a material change requiring notification.

We retain the authority to reclassify operations and adjust rates retroactively if the original scheduling was based on inaccurate representations.

The rates applied for products-completed operations hazards are distinct from the premises and ongoing operations rates.

This separation ensures that the distinct long-tail liabilities associated with completed work are adequately measured and funded.

8. Any dispute regarding the final premium calculation must be submitted in writing within thirty days of the final billing statement.

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

A. The limits of insurance specified in the declarations dictate the maximum financial responsibility assumed under this commercial general liability contract.

These scheduled amounts apply regardless of the number of insured persons, claims made, or individuals seeking financial recovery.

The General Aggregate limit represents the absolute ceiling for all damages payable during a single annual term, excluding specific designated hazards.

Payments made to resolve claims or satisfy judgments steadily erode the General Aggregate balance available for subsequent incidents.

Once the General Aggregate limit is completely exhausted by the payment of damages, all associated protection ceases immediately.

B. The Products-Completed Operations Aggregate limit operates independently from the General Aggregate and applies strictly to the corresponding hazard.

Damages arising from goods manufactured, sold, or distributed, as well as work that has been finished, erode this separate aggregate.

The classification of a claim into either the general operations category or the completed operations category determines which aggregate is depleted.

The Each Occurrence limit establishes the maximum payable amount for any single event or series of continuous and repeated exposures.

This occurrence cap applies independently to every distinct incident, provided the relevant aggregate limit has not yet been exhausted.

C. If a single occurrence triggers damages that exceed this per-event cap, the remainder of the financial burden falls outside the contract scope.

The Personal and Advertising Injury limit restricts the payable damages for offenses such as libel, slander, or copyright infringement.

This specific limit applies per person or organization offended, rather than per occurrence, subject always to the overarching General Aggregate.

Medical payments limits, if scheduled, are typically sub-limits that are included within, and not in addition to, the Each Occurrence maximum.

Damage to premises rented to the named insured is governed by a separate sub-limit applicable only to specific fire or water events.

D. The depletion of any limit is driven solely by the payment of damages and does not typically include the costs associated with legal defense.

Legal defense expenses are generally handled outside the limits of insurance unless a specific endorsement alters this standard arrangement.

In situations where defense costs are brought within the limits, every dollar spent on legal fees directly reduces the available aggregate.

The limits of insurance apply separately to each consecutive annual period and to any remaining period of less than twelve months.

If the term is extended by an endorsement for a fraction of a year, the limits do not automatically reinstate or increase.

E. The allocation of damages across multiple annual periods may be necessary when continuous injury spans several consecutive terms.

Under no circumstances will the limits of multiple consecutive contracts be stacked to artificially inflate the available financial protection.

When an injury is determined to have occurred over multiple terms, the maximum recovery is restricted to the highest single applicable limit.

The scheduling of limits relies on the accurate disclosure of all material operational risks at the inception of the contract.

Requests to increase the limits of insurance mid-term are subject to comprehensive underwriting review and require written approval.

F. Any approved increase in limits will only apply to occurrences that take place after the effective date of the modifying endorsement.

Deductibles or self-insured retentions, if applicable, must be satisfied by the named insured before any limit of insurance is accessed.

The application of a deductible does not increase the total limit of insurance available for the remainder of the claim.

We maintain the authority to settle any claim within the applicable limits without requiring the explicit consent of the named insured.

The exhaustion of the applicable aggregate limit immediately terminates our obligation to investigate, defend, or resolve any pending or future claims.

---

---

The commercial general liability contract clearly distinguishes between the primary named insured and other parties who may receive incidental protection.

The named insured is the entity explicitly listed on the declarations page and bears the primary administrative responsibilities for the contract.

These administrative duties include the payment of all premiums, the reporting of operational changes, and the maintenance of accurate exposure records.

Additional insureds are external individuals or organizations granted specific, limited protection through the attachment of a designated endorsement.

The protection afforded to an additional insured is strictly confined to the parameters outlined in the specific modifying form.

Commonly, additional insured status is granted to project owners, lessees, or general contractors who require protection arising from the named insured operations.

The scope of this external protection is generally limited to vicarious liability stemming directly from the acts or omissions of the named insured.

Independent acts of negligence committed solely by the additional insured are routinely excluded from the scope of the provided protection.

The separation of insureds provision ensures that the contract applies separately to each individual or entity claiming protection.

This severability principle means that a breach of a condition by one insured does not automatically void the protection for another innocent insured.

Furthermore, the separation of insureds allows one protected party to bring a valid claim against another protected party under the same contract.

Despite this cross-liability application, the separation provision does not multiply or increase the maximum limits of insurance available.

The Each Occurrence and applicable Aggregate limits remain fixed, regardless of how many insured entities are implicated in a single event.

Additional insured endorsements often distinguish between ongoing operations and the products-completed operations hazard.

To secure protection for liabilities arising after project completion, a specific completed operations additional insured endorsement must be attached.

Primary and non-contributory conditions are frequently requested by external parties seeking additional insured status on the contract.

When this condition is properly endorsed, the protection provided by this contract will respond before any other insurance available to the additional insured.

We will not seek contribution from the additional insured own liability policies if the primary and non-contributory requirement is met.

The granting of primary status is contingent upon the existence of a written contract requiring such an arrangement prior to the loss.

Every insured, whether named or additional, has independent duties in the event of an incident, claim, or legal proceeding.

Immediate written notice of any event that may result in a claim must be provided to the administrative processing center.

The failure of the named insured to provide notice does not excuse an additional insured from fulfilling their own reporting obligations.

All protected parties must cooperate fully in the investigation, settlement, or defense of the claim as requested by the claim administrators.

No insured may voluntarily make any payment, assume any obligation, or incur any expense without our prior written authorization.

Any unauthorized financial commitments made by an insured will be their sole responsibility and will not be reimbursed.

We are not obligated to provide separate notices of cancellation to additional insureds unless explicitly mandated by a specific endorsement.

The rights and duties of the named insured cannot be transferred to another party without our explicit written consent.

In the event of the named insured death or bankruptcy, temporary administrative rights may transfer to a legal representative.

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

1. The commercial general liability contract is constructed through a combination of base coverage forms, schedules, and modifying endorsements.

Endorsements are specialized forms that alter, restrict, or expand the provisions found within the standard base coverage documents.

When a conflict arises between the language in a base form and the language in an attached endorsement, the endorsement takes precedence.

Exclusionary endorsements are specifically designed to remove protection for certain hazards, activities, or exposures that fall outside the underwriting appetite.

2. The attachment of a specific exclusion supersedes any broad grant of protection that might otherwise appear to apply to the situation.

Exclusions are applied to eliminate overlapping protection that should be properly addressed by a different type of insurance contract.

For example, liabilities arising from the use of automobiles are excluded here because they belong on a commercial auto policy.

Similarly, obligations to injured employees are excluded from general liability because they are the domain of workers compensation frameworks.

3. Certain environmental hazards, such as the gradual release of pollutants or toxic chemicals, are subject to absolute exclusionary language.

Occupational disease exposures involving specific harmful substances like silica, asbestos, or heavy metals are routinely removed from the scope of protection.

Liabilities stemming from the unauthorized access to, or disclosure of, confidential personal information are excluded to avoid overlapping with cyber liability products.

Employment-related practices, including wrongful termination, discrimination, and workplace harassment, are explicitly excluded from the general liability framework.

4. The application of an exclusion is evaluated based on the proximate cause of the injury or damage, regardless of how the legal complaint is drafted.

If an excluded hazard is determined to be the primary driver of the loss, the entire claim may fall outside the scope of the contract.

Some exclusions contain specific exceptions that restore a limited degree of protection under very narrow, strictly defined circumstances.

The burden of proving that a claim falls within the broad grant of protection rests entirely upon the party seeking the financial benefit.

5. Conversely, the burden of proving that a specific exclusion applies to remove that protection rests with the administrative claim examiners.

Materiality plays a significant role in the evaluation of exclusions and the overall scope of the liability contract.

A material change in the risk profile, such as the introduction of a new excluded hazard, can severely impact the availability of protection.

Endorsements must be properly scheduled on the declarations or a supplementary forms list to be considered a valid part of the contract.

6. The edition date of each form and endorsement is critical for determining the exact contractual language in effect at the time of the loss.

Insurance forms are periodically updated by regulatory and advisory organizations to address emerging legal precedents and shifting risk landscapes.

The specific edition date listed in the schedule controls the interpretation of the provision, even if a newer version exists in the marketplace.

Upon renewal of the annual term, outdated forms may be replaced with newer editions, potentially altering the scope of the exclusions.

7. The named insured is responsible for reviewing the schedule of forms and endorsements at each renewal to understand any reduction in protection.

Notices of material reduction are provided during the renewal process to highlight significant changes to the exclusionary language.

Severability clauses within certain exclusions may preserve protection for one insured party even if the exclusion applies strictly to another.

However, absolute exclusions generally apply to all insured parties uniformly, regardless of their individual involvement in the excluded activity.

8. Any modification to an exclusionary endorsement requires mutual agreement and the issuance of a revised schedule by the underwriting department.

Verbal agreements or representations made by brokers cannot override the written exclusionary language contained within the scheduled endorsements.

GENERAL LIABILITY CLAIM REPORTING AND INITIAL DUTIES

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

A. The provisions contained within this section establish the mandatory administrative procedures following any incident that may invoke coverage under this contract.

Strict adherence to these reporting protocols serves as a fundamental condition precedent to the availability of any liability protection provided herein.

You must implement internal organizational procedures to ensure that your management personnel are promptly made aware of any potential liability events.

Upon becoming aware of an event that could reasonably result in a liability demand, written notification must be transmitted to our claims department.

This initial notification must be dispatched as soon as practicable, regardless of whether a formal demand for compensation has been received.

B. The written incident report must include specific details regarding the time, date, and physical location where the unexpected event occurred.

You must also provide a comprehensive description of the circumstances surrounding the event, including the nature of the activities being performed.

The names, addresses, and contact information of any injured parties must be documented and submitted alongside the initial incident report.

If any witnesses were present during the event, their identifying information and contact details must also be secured and forwarded to us.

In the event that a formal legal demand or lawsuit is initiated against your organization, immediate notification is strictly required.

C. You must immediately record the date and time of receipt for any legal summons, complaint, or formal demand letter delivered to you.

All corresponding legal documents, correspondence, and related materials must be forwarded to our designated claims administration office without any delay.

Under no circumstances should you or any of your representatives voluntarily make any financial payments or assume any legal obligations.

Any voluntary assumption of liability or independent settlement offers made without our prior written consent will not be reimbursed under this contract.

You are strictly prohibited from incurring any independent expenses related to the incident, other than for immediate first aid at the scene.

D. The preservation of physical evidence related to the incident is a critical responsibility that falls entirely upon your organization.

You must take all reasonable steps to secure the incident scene and prevent any spoliation or alteration of relevant physical materials.

Photographic or video documentation of the incident location should be captured immediately, provided it is safe and legally permissible to do so.

Any equipment, machinery, or products involved in the event must be segregated and maintained in their immediate post-incident condition.

Failure to preserve critical evidence may severely prejudice the investigation and could result in the forfeiture of available liability protection.

E. If the incident involves potential criminal activity, such as theft or vandalism, you must promptly notify the appropriate local law enforcement authorities.

A copy of the official police report must be obtained and submitted to our claims department as part of your reporting obligations.

You must establish a centralized point of contact within your organization to facilitate all communications with our assigned claims professionals.

This designated representative must possess the authority to access necessary records and coordinate internal responses to our investigative inquiries.

All subsequent developments related to the reported incident must be communicated to our office in a timely and transparent manner.

F. You must not engage in any independent discussions regarding liability or settlement with the claimant or their legal representatives.

Any inquiries received from third-party investigators, media personnel, or opposing counsel must be immediately directed to our claims administration team.

Compliance with these reporting duties does not automatically guarantee that the reported event falls within the scope of available liability protection.

We reserve the authority to evaluate all submitted information to determine the applicability of specific coverage parts, exclusions, and limitations.

Your failure to fulfill these initial reporting obligations may result in a formal declination of coverage for the specific incident in question.

LITIGATION MANAGEMENT AND DEFENSE ADMINISTRATION

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

Our organization assumes the exclusive authority to manage the legal response to any qualified liability demand presented against your enterprise.

This authority encompasses the complete direction of all litigation strategies, settlement negotiations, and the selection of appropriate legal representation.

When a qualified legal action is initiated, we will appoint legal counsel to represent your interests in the pending judicial proceedings.

The selection of the defense attorney remains entirely within our discretion, utilizing our network of approved legal professionals and specialized firms.

You may request the appointment of specific counsel; however, we are under no obligation to honor such requests unless mandated by jurisdiction.

The appointed legal counsel will focus solely on defending the allegations that fall within the scope of this commercial liability contract.

We maintain the authority to investigate any claim or suit at our discretion, utilizing internal personnel or independent investigative resources.

During the course of the litigation, we will determine the most appropriate legal strategy to mitigate potential financial exposures.

We possess the unilateral authority to negotiate and finalize the settlement of any claim or suit without requiring your explicit consent.

Our settlement decisions are based on a comprehensive evaluation of liability exposure, anticipated litigation costs, and jurisdictional venue factors.

If we determine that a negotiated resolution is the most prudent course of action, we will execute the settlement on your behalf.

Our obligation to provide legal representation ceases immediately upon the exhaustion of the applicable limit scheduled in the policy declarations.

Once the relevant limit has been entirely depleted through the payment of judgments or settlements, we will withdraw from the defense.

You will be formally notified in writing when the applicable limit is approaching exhaustion and when it has been fully depleted.

In situations where a lawsuit contains both covered allegations and allegations excluded by this contract, we will provide a defense for the entire action.

However, we reserve the right to issue a formal reservation of rights regarding the specific allegations that fall outside the coverage scope.

This reservation of rights ensures that our provision of a defense does not constitute a waiver of our right to deny financial responsibility.

We will not provide financial reimbursement for any judgments or settlements associated with the uncovered portions of the legal action.

You retain the option to hire independent legal counsel, at your own expense, to monitor the litigation and advise you on uncovered exposures.

Any independent counsel retained by your organization must fully cooperate with the primary defense attorney appointed by our claims department.

The primary defense attorney retains ultimate control over the direction of the litigation and the presentation of the defense in court.

We will not reimburse any legal fees, consultation costs, or administrative expenses incurred by your independently retained legal counsel.

If a conflict of interest arises that legally requires the appointment of independent defense counsel, we will fund such representation at prevailing rates.

The prevailing rates for independent counsel will be determined based on standard legal fees for similar litigation within the specific geographic venue.

We require the independent counsel to adhere to our standard litigation management guidelines and billing protocols throughout the duration of the case.

Any failure by the independent counsel to comply with these administrative guidelines may result in the reduction or denial of fee reimbursements.

The administration of the defense process is designed to protect both your organizational assets and our financial interests under this contract.

We will keep your designated organizational representative reasonably informed regarding significant developments and major strategic decisions during the litigation process.

Ultimately, the final determination regarding trial progression versus settlement resolution rests exclusively with our claims administration personnel.

INVESTIGATION ASSISTANCE AND INSURED COOPERATION CONDITIONS

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

1. Your active and transparent participation in the fact-finding process is a mandatory requirement for the continuation of any liability protection.

The administrative framework of this contract relies upon your full cooperation to accurately assess the circumstances surrounding any reported incident.

When requested by our claims personnel, you must promptly provide access to all relevant organizational records, documents, and electronic data.

This includes, but is not limited to, employee training logs, maintenance schedules, operational manuals, and internal incident investigation reports.

2. You must facilitate interviews between our investigators and any of your employees, contractors, or agents who may possess relevant knowledge.

These interviews may be conducted in person, via telephone, or through virtual platforms, depending on the logistical requirements of the investigation.

If we deem it necessary, you and your employees must submit to formal examinations under oath regarding the details of the incident.

These examinations under oath will be recorded, and you may be required to sign a transcript verifying the accuracy of your statements.

3. You must assist our representatives in securing physical evidence and identifying third-party witnesses who can corroborate your version of events.

When requested, you must grant our investigators and retained experts unrestricted access to the physical premises where the incident occurred.

This access is necessary to conduct site inspections, take precise measurements, and perform forensic evaluations of the incident location.

During the course of any formal legal proceedings, your ongoing cooperation remains a critical condition of the provided defense services.

4. You must attend all required legal hearings, depositions, mediation sessions, and trial proceedings as directed by the appointed defense counsel.

Your organization must ensure that key personnel are available to testify truthfully and accurately regarding the facts of the case.

We will reimburse your organization for reasonable travel expenses and lost earnings incurred directly as a result of attending these required proceedings.

The maximum daily reimbursement rate for lost earnings is strictly capped at the amount specified in the administrative schedules.

5. You are expressly prohibited from taking any actions that might prejudice our ability to defend the claim or negotiate a favorable settlement.

Any intentional misrepresentation of facts, concealment of evidence, or collusion with the claimant will result in the immediate forfeiture of protection.

You must not enter into any agreements with third parties that attempt to assign liability or alter the legal dynamics of the claim.

If you possess any contractual rights to seek indemnification or financial recovery from another entity, you must preserve those rights entirely.

6. You are required to assist us in enforcing any such recovery rights against third parties who may be responsible for the incident.

This includes providing necessary documentation and testimony to support subrogation actions initiated by our legal recovery department.

Any financial recovery obtained from third parties will be distributed according to the specific recovery provisions outlined elsewhere in this contract.

Your failure to maintain comprehensive operational records may hinder the defense process and complicate the resolution of the liability demand.

7. We expect your organization to maintain standard commercial documentation practices consistent with your specific industry classification and operational scope.

If your lack of cooperation materially prejudices our ability to investigate or defend the action, we may formally deny the claim.

A determination of material prejudice is based on whether your actions or inactions significantly impaired the legal defense or increased the financial exposure.

We will issue formal written warnings if we determine that your level of cooperation is insufficient or detrimental to the ongoing investigation.

8. Continued non-compliance after the issuance of a formal warning will trigger a comprehensive review of your eligibility for ongoing liability protection.

DEFENSE EXPENSE ALLOCATION AND CLAIM ADMINISTRATION

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

A. This section details the financial frameworks concerning the administration of legal expenses and the allocation of associated administrative costs.

The costs associated with investigating and defending a qualified liability demand are classified as allocated loss adjustment expenses.

These allocated expenses typically include attorney fees, court filing costs, expert witness retainers, and specialized forensic investigation charges.

Unless explicitly modified by a separate schedule, the payment of these allocated loss adjustment expenses does not reduce the available liability limit.

We will fund the necessary premiums for appeal bonds or bonds required to release property attachments associated with the defended litigation.

B. However, our obligation to fund these bond premiums is strictly limited to the portion of the bond that corresponds to the available limit.

We are under no obligation to furnish the actual bond or provide collateral to secure the issuance of any required financial guarantees.

Any administrative expenses incurred by our internal claims personnel during the routine handling of the file are not charged to your organization.

If a judicial verdict is rendered against your enterprise, we will manage the calculation and payment of applicable post-judgment interest.

Our responsibility for post-judgment interest applies only to the portion of the judgment that falls within the available scheduled limit.

C. This interest obligation ceases immediately once we have paid, offered to pay, or deposited our respective portion of the judgment with the court.

In scenarios involving multiple protected entities, the allocation of defense expenses requires careful administrative coordination and oversight.

If both your organization and an additional scheduled entity are named in the same lawsuit, we will typically appoint a single defense firm.

The appointment of unified counsel is designed to streamline the defense strategy and minimize redundant legal expenditures during the proceedings.

If a legally recognized conflict of interest prevents unified representation, we will allocate separate counsel for each protected entity.

D. The costs associated with separate legal representation will be managed in accordance with the standard expense protocols established by our organization.

When a liability demand triggers protection under multiple distinct insurance contracts, a formal coordination of benefits process must be initiated.

You are required to promptly disclose the existence of any other active insurance policies that may apply to the reported incident.

We will analyze the respective provisions of all applicable contracts to determine the appropriate priority of financial responsibility.

If this contract is determined to provide primary protection, we will administer the defense and fund the associated expenses accordingly.

E. If this contract is determined to provide excess protection, our financial obligations will not commence until the primary limits are fully exhausted.

During the period of excess application, we retain the right to monitor the primary litigation but will not fund the active defense expenses.

We may voluntarily contribute to the defense costs in an excess capacity if we determine that such participation protects our financial interests.

Any voluntary contribution to defense expenses does not alter the fundamental priority of coverage or create an ongoing obligation to fund the litigation.

In situations where multiple primary policies exist, we will seek to allocate the defense expenses proportionally among the participating carriers.

F. This proportional allocation is typically based on the ratio of each carrier's available limit to the total available limits of all primary policies.

We reserve the right to initiate arbitration or legal proceedings against other carriers to enforce appropriate expense allocation and recovery.

Your organization must fully cooperate with our efforts to coordinate benefits and recover allocated expenses from other responsible insurance entities.

The administrative procedures outlined herein ensure the equitable distribution of legal costs while maintaining the integrity of the provided liability protection.

All expense payments and administrative allocations are subject to continuous internal audit to verify compliance with our litigation management standards.

NOTICE OF PREMIUM AUDIT AND ACCOUNTING PROCEDURES

---

This notice outlines the mandatory accounting and premium audit procedures applicable to your commercial general liability coverage part.

The premium amounts displayed on the declarations pages are advance estimates derived entirely from the exposure information you provided at inception.

The actual final premium obligation will be calculated after the policy period ends through a comprehensive and detailed audit of your business records.

You are contractually obligated to maintain detailed, accurate, and organized records of all business operations, employee payroll, gross sales, and subcontracted costs.

These essential business records must be securely preserved for a minimum of three years following the expiration or cancellation date of this policy.

We explicitly reserve the right to examine and audit your financial and operational records at any reasonable time during the active policy period.

Furthermore, we may conduct subsequent audits up to three years after the final termination date of the applicable coverage part.

The official audit process may involve a physical inspection of your scheduled premises, a thorough review of tax documents, or an examination of accounting ledgers.

If the final computed premium determined by the audit exceeds the initial advance premium, you will be billed directly for the additional amount due.

Payment for any additional premium generated by the final audit calculation is due immediately upon your receipt of the final billing statement.

Conversely, if the final computed premium is less than the advance premium, we will refund the unearned premium portion directly to the first named insured.

All premium refunds remain strictly subject to any minimum retained premium conditions or absolute minimums specified elsewhere in the coverage documents.

Failure to comply promptly with our audit requests constitutes a material breach of the fundamental policy conditions and obligations.

In the event of your non-compliance, we may apply a non-cooperation penalty surcharge or estimate the final premium based on maximum projected operational exposures.

An estimated final premium generated due to non-cooperation may significantly exceed your actual operational exposure and resulting financial obligation.

You must notify our underwriting department promptly if your core business operations change materially at any point during the active policy period.

Material changes requiring notification include the addition of new business classifications, expansion into new rating territories, or significant unexpected increases in total payroll.

Accurate classification of your daily operations is absolutely essential for correct premium calculation and the proper applicability of liability coverage.

We maintain the authority to reclassify your operations during the final audit if the actual business activities differ from the classifications initially shown in the schedules.

Subcontractor records must clearly and unequivocally demonstrate whether the hired subcontractors carried their own adequate and active liability insurance during the project.

If a subcontractor fails to provide valid proof of concurrent insurance, their total cost of work will be included in your primary premium calculation.

Valid certificates of insurance from all independent contractors and subcontractors must be collected and verified prior to the commencement of their respective work.

These collected certificates must be retained in your permanent files and presented immediately to our designated auditor upon formal request.

Any disputed audit findings must be submitted to our accounting department in writing within thirty days of receiving the final premium billing statement.

Your written dispute must include specific, verifiable documentation supporting your alternative premium calculation and challenging the auditor's findings.

All undisputed portions of the final audit billing remain fully due and payable while the disputed items are under active internal review.

We will review the submitted documentation carefully and issue a final, binding determination regarding the disputed premium amounts within sixty days.

If an independent outside vendor is utilized to conduct the premium audit, they act entirely as our authorized representative for the purpose of data collection.

You must provide the exact same level of cooperation and access to our authorized external vendors as you would directly to our internal audit personnel.

The specific exposure bases listed in the rating schedules are the sole metrics used to determine the final cost of this commercial insurance transaction.

Please review your initial policy schedules carefully upon receipt to ensure all exposure estimates align accurately with your projected business activities for the year.

Contact your authorized insurance broker or designated agent immediately if you discover any discrepancies or errors in the advance premium calculation or classification assignments.

FORM CG 21 67 04 13

A. Classification And Exposure Reference

This form applies to Property owners - commercial buildings at Location 5, territory 012, using class code 97047.

The rating schedule shows area of 130,133, a damage to premises rented to you limit of $100,000, and premium $1,457.

This endorsement addresses Designated Professional Services Exclusion under form CG 21 67 edition 04 13.

This endorsement modifies the commercial general liability coverage part and applies to the specific operations or classifications designated in the accompanying schedules.

B. The provisions herein restrict the scope of coverage available for certain specialized activities.

No coverage is afforded for bodily injury or property damage originating from the performance or omission of any professional service.

This restriction applies equally to personal and advertising injury originating from the same performance or omission of professional duties.

The term professional service encompasses any activity requiring specialized knowledge, advanced training, or licensed expertise in a specific field of practice.

Examples of such restricted activities include the preparation or approval of maps, shop drawings, opinions, reports, or surveys.

C. Supervisory, inspection, architectural, or engineering activities are strictly excluded from the liability framework provided by this coverage part.

Medical, surgical, dental, x-ray, or nursing services fall entirely outside the scope of protection.

Any instructional, educational, or consulting services provided by the named insured or on the named insured's behalf are similarly restricted.

The exclusion operates regardless of whether the professional service is a primary component of the business operations or an incidental activity.

Claims alleging negligent hiring, employment, training, or supervision of individuals performing these restricted services will not trigger the defense or indemnity provisions.

D. If a claim involves both ordinary negligence and professional negligence, the entire claim shall be excluded if the ordinary negligence is intertwined with the professional service.

The carrier assumes no obligation to investigate, settle, or defend any suit or demand that involves allegations rooted in the designated professional services.

Costs and attorney fees incurred in responding to such allegations must be borne solely by the named insured.

This restriction applies to any individual or organization qualifying as an insured under the liability framework, including employees, volunteer workers, and executive officers.

When the designated professional services are performed by independent contractors or subcontractors on behalf of the named insured, the exclusion remains fully applicable.

E. The classification code and exposure basis shown in the rating schedule do not override or negate the application of this professional services restriction.

Even if a premium charge is developed based on gross sales or payroll associated with the professional activity, the liability exclusion remains absolute.

No exception is granted for bodily injury occurring on the described premises if the proximate cause is the rendering of the specialized service.

The products-completed operations hazard does not encompass any injury or damage resulting from the failure of the professional service to meet expected standards.

Any warranties or representations made regarding the quality, fitness, or performance of the professional service are excluded from the scope of the liability framework.

F. Data privacy violations, unauthorized access to confidential information, and similar cyber events arising during the professional service are not addressed by this endorsement.

The carrier reserves the right to withdraw from the defense of any litigation upon determining the facts fall within this restriction.

Notice of such withdrawal will be provided to the named insured in accordance with the administrative conditions governing communication and correspondence.

The named insured is responsible for maintaining separate professional liability or errors and omissions coverage to address the exposures excluded by this endorsement.

The existence or absence of such separate professional liability coverage has no bearing on the interpretation or enforcement of this specific exclusion.

G. In the event of a dispute regarding the classification of an activity as a professional service, the customary standards of the relevant industry will be considered.

However, the final determination of whether an activity constitutes a professional service under this policy rests upon the definitions and restrictions outlined herein.

The application of this endorsement supersedes any conflicting language found in the primary liability coverage forms or previously issued amendatory documents.

The remaining provisions, limits, and conditions of the commercial general liability coverage part continue in full force and effect without alteration.

CLASSIFICATION ASSIGNMENT AND EXPOSURE VALUATION RULES

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

1. Classification codes are assigned to the commercial enterprise based on the primary nature of the business operations conducted at the scheduled premises.

The classification schedule serves as the foundation for determining the appropriate rating factors and exposure bases utilized in the premium calculation process.

A single commercial location may be subject to multiple classification codes if the enterprise conducts distinctly separate and independent business operations.

The assignment of multiple classifications requires the enterprise to maintain strictly segregated payroll and revenue records for each distinct operational category.

2. If the enterprise fails to maintain segregated records, the carrier will assign the highest rated classification code to the entirety of the exposure.

Standard exception classifications, such as clerical office employees and outside sales personnel, may be assigned separately if their duties are strictly limited.

The carrier retains the exclusive authority to determine the final classification codes applicable to the commercial enterprise based on factual operational data.

3. If an inspection reveals a material deviation from the anticipated operations, the carrier will issue a retroactive endorsement correcting the classification schedule.

Material changes in business operations must be reported to the carrier immediately to ensure the proper classification codes are applied to the risk.

Operations conducted outside the designated territory shown in the schedules may be subject to different rating multipliers or specific coverage restrictions.

4. When the exposure basis is designated as gross sales, the valuation includes all amounts charged for merchandise sold and services performed.

Inter-departmental transfers and internal accounting transactions do not constitute gross sales and are excluded from the final exposure valuation.

When the exposure basis is designated as payroll, the valuation encompasses the total remuneration distributed to all active employees and corporate officers.

Executive officer remuneration is subject to specific minimum and maximum valuation caps as determined by the prevailing state rating bureau guidelines.

5. When the exposure basis is designated as area, the valuation is calculated using the total square footage of the buildings occupied by the enterprise.

The area calculation includes all basements, storage facilities, and outbuildings utilized in connection with the primary commercial operations of the business.

When the exposure basis is designated as the cost of work, the valuation includes the total cost of all labor, materials, and equipment.

The cost of work valuation specifically encompasses all payments made to subcontractors, regardless of whether they provide their own materials or equipment.

6. The enterprise may not deduct the cost of materials supplied directly to subcontractors from the final cost of work exposure valuation.

Certain specialized classifications may utilize alternative exposure bases such as the number of admissions, total units produced, or specific event duration.

The precise definition of any alternative exposure basis will be detailed in a separate amendatory endorsement attached to the primary policy documents.

Classification descriptions are generalized summaries of typical business operations and do not explicitly define the parameters of the provided insurance protection.

7. The presence of a specific classification code on the schedule does not override any explicit exclusion or limitation contained within the policy text.

The carrier may reclassify the enterprise mid-term if a newly enacted regulatory statute alters the standard classification system utilized by the industry.

Any mid-term reclassification mandated by regulatory changes will be applied on a pro-rata basis from the effective date of the new statute.

The enterprise may request a formal review of their assigned classifications by submitting a detailed narrative description of their daily business activities.

8. The carrier will evaluate all classification review requests and issue a written determination affirming or modifying the current schedule within thirty days.

ADMINISTRATIVE CONDITIONS AND CONTRACTUAL OBLIGATIONS

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

A. This document constitutes the entire agreement between the commercial enterprise and the carrier regarding the provision of commercial liability insurance.

No modifications, amendments, or waivers of any policy provision will be considered valid unless formally issued by the carrier as a written endorsement.

The first named insured designated on the declarations page acts as the sole authorized representative for all entities protected under this agreement.

The carrier will direct all administrative correspondence, billing statements, and formal notices exclusively to the mailing address of the first named insured.

By accepting this policy, the first named insured affirms that all statements and representations made during the application process are entirely accurate.

B. The carrier has issued this policy in direct reliance upon the factual accuracy of the representations provided by the commercial enterprise.

Intentional misrepresentation or the concealment of material facts concerning the business operations may result in the immediate voiding of this insurance contract.

The first named insured may cancel this policy at any time by returning the original documents or providing advanced written notice of termination.

The carrier may cancel this policy by mailing a formal notice of termination to the first named insured at the last known address.

Cancellation for the non-payment of premium requires a minimum notice period of ten days prior to the effective date of the termination.

C. Cancellation for any reason other than non-payment requires a minimum notice period of thirty days prior to the effective date of termination.

If the policy is cancelled by the enterprise, the carrier will calculate the return premium utilizing the standard short-rate penalty computation method.

If the policy is cancelled by the carrier, the return premium will be calculated on a strictly proportional pro-rata basis without penalty.

These inspections are conducted solely for the purpose of determining insurability, evaluating operational hazards, and calculating appropriate premium charges.

D. The carrier does not warrant that the premises are safe, healthful, or in compliance with any local, state, or federal safety regulations.

The enterprise must promptly notify the carrier of any fundamental changes in ownership, management structure, or primary business operations.

The rights and duties established under this policy cannot be transferred to another entity without the express written consent of the carrier.

In the event of the death of the first named insured, the rights and duties will automatically transfer to the appointed legal representative.

The legal representative will possess the authority to act on behalf of the enterprise only while performing duties strictly related to the estate.

E. Until a legal representative is formally appointed, temporary authority will be granted to any individual maintaining temporary custody of the commercial property.

The enterprise must take all reasonable precautions to prevent further incidents or subsequent damages following any initial event that may trigger this policy.

The carrier will not be responsible for any subsequent damages resulting from the failure of the enterprise to implement reasonable preventative measures.

Any legal action initiated against the carrier must be commenced within two years following the date the disputed incident or damage occurred.

The enterprise must fully comply with all terms, conditions, and administrative requirements of this policy before initiating any legal action against the carrier.

F. In the event of multiple entities being designated as named insureds, the financial obligations regarding premium payment remain joint and several.

The carrier may elect not to renew this agreement by mailing a formal notice of non-renewal to the first named insured.

Notices of non-renewal will be dispatched at least thirty days prior to the scheduled expiration date of the current policy term.

Proof of mailing the cancellation or non-renewal notice to the designated address will serve as sufficient proof of notification under this contract.

Any specific state statutes that conflict with these administrative conditions will automatically supersede the printed text to ensure strict regulatory compliance.

APPLICATION OF SCHEDULED LIMITS AND AGGREGATE DEPLETION

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

The numerical values displayed on the limits schedule represent the absolute maximum financial responsibility assumed by the carrier under this specific contract.

These scheduled maximums apply regardless of the number of protected entities, the number of individuals injured, or the number of claims filed.

The general aggregate limit establishes the maximum amount the carrier will disburse for all combined incidents occurring during the active policy period.

This general aggregate maximum encompasses all financial responsibilities except those specifically allocated to the products and completed operations hazard category.

As disbursements are made to resolve qualifying incidents, the remaining available balance of the general aggregate limit is correspondingly depleted.

The products and completed operations aggregate limit functions independently and establishes a separate maximum for incidents arising from distributed goods or finished work.

The each occurrence limit defines the maximum financial responsibility for all damages arising out of a single, continuous, or repeated exposure event.

The each occurrence limit remains subject to the available remaining balance of the applicable aggregate limit at the time the incident is resolved.

If multiple scheduled locations are designated on the declarations, the general aggregate limit may be modified to apply separately to each distinct premises.

The separate application of the aggregate limit per location must be explicitly authorized by a designated endorsement attached to the policy documents.

The personal and advertising injury limit establishes the maximum disbursement available for all offenses committed against any single person or organization.

This specific limit is also subordinate to the general aggregate limit and will be restricted by any prior depletion of that overall maximum.

However, the application of severability does not increase the absolute maximum limits of insurance available for any single occurrence or aggregate period.

If a single incident triggers multiple sub-limits, the carrier will not disburse an amount exceeding the highest applicable single limit of insurance.

The enterprise cannot combine or stack the limits of multiple consecutive policy periods to resolve a single, continuous exposure event.

Continuous exposure events spanning multiple policy periods will be assigned exclusively to the single policy period where the damage first became evident.

The carrier will provide written notification to the first named insured when any aggregate limit has been depleted by more than fifty percent.

A final written notification will be issued immediately upon the complete exhaustion of any aggregate limit scheduled on the declarations page.

Modifications to the scheduled limits requested mid-term will apply only to incidents occurring after the effective date of the approved change endorsement.

PREMIUM AUDIT AND ACCOUNTING PROVISIONS

PREMIUM, AUDIT, AND ACCOUNTING CONDITIONS

| Scheduled premiumSee declarations and premium schedules | Audit basisRecords described in the audit conditions |

1. The premium shown on the declarations page represents an advance deposit calculated entirely from your initial estimated exposure bases at inception.

Final premium calculations occur only after the policy period concludes and rely heavily on a comprehensive actual audit of your operational records.

You must maintain detailed accounting ledgers that properly segregate all exposures by classification, territory, and specific location for our eventual review.

We reserve the absolute right to examine and reproduce your financial records at any reasonable time during the active policy term.

2. This vital examination right extends for a period of up to three full years following the expiration or cancellation of this insurance contract.

Acceptable records for this purpose include federal tax returns, detailed payroll registers, daily sales journals, subcontractor invoices, and valid certificates of insurance.

If you fail to provide adequate documentation during our review, we may apply the highest rated classification to all unverified operational exposures.

Advance premiums are systematically credited against the final computed premium determined by our internal audit department at the close of the term.

3. Should the final computed premium exceed the initial advance deposit, you must remit the outstanding balance in full within thirty calendar days.

Conversely, if the audited premium is less than the initial deposit, we will return the unearned portion directly to the first named insured.

We may elect to waive a physical field audit and instead accept a voluntary statement of exposures submitted by your accounting department.

Voluntary exposure statements must be signed by an authorized corporate officer and remain strictly subject to future verification by our field auditors.

4. In the event of policy cancellation prior to the expiration date, the final premium will be calculated on a standard pro-rata basis.

However, if the first named insured initiates the mid-term cancellation, a customary short-rate penalty may apply to the final premium calculation.

Subcontractor costs must be clearly documented, including absolute proof that such entities carried their own adequate liability insurance during the active project.

Without valid certificates of insurance on file, subcontractor costs will be treated as direct employee payroll and rated accordingly under this policy.

5. You are strictly required to notify our accounting department immediately if your projected operational exposures increase by more than twenty percent.

Interim premium adjustments may be billed during the policy term to accurately reflect substantial increases in operational scale or newly added classifications.

Failure to pay final audit balances constitutes a material breach of contract and may result in immediate cancellation of any active renewal policies.

Disputed audit findings must be submitted in writing within fifteen days of receiving the final premium adjustment statement from our billing department.

6. The formal dispute notice must identify the specific classifications or exposure amounts in question and include all relevant supporting financial documentation.

While a formal dispute is pending review, you remain responsible for under applicable law the undisputed portion of the final premium balance immediately.

Our audit department will issue a formal written resolution within forty-five days of receiving a complete and properly documented dispute package.

If the accounting dispute is resolved entirely in your favor, any overpaid premium amounts will be credited or refunded promptly to your account.

7. Any unpaid audit balances forwarded to an external collection agency will accrue additional administrative fees and statutory interest charges where permitted.

The minimum retained premium specified in the declarations will apply regardless of the final audited exposure amounts or mid-term cancellation requests.

Joint ventures and newly acquired organizations must be reported separately to ensure accurate premium allocation across multiple distinct corporate entities.

Remuneration calculations must include all monetary compensation, performance bonuses, housing allowances, and substitute labor costs as defined by applicable state regulations.

8. We assume no responsibility for identifying classification errors that result in overpayment if you fail to provide accurate initial operational descriptions.

This comprehensive audit provision supersedes any conflicting payment terms or conditions found elsewhere in the commercial general liability coverage parts.

ASSIGNMENT AND TRANSFER OF POLICY ADMINISTRATION

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

A. Rights and duties established under this commercial general liability contract cannot be transferred to another party without our written consent.

Any attempted assignment or transfer of policy benefits lacking our express written authorization shall be considered void and legally unenforceable.

The named insured cannot sell, assign, or otherwise transfer their interest in this insurance policy as part of a corporate transaction.

In the event of a merger or acquisition, the surviving entity does not automatically inherit the protections of this specific policy.

A formal request for transfer must be submitted to our underwriting department along with complete details of the proposed ownership change.

B. We reserve the absolute right to approve or deny any transfer request based on our evaluation of the new risk profile.

An exception to this strict prohibition exists in the event of the death of an individual designated as the first named insured.

If an individual named insured dies, their rights and duties are temporarily transferred to their legal representative or estate executor.

Until a legal representative is formally appointed, anyone having proper temporary custody of the deceased insured's property assumes the policy duties.

C. The temporary custodian is bound by all policy conditions, including the obligation to report incidents and cooperate with our investigations.

Coverage for the legal representative or temporary custodian extends only to operations previously conducted by the deceased individual named insured.

No new business ventures or expanded operations initiated by the estate will be protected under the existing commercial liability framework.

Bankruptcy or insolvency of the insured does not relieve us of our obligations under this commercial general liability contract.

However, a bankruptcy trustee does not gain the authority to expand the scope of operations beyond those scheduled in the declarations.

D. The appointment of a receiver or liquidator requires immediate notification to our administrative offices to ensure proper policy documentation.

Premium payment obligations remain fully enforceable against the estate, the bankruptcy trustee, or the legal representative managing the insured entity.

Any pending premium audits will be directed to the legal representative, who must provide access to all necessary financial records.

The transfer of policy administration duties does not alter the applicable limits, exclusion parameters, or classification codes established at inception.

If a corporate named insured undergoes a name change without a change in ownership structure, an amendatory endorsement is required.

E. Name changes must be reported within thirty days to ensure continuous alignment between the policy documents and the legal entity.

The addition of new subsidiaries or newly formed organizations is governed by separate provisions and does not constitute a transfer.

We will not recognize any third-party claims of policy ownership based on private contractual agreements between the insured and outside entities.

Additional insured status must be achieved through specific endorsement scheduling rather than an attempted blanket assignment of the primary policy.

F. Any approved transfer of rights will be memorialized through a formal endorsement issued by our home office and attached to the policy.

The effective date of an approved transfer will be explicitly stated on the issued endorsement, superseding any prior private arrangements.

Following a transfer, the new first named insured assumes full responsibility for all past and future premium obligations and audit adjustments.

The new entity also inherits the responsibility to distribute cancellation notices or policy changes to any other scheduled insured parties.

We maintain the right to conduct a comprehensive risk control survey of the new entity before finalizing any transfer of rights.

G. Failure to disclose material changes in operations during a transfer request constitutes grounds for immediate rescission of the transfer endorsement.

TERRITORIAL APPLICATION AND STATE PROVISIONS

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

The provisions of this policy apply exclusively to incidents, operations, or offenses that take place within the authorized geographic boundaries.

These boundaries generally encompass the United States of America, its incorporated territories and possessions, Puerto Rico, and the nation of Canada.

Operations conducted outside of these primary geographic areas are strictly excluded unless specifically addressed by a separate international endorsement.

International airspace and international waters are included only if the injury or damage occurs during direct travel between authorized jurisdictions.

Products manufactured or sold within the primary geographic boundaries may retain coverage if they are subsequently transported to foreign locations.

However, this product-related extension applies only if the original manufacturing or initial sale occurred within the authorized domestic territories.

Short-term international business travel by the named insured or their employees is accommodated under specific, limited circumstances outlined herein.

The activities of employees traveling abroad must be strictly limited to administrative, clerical, or executive duties on behalf of the insured.

Manual labor, construction activities, or physical service operations performed outside the authorized geographic boundaries will not receive liability protection.

Digital operations and internet activities present unique geographic challenges that require specific jurisdictional parameters for liability protection to apply.

Offenses related to electronic publications or digital advertising are considered to occur globally, provided the insured's business is based domestically.

Despite any global digital exposure, we require that any resulting litigation be formally filed and pursued within the authorized primary territories.

We will not participate in, fund, or recognize lawsuits brought in foreign courts or under the jurisdiction of foreign legal systems.

Any judgments, settlements, or legal costs awarded by tribunals outside the United States, its territories, Puerto Rico, or Canada are excluded.

If a lawsuit is filed domestically but involves international elements, we will evaluate the claim based strictly on domestic legal standards.

State-specific amendatory provisions may alter the application of these territorial rules depending on the primary mailing address of the named insured.

When state laws mandate broader geographic recognition for certain classes of business, those statutory requirements will supersede our standard limitations.

Currency fluctuations and international exchange rates will not alter the maximum financial limits scheduled in the commercial general liability declarations.

All premium calculations, audit adjustments, and claim settlements will be processed exclusively in the official currency of the United States.

If a domestic judgment involves foreign currency calculations, the exchange rate published on the date of the final judgment will apply.

Coverage is categorically suspended in any region, country, or territory subject to comprehensive trade sanctions or embargoes by the federal government.

We will not process payments or provide legal resources if doing so would violate established economic sanctions or international trade restrictions.

The insured must ensure that their export activities comply with all federal regulations regarding restricted nations and prohibited foreign entities.

Any liability arising from deliberate violations of international trade laws or customs regulations falls entirely outside the scope of this policy.

Vendors or distributors operating exclusively in foreign markets cannot be added as additional insureds under this domestic liability framework.

The burden of proof rests on the insured to demonstrate that an incident occurred within the authorized geographic boundaries.

Location schedules attached to the declarations dictate the primary premises, but the territorial rules govern off-site operations and mobile equipment.

Ambiguities regarding the exact location of an incident will be resolved by referencing official geographic coordinates and established international borders.

Maintaining accurate records of international shipments and employee travel is essential for determining the applicability of these territorial provisions.

INTERPRETATION OF POLICY PROVISIONS AND CONFLICTING FORMS

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

1. This commercial general liability contract is a composite document consisting of declarations, schedules, broad coverage parts, conditions, and specialized endorsements.

When evaluating the scope of protection, the policy must be read as a complete, integrated instrument rather than isolated independent clauses.

The declarations pages serve as the primary index, identifying the specific forms, limits, and classifications that apply to the scheduled operations.

2. Classification and territory entries are used primarily for rating purposes and do not independently determine or expand the scope of coverage.

The applicable coverage part, scheduled limit, specific exclusion, and attached endorsement must always be read in conjunction with the declarations.

In the event of a direct contradiction between the main coverage form and an attached endorsement, the endorsement will generally control.

Endorsements are designed to tailor the generic policy language to the specific risk profile and operational needs of the named insured.

3. A form listed for an exposure item may apply exclusively to the scheduled operation, specific location, or completed-operations hazard shown.

Broad exclusionary endorsements take precedence over any implied protections found within the standard definitions or insuring agreements of the base forms.

If multiple exclusionary endorsements apply to a single incident, the most restrictive language will dictate the final determination of the claim.

Schedule entries containing specific location addresses limit the application of certain forms to operations conducted strictly at those designated premises.

4. When a specific provision conflicts with a general provision within the same document, the specific provision will be given interpretive priority.

State amendatory endorsements are attached to ensure the policy complies with the unique statutory and regulatory requirements of the governing jurisdiction.

If any standard policy language conflicts with a mandatory state amendatory endorsement, the state-specific provisions will automatically override the standard text.

We continuously monitor legislative changes, but if a policy clause violates current law, it will be enforced as if appropriately amended.

5. The severability of interests clause ensures that the policy applies separately to each insured against whom a formal claim is brought.

However, this severability principle does not increase the maximum aggregate limits or per-occurrence limits scheduled in the commercial liability declarations.

SECTION HEADINGS, TITLES, AND FORMATTING CHOICES ARE PROVIDED SOLELY FOR NAVIGATIONAL CONVENIENCE AND DO NOT ALTER THE ACTUAL CONTRACTUAL OBLIGATIONS.

The use of bold text or quotation marks indicates that a word or phrase is specifically defined within the policy definitions section.

Undefined terms will be interpreted according to their standard, everyday dictionary meanings within the context of commercial insurance industry practices.

6. Any typographical errors or formatting inconsistencies discovered in the policy documents will not invalidate the clear intent of the underwriting agreement.

The named insured is responsible for reviewing all schedules, forms, and endorsements immediately upon receipt to ensure accuracy and completeness.

Discrepancies between the requested coverage and the issued policy documents must be reported to our administrative offices within thirty days.

We rely entirely on the accuracy of the information provided during the application process when assembling these specific policy forms.

7. Material misrepresentations regarding the nature of the business may render certain coverage forms inapplicable or void the policy in its entirety.

When an endorsement removes a specific exclusion, it does not automatically grant coverage if another unamended exclusion applies to the situation.

Our claims department relies on the exact edition dates of the forms attached to the policy when evaluating incident reports.

8. Prior editions or outdated industry standard forms hold no interpretive weight if they differ from the specific versions scheduled herein.

VERMONT AMENDATORY PROVISION - CANCELLATION AND NONRENEWAL PROCEDURES

THIS ENDORSEMENT CHANGES THE POLICY. PLEASE READ IT CAREFULLY.

A. This amendatory document modifies the cancellation, nonrenewal, and conditional renewal provisions applicable to your commercial general liability coverage part.

All conflicting provisions regarding the termination or modification of coverage found elsewhere in the policy packet are replaced by the following stipulations.

The first named entity shown in the declarations may cancel this policy by mailing or delivering advance written notice of termination.

The written notice submitted by the first named entity must specify the future date when the termination of coverage becomes effective.

We may cancel this policy by mailing or delivering a formal written notice of termination directly to the first named entity.

B. If our cancellation is due to the nonpayment of premium, we will provide notice at least fifteen days before the effective date.

When our cancellation is for any reason other than nonpayment of premium, we will provide notice at least forty-five days in advance.

Notice of cancellation will be mailed to the last known mailing address of the first named entity and the producer of record.

We will obtain a certificate of mailing or maintain verifiable electronic records proving the dispatch of the termination notice.

The formal notice will state the effective date of cancellation, and the active policy period will end on that specified date.

C. If this policy is cancelled prior to expiration, we will calculate the return premium and send it to the first named entity.

If we initiate the cancellation, the return premium will be calculated on a proportional basis for the unexpired policy term.

If the first named entity initiates the cancellation, the return premium may be calculated utilizing a customary short rate penalty factor.

The cancellation will remain effective even if we have not yet made or offered a refund of the unearned premium balance.

We may elect not to renew this policy by mailing or delivering a written notice of nonrenewal to your address.

D. Notice of nonrenewal will be provided to you at least forty-five days before the expiration date of the current policy period.

If the nonrenewal notice is mailed less than forty-five days before expiration, the coverage will remain in effect for forty-five days.

The earned premium for any extended period of coverage will be calculated using the rates applicable to the expiring policy term.

We are not obligated to send a notice of nonrenewal if you have accepted replacement coverage from another carrier.

We are also not obligated to send a nonrenewal notice if you have agreed in writing not to renew the coverage.

E. Any notice of nonrenewal issued by us will include the underwriting reason for our decision not to extend the coverage period.

The stated reasons for nonrenewal must be based on objective underwriting criteria or adverse changes in the scheduled commercial exposures.

If a local jurisdiction statute requires a longer notice period or restricts the reasons for cancellation, those statutory requirements will control.

Verifiable proof of mailing will serve as sufficient proof of notice for both cancellation and nonrenewal communications under this commercial contract.

Any unearned premium refund due to you will be processed and dispatched within thirty days after the effective date of termination.

F. The designated producer of record does not possess the authority to reinstate coverage once a formal cancellation notice has been issued.

Reinstatement of a previously cancelled policy requires our explicit written consent and may necessitate the payment of all outstanding premium balances.

If a specific location or classification is deleted from the schedules by endorsement, it does not constitute a cancellation of the policy.

Partial deletions of coverage parts or locations will be processed as routine policy endorsements rather than full policy cancellations.

This amendatory provision applies exclusively to the commercial general liability coverage part and does not alter the rules for other lines.

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

The limits of insurance specified in the declarations dictate the maximum financial responsibility assumed under this commercial general liability contract.

These scheduled amounts apply regardless of the number of insured persons, claims made, or individuals seeking financial recovery.

The General Aggregate limit represents the absolute ceiling for all damages payable during a single annual term, excluding specific designated hazards.

Payments made to resolve claims or satisfy judgments steadily erode the General Aggregate balance available for subsequent incidents.

Once the General Aggregate limit is completely exhausted by the payment of damages, all associated protection ceases immediately.

The Products-Completed Operations Aggregate limit operates independently from the General Aggregate and applies strictly to the corresponding hazard.

Damages arising from goods manufactured, sold, or distributed, as well as work that has been finished, erode this separate aggregate.

The classification of a claim into either the general operations category or the completed operations category determines which aggregate is depleted.

The Each Occurrence limit establishes the maximum payable amount for any single event or series of continuous and repeated exposures.

This occurrence cap applies independently to every distinct incident, provided the relevant aggregate limit has not yet been exhausted.

If a single occurrence triggers damages that exceed this per-event cap, the remainder of the financial burden falls outside the contract scope.

The Personal and Advertising Injury limit restricts the payable damages for offenses such as libel, slander, or copyright infringement.

This specific limit applies per person or organization offended, rather than per occurrence, subject always to the overarching General Aggregate.

Medical payments limits, if scheduled, are typically sub-limits that are included within, and not in addition to, the Each Occurrence maximum.

Damage to premises rented to the named insured is governed by a separate sub-limit applicable only to specific fire or water events.

The depletion of any limit is driven solely by the payment of damages and does not typically include the costs associated with legal defense.

Legal defense expenses are generally handled outside the limits of insurance unless a specific endorsement alters this standard arrangement.

In situations where defense costs are brought within the limits, every dollar spent on legal fees directly reduces the available aggregate.

The limits of insurance apply separately to each consecutive annual period and to any remaining period of less than twelve months.

If the term is extended by an endorsement for a fraction of a year, the limits do not automatically reinstate or increase.

The allocation of damages across multiple annual periods may be necessary when continuous injury spans several consecutive terms.

Under no circumstances will the limits of multiple consecutive contracts be stacked to artificially inflate the available financial protection.

When an injury is determined to have occurred over multiple terms, the maximum recovery is restricted to the highest single applicable limit.

The scheduling of limits relies on the accurate disclosure of all material operational risks at the inception of the contract.

Requests to increase the limits of insurance mid-term are subject to comprehensive underwriting review and require written approval.

Any approved increase in limits will only apply to occurrences that take place after the effective date of the modifying endorsement.

Deductibles or self-insured retentions, if applicable, must be satisfied by the named insured before any limit of insurance is accessed.

The application of a deductible does not increase the total limit of insurance available for the remainder of the claim.

We maintain the authority to settle any claim within the applicable limits without requiring the explicit consent of the named insured.

The exhaustion of the applicable aggregate limit immediately terminates our obligation to investigate, defend, or resolve any pending or future claims.

SEPARATION OF INSUREDS AND ADDITIONAL INSURED OPERATION

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

1. The commercial general liability contract clearly distinguishes between the primary named insured and other parties who may receive incidental protection.

The named insured is the entity explicitly listed on the declarations page and bears the primary administrative responsibilities for the contract.

These administrative duties include the payment of all premiums, the reporting of operational changes, and the maintenance of accurate exposure records.

Additional insureds are external individuals or organizations granted specific, limited protection through the attachment of a designated endorsement.

2. The protection afforded to an additional insured is strictly confined to the parameters outlined in the specific modifying form.

Commonly, additional insured status is granted to project owners, lessees, or general contractors who require protection arising from the named insured operations.

The scope of this external protection is generally limited to vicarious liability stemming directly from the acts or omissions of the named insured.

Independent acts of negligence committed solely by the additional insured are routinely excluded from the scope of the provided protection.

3. The separation of insureds provision ensures that the contract applies separately to each individual or entity claiming protection.

This severability principle means that a breach of a condition by one insured does not automatically void the protection for another innocent insured.

Furthermore, the separation of insureds allows one protected party to bring a valid claim against another protected party under the same contract.

Despite this cross-liability application, the separation provision does not multiply or increase the maximum limits of insurance available.

4. The Each Occurrence and applicable Aggregate limits remain fixed, regardless of how many insured entities are implicated in a single event.

Additional insured endorsements often distinguish between ongoing operations and the products-completed operations hazard.

To secure protection for liabilities arising after project completion, a specific completed operations additional insured endorsement must be attached.

5. Primary and non-contributory conditions are frequently requested by external parties seeking additional insured status on the contract.

When this condition is properly endorsed, the protection provided by this contract will respond before any other insurance available to the additional insured.

We will not seek contribution from the additional insured own liability policies if the primary and non-contributory requirement is met.

The granting of primary status is contingent upon the existence of a written contract requiring such an arrangement prior to the loss.

6. Every insured, whether named or additional, has independent duties in the event of an incident, claim, or legal proceeding.

Immediate written notice of any event that may result in a claim must be provided to the administrative processing center.

The failure of the named insured to provide notice does not excuse an additional insured from fulfilling their own reporting obligations.

All protected parties must cooperate fully in the investigation, settlement, or defense of the claim as requested by the claim administrators.

7. No insured may voluntarily make any payment, assume any obligation, or incur any expense without our prior written authorization.

Any unauthorized financial commitments made by an insured will be their sole responsibility and will not be reimbursed.

We are not obligated to provide separate notices of cancellation to additional insureds unless explicitly mandated by a specific endorsement.

8. The rights and duties of the named insured cannot be transferred to another party without our explicit written consent.

In the event of the named insured death or bankruptcy, temporary administrative rights may transfer to a legal representative.

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

A. The commercial general liability contract is constructed through a combination of base coverage forms, schedules, and modifying endorsements.

Endorsements are specialized forms that alter, restrict, or expand the provisions found within the standard base coverage documents.

When a conflict arises between the language in a base form and the language in an attached endorsement, the endorsement takes precedence.

Exclusionary endorsements are specifically designed to remove protection for certain hazards, activities, or exposures that fall outside the underwriting appetite.

The attachment of a specific exclusion supersedes any broad grant of protection that might otherwise appear to apply to the situation.

B. Exclusions are applied to eliminate overlapping protection that should be properly addressed by a different type of insurance contract.

For example, liabilities arising from the use of automobiles are excluded here because they belong on a commercial auto policy.

Similarly, obligations to injured employees are excluded from general liability because they are the domain of workers compensation frameworks.

Certain environmental hazards, such as the gradual release of pollutants or toxic chemicals, are subject to absolute exclusionary language.

Occupational disease exposures involving specific harmful substances like silica, asbestos, or heavy metals are routinely removed from the scope of protection.

C. Liabilities stemming from the unauthorized access to, or disclosure of, confidential personal information are excluded to avoid overlapping with cyber liability products.

Employment-related practices, including wrongful termination, discrimination, and workplace harassment, are explicitly excluded from the general liability framework.

The application of an exclusion is evaluated based on the proximate cause of the injury or damage, regardless of how the legal complaint is drafted.

If an excluded hazard is determined to be the primary driver of the loss, the entire claim may fall outside the scope of the contract.

Some exclusions contain specific exceptions that restore a limited degree of protection under very narrow, strictly defined circumstances.

D. The burden of proving that a claim falls within the broad grant of protection rests entirely upon the party seeking the financial benefit.

Conversely, the burden of proving that a specific exclusion applies to remove that protection rests with the administrative claim examiners.

Materiality plays a significant role in the evaluation of exclusions and the overall scope of the liability contract.

A material change in the risk profile, such as the introduction of a new excluded hazard, can severely impact the availability of protection.

Endorsements must be properly scheduled on the declarations or a supplementary forms list to be considered a valid part of the contract.

E. The edition date of each form and endorsement is critical for determining the exact contractual language in effect at the time of the loss.

Insurance forms are periodically updated by regulatory and advisory organizations to address emerging legal precedents and shifting risk landscapes.

The specific edition date listed in the schedule controls the interpretation of the provision, even if a newer version exists in the marketplace.

Upon renewal of the annual term, outdated forms may be replaced with newer editions, potentially altering the scope of the exclusions.

The named insured is responsible for reviewing the schedule of forms and endorsements at each renewal to understand any reduction in protection.

F. Notices of material reduction are provided during the renewal process to highlight significant changes to the exclusionary language.

Severability clauses within certain exclusions may preserve protection for one insured party even if the exclusion applies strictly to another.

However, absolute exclusions generally apply to all insured parties uniformly, regardless of their individual involvement in the excluded activity.

Any modification to an exclusionary endorsement requires mutual agreement and the issuance of a revised schedule by the underwriting department.

Verbal agreements or representations made by brokers cannot override the written exclusionary language contained within the scheduled endorsements.

---

---

The provisions contained within this section establish the mandatory administrative procedures following any incident that may invoke coverage under this contract.

Strict adherence to these reporting protocols serves as a fundamental condition precedent to the availability of any liability protection provided herein.

You must implement internal organizational procedures to ensure that your management personnel are promptly made aware of any potential liability events.

Upon becoming aware of an event that could reasonably result in a liability demand, written notification must be transmitted to our claims department.

This initial notification must be dispatched as soon as practicable, regardless of whether a formal demand for compensation has been received.

The written incident report must include specific details regarding the time, date, and physical location where the unexpected event occurred.

You must also provide a comprehensive description of the circumstances surrounding the event, including the nature of the activities being performed.

The names, addresses, and contact information of any injured parties must be documented and submitted alongside the initial incident report.

If any witnesses were present during the event, their identifying information and contact details must also be secured and forwarded to us.

In the event that a formal legal demand or lawsuit is initiated against your organization, immediate notification is strictly required.

You must immediately record the date and time of receipt for any legal summons, complaint, or formal demand letter delivered to you.

All corresponding legal documents, correspondence, and related materials must be forwarded to our designated claims administration office without any delay.

Under no circumstances should you or any of your representatives voluntarily make any financial payments or assume any legal obligations.

Any voluntary assumption of liability or independent settlement offers made without our prior written consent will not be reimbursed under this contract.

You are strictly prohibited from incurring any independent expenses related to the incident, other than for immediate first aid at the scene.

The preservation of physical evidence related to the incident is a critical responsibility that falls entirely upon your organization.

You must take all reasonable steps to secure the incident scene and prevent any spoliation or alteration of relevant physical materials.

Photographic or video documentation of the incident location should be captured immediately, provided it is safe and legally permissible to do so.

Any equipment, machinery, or products involved in the event must be segregated and maintained in their immediate post-incident condition.

Failure to preserve critical evidence may severely prejudice the investigation and could result in the forfeiture of available liability protection.

If the incident involves potential criminal activity, such as theft or vandalism, you must promptly notify the appropriate local law enforcement authorities.

A copy of the official police report must be obtained and submitted to our claims department as part of your reporting obligations.

You must establish a centralized point of contact within your organization to facilitate all communications with our assigned claims professionals.

This designated representative must possess the authority to access necessary records and coordinate internal responses to our investigative inquiries.

All subsequent developments related to the reported incident must be communicated to our office in a timely and transparent manner.

You must not engage in any independent discussions regarding liability or settlement with the claimant or their legal representatives.

Any inquiries received from third-party investigators, media personnel, or opposing counsel must be immediately directed to our claims administration team.

Compliance with these reporting duties does not automatically guarantee that the reported event falls within the scope of available liability protection.

We reserve the authority to evaluate all submitted information to determine the applicability of specific coverage parts, exclusions, and limitations.

Your failure to fulfill these initial reporting obligations may result in a formal declination of coverage for the specific incident in question.

LITIGATION MANAGEMENT AND DEFENSE ADMINISTRATION

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

1. Our organization assumes the exclusive authority to manage the legal response to any qualified liability demand presented against your enterprise.

This authority encompasses the complete direction of all litigation strategies, settlement negotiations, and the selection of appropriate legal representation.

When a qualified legal action is initiated, we will appoint legal counsel to represent your interests in the pending judicial proceedings.

The selection of the defense attorney remains entirely within our discretion, utilizing our network of approved legal professionals and specialized firms.

2. You may request the appointment of specific counsel; however, we are under no obligation to honor such requests unless mandated by jurisdiction.

The appointed legal counsel will focus solely on defending the allegations that fall within the scope of this commercial liability contract.

We maintain the authority to investigate any claim or suit at our discretion, utilizing internal personnel or independent investigative resources.

During the course of the litigation, we will determine the most appropriate legal strategy to mitigate potential financial exposures.

3. We possess the unilateral authority to negotiate and finalize the settlement of any claim or suit without requiring your explicit consent.

Our settlement decisions are based on a comprehensive evaluation of liability exposure, anticipated litigation costs, and jurisdictional venue factors.

If we determine that a negotiated resolution is the most prudent course of action, we will execute the settlement on your behalf.

Our obligation to provide legal representation ceases immediately upon the exhaustion of the applicable limit scheduled in the policy declarations.

4. Once the relevant limit has been entirely depleted through the payment of judgments or settlements, we will withdraw from the defense.

You will be formally notified in writing when the applicable limit is approaching exhaustion and when it has been fully depleted.

In situations where a lawsuit contains both covered allegations and allegations excluded by this contract, we will provide a defense for the entire action.

5. However, we reserve the right to issue a formal reservation of rights regarding the specific allegations that fall outside the coverage scope.

This reservation of rights ensures that our provision of a defense does not constitute a waiver of our right to deny financial responsibility.

We will not provide financial reimbursement for any judgments or settlements associated with the uncovered portions of the legal action.

You retain the option to hire independent legal counsel, at your own expense, to monitor the litigation and advise you on uncovered exposures.

6. Any independent counsel retained by your organization must fully cooperate with the primary defense attorney appointed by our claims department.

The primary defense attorney retains ultimate control over the direction of the litigation and the presentation of the defense in court.

We will not reimburse any legal fees, consultation costs, or administrative expenses incurred by your independently retained legal counsel.

If a conflict of interest arises that legally requires the appointment of independent defense counsel, we will fund such representation at prevailing rates.

7. The prevailing rates for independent counsel will be determined based on standard legal fees for similar litigation within the specific geographic venue.

We require the independent counsel to adhere to our standard litigation management guidelines and billing protocols throughout the duration of the case.

Any failure by the independent counsel to comply with these administrative guidelines may result in the reduction or denial of fee reimbursements.

The administration of the defense process is designed to protect both your organizational assets and our financial interests under this contract.

8. We will keep your designated organizational representative reasonably informed regarding significant developments and major strategic decisions during the litigation process.

Ultimately, the final determination regarding trial progression versus settlement resolution rests exclusively with our claims administration personnel.

INVESTIGATION ASSISTANCE AND INSURED COOPERATION CONDITIONS

THIS FORM IS PART OF THE POLICY AND MUST BE READ WITH THE DECLARATIONS AND ENDORSEMENTS.

A. Your active and transparent participation in the fact-finding process is a mandatory requirement for the continuation of any liability protection.

The administrative framework of this contract relies upon your full cooperation to accurately assess the circumstances surrounding any reported incident.

When requested by our claims personnel, you must promptly provide access to all relevant organizational records, documents, and electronic data.

This includes, but is not limited to, employee training logs, maintenance schedules, operational manuals, and internal incident investigation reports.

You must facilitate interviews between our investigators and any of your employees, contractors, or agents who may possess relevant knowledge.

B. These interviews may be conducted in person, via telephone, or through virtual platforms, depending on the logistical requirements of the investigation.

If we deem it necessary, you and your employees must submit to formal examinations under oath regarding the details of the incident.

These examinations under oath will be recorded, and you may be required to sign a transcript verifying the accuracy of your statements.

You must assist our representatives in securing physical evidence and identifying third-party witnesses who can corroborate your version of events.

When requested, you must grant our investigators and retained experts unrestricted access to the physical premises where the incident occurred.

C. This access is necessary to conduct site inspections, take precise measurements, and perform forensic evaluations of the incident location.

During the course of any formal legal proceedings, your ongoing cooperation remains a critical condition of the provided defense services.

Your organization must ensure that key personnel are available to testify truthfully and accurately regarding the facts of the case.

We will reimburse your organization for reasonable travel expenses and lost earnings incurred directly as a result of attending these required proceedings.

D. The maximum daily reimbursement rate for lost earnings is strictly capped at the amount specified in the administrative schedules.

You are expressly prohibited from taking any actions that might prejudice our ability to defend the claim or negotiate a favorable settlement.

Any intentional misrepresentation of facts, concealment of evidence, or collusion with the claimant will result in the immediate forfeiture of protection.

You must not enter into any agreements with third parties that attempt to assign liability or alter the legal dynamics of the claim.

If you possess any contractual rights to seek indemnification or financial recovery from another entity, you must preserve those rights entirely.

E. You are required to assist us in enforcing any such recovery rights against third parties who may be responsible for the incident.

This includes providing necessary documentation and testimony to support subrogation actions initiated by our legal recovery department.

Any financial recovery obtained from third parties will be distributed according to the specific recovery provisions outlined elsewhere in this contract.

Your failure to maintain comprehensive operational records may hinder the defense process and complicate the resolution of the liability demand.

We expect your organization to maintain standard commercial documentation practices consistent with your specific industry classification and operational scope.

F. If your lack of cooperation materially prejudices our ability to investigate or defend the action, we may formally deny the claim.

A determination of material prejudice is based on whether your actions or inactions significantly impaired the legal defense or increased the financial exposure.

We will issue formal written warnings if we determine that your level of cooperation is insufficient or detrimental to the ongoing investigation.

Continued non-compliance after the issuance of a formal warning will trigger a comprehensive review of your eligibility for ongoing liability protection.
